The plot now deals with the will of Mr. Carey who has died, and a mortgage on the property held by him against Bobby Walton, Dr. Brighton, the family physician and adviser of Ethelinde, goes to France as government physician in a hospital. Prof. Caywood gave a perfect characterization of an honest and whole-souled family physician seeking to fill the void left by his father, the little friend Ethelinde. During his absence on foreign shores the villain Martin has been appointed administrator of the deceased Mr. Carey and with the help of Mrs. Carey, Ethelinde's mother, persuades Bobby's mother to cable her son to sell the farm and the house for she cannot meet the balance due on mortgage. Martin has presumption to include in cablegram that offer to Ethelinde, as a fiancée although she has repeatedly refused him. He also advises Mrs. Walton to tell her son to remain in France on account of his connection with certain property which is considered alien as he may be court-martialed on his return. As Bobby's mother, Kathryn Kelly, was persuading her son to give a fine rendition of that part.

The next scene shows the hospital in France with our friend Bobby in a wounded but convalescent condition. Clifton Roberts assumed the part of the wounded "Yank" doing his best in a clear and commendable manner. On receipt of the cablegram from his mother Bobby is greatly disheartened, for he considers the farm and house as his home and as he thinks that his mother would not have sent such a message unless conditions had warranted it. He is also troubled by the use of the word "alien" in connection with the name of Ethelinde. His nurse tries to comfort him but with little avail and he orders her to scold him. The offer is accepted. As to the role of nurse, Alice Walton provided self capable and good. Under protest she is about to deliver a message when Brighton walks in, being informed of the proceedings he directs a message sent saying he and Bobby will be home soon, saying he cannot go home now, but, upon Dr. Brighton asking him if it is his intention to return, saying what he did in regard to the Great Estate being alien property, Bobby is greatly surprised and anger and announces his determination to go home at any cost and protect the honor of his comrades (first when out of his home as he gave his life for my (him).

As is usual in such cases the last act serves as a clearing house in which the villainous are made unhappy and the happy are transformed to the contrary. By the aid of Dr. Brighton who has been all so much important papers by Carey, including a codicil to his will, Martin is unmasked and Ethelinde is given the mortgage to do with as she pleases. It is really wonderful to see the little intuition on the part of anyone to deduce just what disposal she made of this annoying document upon her meeting with her beloved soldier lad.

The serious part of the evening's entertainment being disposed of the attention is now turned to the two roles which added a comic touch to the performance and which also played an important part in making such a success of the effort. In the character of Polly, the old colored mammy of Ethelinde, Ida Mae Stephens had a part difficult to the extreme to present but she did so in such a way as to elicit the praise of all. Her acting ability and voice were not only excellent but she introduced a delivery the negro dialect in a manner which ranked far above the usual amateur effort in that line. The same can be said of Howard Acra in his presentation of her colored soldier son in France who acts as barber to Bobby in the hospital and relates to him how he secured the medal which he wears so proudly upon his breast.

This histrionic effort of the school was good as viewed from every angle. It did its part ably in sustaining the enviable reputation which Boone High enjoys in that particular. The participants deserve credit and commendation for their rendition of the play as it was "finely the result of long and assiduous practice. It is regrettable indeed that the town of Burlington has not an auditorium with a seating capacity of such excellent quality. The people who wish to attend an event of the nature mentioned above. The management of "Standing By" sincerely regrets that so many were turned away in this instance and also that a great many were forced to stand to witness the performance. As conditions are present which it is impossible to remedy the situation for Library Hall is plainly not large enough to accommodate the patrons who turn out each in increasing force to witness the performances given by the local school. The appreciation and thanks of the management for their attendance and approval are hereby extended to the people who made up the large audience. Immediately prior to the opening of the performance the audience was allowed the pleasure of hearing an overture on the piano by Mrs. Fred Morris, and her skill as a pianist was much appreciated. It is hardly necessary to state that her hearers enjoyed her effort to the fullest extent. She also served as accompanist for the singing of Miss Eleanor Walton, who delighted the audience during the intermissions, with several selections, rendering the same in an excellent manner and voice.

WE PLAIN FOLKS.

We plain folks, who never cut any great amount of ice prior to the introduction of the Liberty Loan, are beginning to feel out in his power to do his little friend Ethelinde. During his absence on foreign shores the villain Martin has been appointed administrator of the deceased Mr. Carey and with the help of Mrs. Carey, Ethelinde's mother, persuades Bobby's mother to cable her son to sell the farm and the house for she cannot meet the balance due on mortgage. WHIPPET TANK BURLINGTON VS. VERONA

Inspected By Large Crowd Saturday and Sunday - Left for Covington Monday.

In The Final Drive of The Spelling Contest To Be Held at Union Friday.

Several hundred people came to Burlington last Saturday afternoon to see the government tank which toured this part of the State in the interest of the Victory Bond Drive. The tank came from Walton and arrived on time, and those in charge soon had it ready for a demonstration. A couple of short speeches followed the unloading of the tank, after which it was taken to the school house grounds where it was displayed in a way of riding down streets of considerable size while traveling over rough ground. It was a revelation to the large crowd of spectators. After the demonstration the tank was returned to town followed by the large procession of vehicles and footmen and in a few minutes the Red Cross ladies invited the soldier boys, about sixty, in the crowd to assemble in the court house where they were served a nice lunch.

After the lunch the soldiers gave a short drill exercise under the command of Sergeant Rose Russ which was greatly appreciated by the spectators. The crowd tarried at the tank and in the afternoon it left for Covington. Early Sunday morning people began to arrive from the surrounding country to give the engine of destruction a look-over and a considerable crowd was in town all day. The number of people who came in Sunday being estimated at eight or 1000. Of course that number was not in town at any one time, but the coming and going was constant and at last times the streets were early blocked with automobiles, and people from all parts of the county were observed during the day.

As to drawing a crowd the tank was evidently a success in this county. The tank is said to weigh five tons, is propelled by a 45-horse power gasoline engine, is easily managed by one man while his companion manipulates the machine gun with which it was equipped. It is claimed that it took part in the battle of the Argonne as well as on other fronts. It bears evidence of having been hit by numerous bullets which left deep scars in the heavy iron armor. It is a wonderful machine well worth going a considerable distance to see.

Was loaded early Monday morning on the trailer which, hauled by a large truck, takes it over the country. It went from Burlington to Covington.

The elimination spelling contest held at Burlington last Friday afternoon by Burlington, Hebron, Petersburg and Bellevue schools was a very interesting affair and each of the schools made a splendid showing. Each school entered three pupils in the contest and each pupil was given fifteen words to spell. Burlington missed one word - milliner; Petersburg, two - pencil and planter; Bellevue two - cat-chism and tripple; Hebron, three - channel, forward and laboratory. Rev. David Blyth pronounced the words the contest went off in the best of spirit, Burlington's team in the final contest which will take place at Union next Friday afternoon will be Miss Mary Bess Cropper, Alice Walton and Wayne Phipps. The county banner now held by the Union school will be the prize contended for on Friday.

The eliminating contest held the same day by the Walton, Verona, Union and Hamilton schools resulted in favor of Verona, and the final contest will be held next Friday afternoon between the Burlington and Verona schools. The final spell will be between the Burlington and Verona schools at Union next Friday afternoon, and one of these schools will remain in the contest. The school which has held it the last two years. Each of the schools is very anxious to win and is taking much interest in the contest.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Lexington, April 26.—The fatal shooting from ambush of Robert Brandenburg, Lee county oil land owner, late Friday night, and the report that a new outbreak of the Baker-Hatfield feud in Clay county had caused another killing late today, caused two emergency calls here today for bloodhounds. V. G. Mullikin had just returned from Lee county, where his dog made a vain effort to trace a man named Hogan, who is said to have quarreled with Brandenburg over a line fence, when the second call for the hounds came late tonight. He was waiting for further information from county authorities before setting out on the second quest. Brandenburg was shot thru the head with a rifle and his body was found a few minutes after the shooting.

For Government Sanatorium

Dawson Springs. — At a mass meeting held last night, public subscriptions amounting to $2,700 were subscribed towards purchasing 5,000 acres of land for a Government sanatorium to be located near Congressman D. H. Kitchel. Joe spoke and Mrs. Kitchel entertained the crowd with songs and whistling.

Saved Farmers Money.

County Farm A. Paul Finkha has bought eight car loads of fertilizer for the farmers of this county, all of which have been delivered. He has another car load ordered and has secured these fertilizers at figures considerably less than it would have been possible for the farmers to secure on individual purchases.

FARMER WOULD HAVE TO PAY DOUBLE TAX

Republican Congressman's Proposal Would Endanger Life of Federal Loan Board.

Washington, D. C.—The proposal of Representative Louis A. McFadden, Republican of Pennsylvania, member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, to tax Farm Loan bank loans means either that "the Federal Farm Loan Board will have to go out of business or raise its interest rate on loans to farmers, says Herbert Quick, member of the Farm Loan Board and noted writer. And if the rates are raised, it means that the farmer will have to pay the difference, not only in higher rates on loans made with Farm Land banks, but it means that they will raise their rates, and the very purpose for which the Farm Land bank system was organized will be defeated.

Mr. Quick declares the proposal to tax these bonds is largely inspired by the old farm-mortgage bankers, who have long held out prior to the establishment of the land banks and charged the farmers exorbitant rates on short term loans. Through these banks the farmers have been able to negotiate loans at almost their own terms. City dwellers enjoy the benefits of improvements of various kinds that are exempt from taxation, and Mr. Quick thinks it is unfair discrimination to tax the farmers. If Mr. McFadden's proposal is adopted, the farmer will be taxed twice on his property and on his debts.

This time the Federal land banks have loaned the farmers of the country over $180,000,000. This has saved the farmers from paying $1,000,000,000 more only have these loans been made at a lot of interest, but the rates of interest charged by other lenders would have been much higher. The Federal land banks lend money to farmers at 5% per cent for periods of five to fifteen years; private lenders charge 10% to 15% per cent for money borrowed on this farm property, and for short term loans.

Mr. Quick declares that the Federal Land Bank system was the salvation of the farmer during the hard times of the war. It has established there is no telling where money prices would have soared to. And he believes they are continuing to rise. The boon the farmer struggling to pay for his farm will ever have known if the Pennsylvania Republican Congressmen's proposal to move the taxation on these bonds is defeated.

Influenza About Disappeared.

The influenza has about disappeared from this part of the county but the disease goes on in other lands. It has been seen in the globe. It was bad in some parts of the United States, but it continued for weeks in the Orient, which it reached much later. Tokio, in Japan, was a "city in mourning" and of recent weeks the disease has been very prevalent among the seething millions of British India.

According to the statistics furnished by the British government something like 350,000 human beings live in India, and of these, it is stated, not less than 6,000,000 have succumbed to influenza since October 1 last. And the disease shows no sign of abating. The havoc in Calcutta is reported as something terrible. Certainly this old world has never had such a bath of misery as since the day William of Hohenzollern sent his arms across the Belgian frontier, August 1, 1914.

A Great Military Cemetery.

Plans are being made for the establishment of a great military cemetery for 25,000 American soldiers dead in France. The location, as now favored, is within a few miles of Verdun, near the lines where the last fighting of the war took place. Twenty thousand soldiers sleep at Arlington, near Washington. Sixteen thousand Union soldiers repose in the National cemetery at Fredericksburg, and Vicksburg, which ranks third, contains 15,000 graves, but the great American cemetery near Verdun will be the largest of them all, although we imagine it will be many years before it can approach Arlington in beauty.

Encouraging Signs

Encouraging signs of the times are to be noted in the efforts to put an end to lynching in the United States. Thinking people are more than ever before awakened to the disgraceful fact that this practice blot our fair fame as a nation, for we cannot claim to be civilized until our laws are respected and enforced and our citizens secured against the hideous cruelties of which we are constantly furnishing fresh examples.

Responding to the need for action, there will be held in New York, a national conference on lynching, at which a concerted assault will be made against this form of lawlessness wherever found, and to consider what measures should be adopted to abate it. Ohio's delegates insure support to the cause. They are former Governor Judson Harmon, sometime Attorney General of the State; Henry Churchill King, President of Oberlin College, and Chas. F. Thwing, President of Western Reserve University.

Perry Co. Votes Road Tax.

Hazard.—The 20-cent road tax carried in Perry county by about 1,500 votes. One precinct voted against the proposition by a plurality of 60; two other precincts did not hold any election. Precincts in and around this city were almost solid for the tax. Hazard having only one vote in the city. The county will apply for State and Federal aid, based on the approximate revenue to be collected under this 20-cent tax, and very likely will soon vote on the same tax proposition, which is expected to carry, and it is the plan of the officials of the county to connect Hyden and Hazard by a first-class road.

A Real Cow

Jim Beasley must have sold the best milk cow in the world, if what he tells about her is really true, and we do not doubt it, nor do his friends. He says that he has been giving seven gallons of milk a day, and, of course, as the days get longer, she will naturally give more. His cow is a Holstein strain, he says, and he is able to provide enough utensils to hold the milk. She is of the Holstein strain, he says, and, of course, gives strained milk. He stated to friends this morning that he milked seven gallons of strained milk from her yesterday and not a very good day for milking either. The State Normal School at Richmond is now the owner of this valuable cow, for he sold her for $300, rescuing the calf, which has also been sold for $30, making a total of $330 for the cow and calf.—Lancaster Central Record.

Robert Wilson Dead.

Robert Wilson died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Bethel, in Walton, last Wednesday, and was buried on his daughter's farm at Cemetery at Camden, last Friday. He is survived by his wife, who was a daughter of the late William Hammond. He has several children living, all grown. He will be remembered that Mr. Wilson was the Democratic nominee for jailer at the last regular election of county officers, but he was defeated. He held the office only a short time after taking charge of it. His resignation being accepted by County Judge J. C. Fowler, who appointed Chas. A. Fowler to succeed him. Mr. Wilson was a quiet, unassuming gentleman who had many friends throughout the county, many of his neighbors had resided.

Press Comments.

A peace that gave Flume to Italy could have been only a paper peace, and the work of the Congress would have been nullified before the ink was dry on the parchment. It could not have been a pleasant task that President Wilson had to perform yesterday, but the world owes him a debt of gratitude for the courage he displayed in dealing with this vital question of principle.—New York World.

Italy did not go into the war and lose millions of men and billions of money merely for the sake of Flume. The acquisition of that port was an afterthought. The Government at Rome is not going to jeopardize all it has suffered and gained simply on the position of "Flume or nothing." It will get justice at the hands of its allies and should be ready and willing to concede justice to its weaker neighbors in Jugoslavia.—Indianapolis News.

It is not a mere coincidence that the principal opponent to Italy's claims is the United States, in the person of its President; indeed, the fact that the fact that he alone has issued a statement upon the matter, Had Lloyd George and Clemenceau acquiesced in the terms of the treaty, that they would have signed the document likewise. To take away Flume from Italy, which recovered it at the cost of many brave lives and much treasure, and to give it to a people who but a short period before were not altogether unwillings, killing and maiming Italians in warfare, is to create a wound which may never be healed, and to cause a breach between ourselves and Italy which may be widened.—New York Herald.

The question cannot be considered as wholly one-sided, and its adjustment calls for a spirit and a policy of compromise, which will face conditions and deal with consequences. Even if it shall be necessary in this instance, to turn aside from theories and principles set up as abstract reasons before the concrete problem had been shaped for solution.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Probably no one is watching the outcome of Italy's recalcitrance more closely than Japan. Soon Japan, too, will seek enforcement of a "secret treaty," according to her certain rights in the far East, which, like the rights which Italy claims in the Adriatic littoral, are far from consistent with the "fourteen points." Let Italy have her way and there will be no denying Japan. The danger of setting such a precedent might well be considered by the American delegation as much as the obvious injustice of Italy's demands.—Philadelphia Press.

There will be many rumors, magnificent gestures, heated rhetoric; but the weight of moral judgment, with the economic resources of which the United States has such visible and such strategic command, will finally turn the settlement of the Adriatic controversy along the lines indicated by President Wilson.—New York Evening Post.

As to what he will hear from home, the President need have no misgivings. Far better would it have been to have stirred not a step from Washington that to have countenanced a proposition to take by the throat the countries to whom he has said that there shall be no discrimination between those to whom we wish to be just and those to whom we do not wish to be just, and that we must have a justice that plays no favorites. Had he been disposed to be harsher or more rigorous, he would have characterized the projected seizure as an attempted grab not to say a giant stride in the direction of imperialism.—Brooklyn Eagle.

School Notes.

We were at Walton last Friday when the four High Schools of the south end of the county engaged in the preliminary contest. The school auditorium was filled to its capacity with interested school people and much enthusiasm prevailed. The contest passed off with no unpleasant incident, and Verona, I believe, for the first time won in the contest. Verona has the highest record in High School course, consequently has reason to be proud of her victory.

After the contest the crowd was entertained by two games of basketball between Dry Ridge and Walton. The Walton girls and boys were victorious in each of these contests.

A musical entertainment was given in the evening by Mrs. D. B. Wallace's class. We were unable to be present this evening, but understand the entertainment was a success.

We go to Richmond on the 25th of April for the Convention of Superintendents, and will be out of the county most of the week. The examination for Common School Diploma will be held May 8th and 10th at Petersburg, Burlington and Walton. The examinations are held in these different places for the convenience of the pupils for examination.

The Board of Education will meet May 6th. We insist that every member be present for there is business to be done and the attention of the entire board.

What's the Matter With Pendleton County?

From the standpoint of view of a man up a tree, it would appear that the Fiscal Court of Pendleton county is too loose in allowing bills. Judging from some bills allowed in the past, we have come to the conclusion that if one would have the gall to present a bill for killing a saw-safras-root, it would be allowed. In many instances bills are allowed without investigation, and the taxpayers' money goes up in smoke.—Falmouth Outlook.

The roads of Pendleton county are getting in a deplorable condition. In fact, the Washington Trace road is now almost impassable. There is no relief in sight, as the money that is now collected for road purposes is hardly a drop in the bucket. There is one thing certain, the citizen of Pendleton county will never vote an additional tax as long as the present system of repairing the roads is in vogue. There are many roads that could be obtained for the money now being spent. The county is now ripe to change the present ancient system of repairing the roads for some good method that will bring relief.—Falmouth Outlook.

If we were to be tried on the charge of wilful murder, we do not know a place on earth we would rather stand trial than right here in Pendleton county. When a crime is committed there immediately springs up an army of sympathizers, who know nothing about the case whatever, for the party who is charged with the crime. These sympathizers are not confined to the riff-raff element, but reputable citizens and even officers of the law, and they throw cold water on the evidence produced. This condition is deplorable to say the least; it breeds crime; it encourages lawlessness. But there is a reason on the part of some people for throwing cold water. It is true that a man charged with a crime is innocent in the sight of the law until he is found guilty, but why this sympathetic influence?—Falmouth Outlook.

THE AMERICAN MULE.

Twenty-nine thousand native-born American mules served with the American army in France during the late war, of which a few over 5,000 fell on the field of duty and honor. Something over 300,000 horses were purchased for the army, but of these not over 200,000 got to France, and of these 33,310 were killed, or had died from various causes when the last count was made. The War Department has been selling large numbers of horses and mules since the armistice was signed, but between 80,000 and 100,000 of these animals will be retained, either in this country or for use by our army of occupation.

This story does not, indeed, cover the whole achievement of either the American mule or the American horse. Long before our country began to accumulate these animals for war purposes, agents of the British and French governments were busy in America buying livestock, and horses and mules went forward by the thousands.

The mortality among these animals was at times very large. There was a saying at one time that the average life of the artillery horse after he got to the first line was only three days, but losses among horses were as greatly exaggerated as losses among men. As a matter of fact, the greatest care was taken to protect the horses and mules for the single reason that many of the field pieces could neither retire nor advance if the animals were killed, and as a rule the livestock was taken to the rear after the guns had been brought up. Nevertheless the men could throw themselves on the ground under a heavy fire, and it was usually difficult to force the livestock to seek safety.

The European countries were, on the whole, well supplied with cavalry and artillery horses when the war came, but the American mule was almost unknown in Europe at the time. But the mule proved its value and will not soon be forgotten.

METHODISTS CHANGE DATE

CAMPAIGN FOR $35,000,000 IN M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH, CENTENARY DRIVE WILL BE HELD MAY 18-25.

The date for the Methodist Centenary financial campaign has changed from April 27-May 4 to May 18-25, of official announcement of which is being made throughout the length and breadth of Methodism today. Several weeks ago it was found necessary to change the April date in order not to interfere with the Government plans for the forthcoming Victory Loan Drive. The selection of another date has been held in abeyance pending the decision from Washington which was forwarded headquarters of the M. E. Church, South, recently.

The change in this date is of wide import to all Methodists who are, at this time, lining up plans of definite action regarding their part as individuals in the campaign. Dr. W. B. Brauchamp, Secretary of the Centenary Commission, stated today that he and other Centenary workers at headquarters have, through Secretary Carter Glass, pledged the loyal support of all Southern Methodists to the government at this crucial hour and that in setting May 18-25 as a date for the Centenary drive, he knows he will have the immediate and hearty cooperation of all conference executives, directors, field representatives and all workers connected with the campaign.

The Methodist Centenary financial campaign is the largest religious campaign undertaken in the history of the world. One hundred and fifteen million dollars is the goal set—Southern Methodists pledging themselves to raise thirty-five million of that sum.

CHINA HAS A VERY IMPORTANT ROLE

PRACTICALLY ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COOLIES SENT TO FRANCE.

What optimist a generation ago would have thought that backward China would have a hand in the settlement of a world war? But China is having a very important role in the great war that is just being brought to a close. Not as soldiers—fighting men—but as laborers behind the front lines. And just as many allied troops have been released for other duties. Practically one hundred and fifty thousand of these coolies have been transported by way of the Suez to France. This work has been done under the direction of the British Government and Church Missionaries. Among these missionaries are many of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which is just finishing the details of its campaign May 18-25 to secure $35,000,000 to further the work of the kind that is being done in France and other places.

BANDING TOGETHER TO SPREAD GOSPEL

Nashville, Tenn.—One hundred and forty thousand Southern Methodists have signed their determination to pray for the success of the missionary work of the M. E. Church, South, and for the spread of Christianity throughout the world. These people have not only decided to do this, but have banded together in a league known as the Fellowship of Intercession, each signing a small card which it is thought will make the cause for which they pray more definite in the minds of the signers of the cards.

Dr. S. A. Neblett, secretary of the Department of Intercession of the denomination, stated to a reporter that the way in which the prayer cards were coming in was an inspiration. From two thousand to five thousand of these are opened in the mail every morning, the number of 140,000 representing the complete total up to date.

FIVE HUNDRED WOMEN WANTED

Nashville, Tenn.—Five hundred young women are wanted at once by the Women's Missionary Council of the M. E. Church, South. They are wanted for services and missionaries of the church in both the home and foreign fields and the best type of womanhood is asked for. Women to whom the desire to serve has come very keenly, women whom the spirit of the hour has gripped earnestly, this is the type with whom the church wishes to make connection for various forms of missionary endeavor.

The particular forms of missionary work open to the young women of the South are in the medical, evangelistic and educational departments in the mission fields. One hundred and fifty are wanted as evangelists and deaconesses; two hundred and fifty are wanted as teachers and one hundred are wanted as doctors and nurses. The call has particularly gone out for young women of college education in order that they may be able to grasp quickly the leadership in the work which the church needs.

The rallying of these young women is made possible through the Centenary of the church which is being observed this year. A fund of $35,000,000 will be raised soon, and this money will make possible the sending of many missionaries to Africa, Japan, China, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba, Korea and in the home field.

Orchard Information

IRRIGATION OF AN ORCHARD

Plan Outlined for Proper Distribution of Water in Furrows—Grade Varies Widely.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In irrigating orchards by the furrow method the length of the lateral ditches or furrows is governed by the size of the orchard and character of the soil.

The rows of citrus trees seldom exceed 40 rods in length, but the apple orchards of the northwest are larger as a rule. Even in large tracts it is doubtful if it ever pays to run water in furrows more than about 600 feet. Where the soil is open and water sinks readily through it, short furrows should be used, otherwise much water is lost in deep percolation on the upper part of the tract. Prof. H. Culbertson of San Diego County, Cal., after a careful investigation of this subject has reached the conclusion that on sandy or gravelly soil having a steep slope the proper length of furrows is 200 feet, whereas on heavier soils and flatter slopes the length may be increased to 600 feet.

The grade of furrows varies quite widely. In flat valleys it often is not possible to obtain a fall greater than 1 inch to 100 feet, whereas on steep slopes the fall may reach 20 inches per 100 feet. On ordinary soils a grade of 3 to 4 inches is to be preferred; and where the fall exceeds 8 to 10 inches to 100 feet the trees should be set out in such a way as to decrease the slope of the furrows.

The number of furrows in orchards depends on the age of the trees, the space between the rows, the depth of furrow, and the character of the soil. Nursery stock is irrigated by one or two furrows and young trees by two to four. A common spacing for shallow furrows is 2½ feet, but deeper furrows are 3 to 4 feet apart. The general trend of orchard practice is toward deep rather than shallow furrows, a depth of 8 inches being used in many instances.

In spacing furrows chief consideration should be given to the lateral movement of moisture in the soil on each side of the furrows, so as to insure a fairly uniform distribution of moisture.

The furrowing implement most commonly used by the citrus orchardists of southern California consists of a sulky frame to which are attached two or three mold-board plows. Those who prefer a small number of deep furrows use a 12 to 14-inch corn lister. In the Payette Valley, Idaho, 200 or more miner's inches are turned into the head ditch and divided up by means of wooden spouts into a like number of furrows. On steep ground much smaller streams are used. The length of the furrow varies from 300 feet on steep slopes to 600 feet and more on flat slopes. The time required to moisten the soil depends on the length of the furrow and the nature of the soil. In this locality it varies from three to 36 hours.

A 20-acre orchard tract under the Sunnyside canal in the Yakima Valley, Irrigating an Apple Orchard by the Furrow Method.

Wash., is watered four times in each season with 14 miner's inches (0.35 cubic foot per second). Three furrows are made between the rows, which are 40 rods long. The total supply is applied to one-half the orchard (ten acres) and kept on 48 hours.

On the heavy loams of the apple orchards on the east bench of the Bitter Root river, Mont., Prof. R. W. Fisher, formerly horticulturist of the agricultural college of Montana, has found, as a result of experimenting, that it requires from 12 to 14 hours to moisten the soil in furrow irrigation 4 feet deep and 2 feet sideways.

In 1908 an orchardist of Hood River, Ore., irrigated three acres of apple trees in furrows 350 feet long, spaced a foot apart. About a miner's inch of water was turned into each alternate furrow from a wooden head flume and kept on for about 48 hours. After the soil had become sufficiently dry it was cultivated, after in eight or ten days thereafter water was turned into the alternate rows, which were left dry during the first irrigation.

Product of Some Orchards. Some orchards produce mainly a crop of insects for the chickens.

Tobacco Expert Favors Large Acreage.

Jordan Owen, who has been a producer of tobacco and later engaged in the sale of tobacco as a warehouseman in Louisville, in an interview relative to a meeting which was held there some days since advising the farmers to reduce the acreage of tobacco and raise a finer quality, stated: "I beg leave to differ materially in the sentiment of that meeting, both as to acreage and quality. I would advise the increase in acreage and more pounds instead of quality, as the demand for higher grades is limited and more demands for lower grades for home consumption and foreign countries as well. I am at a loss to know what is alarming in prices of tobacco when a large per cent. of tobacco sold at high prices and the remainder of the crop is now selling at a good figure."

"Foreign countries produced before the war 500,000,000 pounds of tobacco annually. The statistics show that during the five years of war only 100,000,000 lbs. annually were produced, leaving a deficit of over 400,000,000 pounds of tobacco annually."

"When the foreign countries produced over 500,000,000 pounds of tobacco they bought largely in the United States in addition to their production. At the lowest estimate it will take two or three years for foreign countries to supply and secure a stock of tobacco for their various countries, and it is my opinion remunerative prices will be realized during that period. Should the farmers be induced to reduce their acreage one-half or one-third, millions of dollars will be lost to the farmers of Kentucky."

The Revised Covenant.

Opposition to the League of Nations on the part of American political leaders must have been aimed against the fundamental idea of such a covenant and not against the terms of the proposed agreement.

The publication of the revised draft of that instrument clearly indicates the meeting of the objections hitherto raised and the dismantling of the safeguards demanded in the free, liberal and nation wide discussion that followed its first promulgations.

The provision has been made for the preservation of the Monroe Doctrine for the right of withdrawal from the league and the exclusion of domestic and internal affairs, such as immigration and the tariff, from the scope of the pact. Absolute choice is also given to the nations to accept or refuse the assignments to act as mandatory over territories and peoples under the control of the league.

Radicals at Washington, fixed in definite purpose to defeat the plan, still insist that the terms are vague and that the country is committed to the danger of guaranteeing the territorial integrity of Europe and Asia.

To students of the conference's efforts at an acceptable draft of a constitution there are two provisions that will appeal strongly. The first is that which permits any self-governing country, which includes Germany and Austria, to apply for membership in the league and to be admitted upon giving guarantees of good faith in keeping the terms of the instrument.

The second is the rule calling for unanimous agreement by the council in major matters, thus destroying the fear of the domination of the majority of strong states over the minority of the weaker ones.

Human perfection is next to impossible of achievement. If it is the intention of the leaders and rulers of the peoples of the world to enter into an harmonious undertaking against war, suffering and disease, the revised covenant will serve the purpose admirably.

If execrable conduct and sordid greed are masked behind the polite professions of the great Powers then the pact will be as worthless as Belgium's treaty of neutrality.—Enquirer.

MIDDLE WEST CROPS SAFE.

Damage in North Not As Bad As Was Expected.

Chicago, April 27.—Grain and fruit crops in the Middle West escaped practically unscathed from the abnormally cold spring weather of the past few days, reports indicate.

The crops, experts said, may be slightly retarded, but with favorable weather conditions record yields may be anticipated.

Slight damage was reported to alfalfa and fruit buds in the Missouri valley, despite the fact the freezing was noted in many places. Northern Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Kansas made similar reports.

Prof. Andrew Boss, University of Minnesota, said growth has not progressed sufficiently for the crops to be damaged. He said unusual crops could be expected under favorable weather conditions, but discouraged hopes for a drop in prices.

"There can be no decline in prices in the face of the great world demand," he said.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Burlington Baptist church will give a fish fry and supper at Library Hall next Saturday evening. All are invited to come and bring their pocketbooks and appetites.

Weather Can't Stop Tanks

NOTHING short of a flood will stop the sixteen real fighting tanks which will tour the Fourth Federal Reserve District in the interest of the Victory Loan, beginning April 14.

The tanks of the six-ton whip type have been loaned by the War Department together with crews fresh from the western front where they did such efficient work in driving the Huns toward the Rhine. Members of these tank crews say that no matter how bad the roads may be in some sections of the district the tanks will be able to travel and make play of it.

These crews know because they drove tanks just like these across trenches and through barbed wire entanglements in battle.

Each tank carries a driver and pilot with ready machine gun mounted in a moving turret. The accompanying photograph shows one of these tanks moving up hill in mud which would very quickly stop anything less powerful.

A touring car carrying salesmen and speakers will make the trip with each tank so that meetings may be held wherever a crowd gathers to watch the tanks maneuver. In many instances these speakers will be veterans of Chateau Thierry, San Mihiel or the Argonne Woods who bear wound stripes to bear witness to their experiences.

The tanks will start out April 14 and keep moving until the end of the loan.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Butler, of Verona, were in Burlington last Friday afternoon making a conveyance in a land deal which Mr. Butler was completing, the conveyance being to F. E. Ratliff, cashier of the National Bank at Pikeville, this State. The conveyance transferred the land at Verona which Mr. Butler bought some time since of Dr. W. E. Sleet and Mrs. J. C. Hume, heirs of the late Benjamin Sleet. Mr. Butler came to this county from Paris, Bourbon county, and has bought and sold several pieces of Boone county real estate, in each instance making a nice profit. Besides he has brought several persons from other counties in the State who have invested in Boone county land at good prices. It may be that Mr. Butler will return to Bourbon county in which event Boone county will lose a most excellent gentleman.

Jas. M. Conner, and son, Kirby, spent a short time in Burlington last Friday afternoon. While here Kirby called at the County Clerk's office and obtained a license for a fine coon dog, and as they were headed toward the Lick creek possessions it is inferred that coons are not so numerous in that locality as they were a week since. J. M. is as great an admirer of a good fox dog as he was 25 or 30 years ago when a pack of hounds made music that was sweet to his ears and enticed him from his farm labor on many occasions.

Several weeks ago a couple of young men representing themselves to be discharged soldiers canvassed Burlington and other towns in this county soliciting subscriptions for "The Loyal American," a monthly paper purporting to be published in Cincinnati. The subscription was a dollar a year and quite a number in Burlington subscribed for the paper, but up to this time the "Loyal American" has not put in its appearance, and many are beginning to think they have been faked again.

Prof. R. H. Carter, of Petersburg, was in Burlington last Friday afternoon, attending the spelling contest. The professor reported the assembling of the contest for the enlargement of the Petersburg High School building, the brick being a portion of those used in one of the distillery war home buildings at that place. The professor had just returned from Lexington.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Green and Mrs. Laura Botts, of Bellevue neighborhood, entertained their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers and their son, and Mr. and Mrs. George E. Smith and two daughters, Misses Amy and Ruth, of Lawrenceburg, last Sunday.

To raze what was known as the cupola at the Petersburg distillery it will be necessary to dynamite it, which will be done by Edgar C. Riley, who purchased it and needs the material in the erection of the garage which he and his nephew are building.

Very few of the farmers are done breaking land for corn, as the weather last week was not favorable for that work. By the time the ground would be dry enough to plow a rain would come and block proceedings along that line.

Allie Grant, who was among the first Boone county boys to go overseas, arrived at home last Sunday, having been honorably discharged. He saw and took part in much of the activities at the front but got through without a scratch.

Colia Kelly and Bluford Wingate, of Carlton precinct, to whom the Victory Loan work was assigned have turned the work over to Dr. I. E. Carlyle, he having kindly consented to take it off their hands.

April was not as favorable a month for farm work as March, and the ground gained during March was lost during April, and the farmers are not much further along than usual with their spring work.

Chimney swallows put in their appearance last week and the chimney the latter part of the week made life somewhat of a burden for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Green and Mrs. Laura Botts, of Bellevue neighborhood, were pleasant callers at this office last Monday afternoon.

Next Monday is county court.

REQ TRIANGLE SERVICE FOR CZECHO-SLOVAK SOLDIERS

The Amerienn Y. M. C. A. is now serving the soldiers of the Czecho-Slovak armies. The picture shows a Red Triangle worker distributing cigarettes to the fighting men of the new republic.

JUSTICE FOR THE Y. M. C. A.

This is a period of charges, counter-charges and investigations. Officials of the war and navy departments and officers of the army, navy and marine corps will be summoned before investigating committees to tell what they did in the war, and those inclined to find fault will never be quite satisfied with official reports. Many mistakes will be recorded, but we believe much, if not all, of our trouble will be traced directly to lack of adequate preparation in the first instance.

The American Red Cross and the various welfare bodies will come in for their share of criticism. As a matter of fact, the Y. M. C. A. already has been made a target for charges involving conflict of religious beliefs between workers and soldiers and sailors. The Y. M. C. A. has been charged with profiteering in its conduct of canteens. The institution is a nonsectarian body, and it would hardly seem possible there were many of its numerous workers who found time in the discharge of their duties to engage in religious arguments with those making use of its facilities. Protestant and Catholic alike were made welcome and any denomination could conduct religious services in their "huts."

The charge of "profiteering," a familiar epithet of the inquisitive, has fallen to the ground. It has been shown that army authorities asked the Y. M. C. A. to take over the management of the canteens, but failed to give it the advantage of the army purchase prices, transportation and other advantages which the army unit prices as overhead charges. The Y. M. C. A. only attempted to put the canteens on a self-supporting basis, and naturally, prices could not remain at the low army figure. Nothing was given away at the canteens except that men going to or coming from the front got chocolate, cigarettes and hot coffee without charge. After there had been general complaint on account of these increases, there was an investigation and army authorities, realizing the hardship under which the Y. M. C. A. had been placed, decided to furnish the supplies at cost and look to the Y. M. C. A. to manage the canteens. No criticism has been heard since this program became effective.

If there is fault to be found with the Y. M. C. A. it no doubt will be that it willingly assumed every burden thrust upon it and tried to do too much.

SIXTY-THREE "Y" MEN DECORATED

Chicago.—The Y. M. C. A. carried the Red Triangle into the camps and trenches abroad at a cost of 53 lives, a sacrifice proportionately one-quarter as great as that in the American army, according to a statement issued by the national war work council of the Y. M. C. A. Of these fatalities 35 were due to disease, and the remainder to shell-fire, bombs, gas-fumes, drowning and wounds. Ten of these were women, one of whom was killed by shell fire and the others in a German raid.

There were also 55 non-fatal casualties. These were done principally to machine gun fire, shell-fire, and motor transport accidents. Numerous cases of slight wounds and gasings which were attended at dressing stations, but were not reported to headquarters, are not included. These casualties occurred in a force which at no time exceeded 9,000 workers, of whom it is reckoned that more than one-half were never sent to the front, being employed in the hundreds of huts maintained throughout the training areas and the "leave areas."

Sixty-three "Y" workers were decorated, while in all more than 152 received official recognition for distinguished service. Thirteen of these were decorated with the Croix de Guerre, while 48 received other decorations. Of these, three received the Distinguished Service Cross, three the Order of St. Stanislas, five the Italian Cavaliere del Corona, 38 the Italian War Cross, and one the French decoration of the Corps d'Armee. Seven were cited for the Croix de Guerre, and seven for other decorations, six commended for meritorious conduct, and twenty-nine received honorable mention in dispatches. Several units were cited in their entirety, those serving with the Third Division being cited twice. More than a score more reported decorations have not yet been confirmed.

Not one of these men under thirty was fit for military duty, but the citations show that they carried on with the same courage and spirit that idealized Americans throughout the war. These records show that they went over the top with the assaulting waves, that they exposed themselves under machine gun fire, that they ministered to the wounded, that they worked indefatigably as stretcher-bearers, and that they drove ambulances into the midst of battle to rescue the wounded.

A New Shock for the British. London.—The American soldier's capacity for chocolate is a never-ending source of wonder to Britishers, a wonder that has just been given a new stimulus by a contract the Y. M. C. A. has closed to take over a plant and manufacture chocolates—300 tons of chocolate a month.

WOUNDED BY SHELL THAT KILLED FOUR MEN

Under shell fire and gas for three weeks, the buildings in which he ran his canteen hit six times, and finally knocked out by a shell which killed four men, wounded thirty and put him in a hospital for two months, Guy A. Willis, a Grand Rapids, Mich., lumberman, has returned on crutches from France, evidence of the zeal with which Y. M. C. A. canteen men worked with the troops in the St. Mihiel and Argonne drives.

Willis was attached to the Third Hundred and Fifty-fifth regiment, Eighty-ninth division, in the Toul sector, which the division held until the St. Mihiel drive began. Willis Y. M. C. A. outfit had a canteen near Mont Sec, at Beaumont, and one of his pleasant jobs was to drive almost daily around the famous Dead Man's curve on trips to get supplies for his canteen. Willis entered Henry, in the St. Mihiel drive, three hours after the Germans had been thrown out of it.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days. I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go. I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of my getting anything to help me. One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle. I am now a well woman and feeling fine and this cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful backache. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today.

A HOT SPOT Chalmers flattens the hills

A GREAT many persons enjoy the rare luxury of fooling themselves about the hill-climbing ability of their prized car.

If you put enough power underneath the bonnet you'll get over any hill this side of the Alps.

But big engines don't make the best hill-climbers any more than a bear can climb a tree faster than a cat.

Take the Hot Spot Chalmers. You don't have to make up your mind a quarter of a mile away to turn loose the power for a fast run up the hill.

You can slow down and take it at a slow speed. For it "hangs on" and goes over without a whimper. That is the real test of a hill-climbing car. Try it.

Just why a Chalmers flattens the hill is explained in three major words: Hot Spot and Ram's-horn. These simple little devices mean that for every pint of gas that goes into the engine out comes every bit of power that Mother Nature stored away in that pint.

It means you are getting more for your money every time the engine "turns over" than with any other car.

Which ought to make anyone buying a car now take a look at this present day Hot Spot Chalmers.

Important to Wool Growers

To Boone County Wool Growers: Your association adopted the following regulations for handling this year's wool clip:

Be sure that the wool is thoroughly dry before beginning to shear.

Have a clean place in which to shear and sack your wool.

Do not allow hay seed or other litter to get into the wool.

Scattering burs should be picked out. Where they are very thick it may not pay to do so. Burry wool will have to be sold at a discount.

After removing all tags fold the fleece with the inside out and tie with some small twine. Do not use binder twine. All wool not tied and wool tied with binder twine will be docked two cents per pound.

It is best to sack the wool as soon as sheared as trash is apt to get into it if it lies in the barn. Have sack needle on hand to sew the sacks. Keep them where they will not absorb moisture.

Place rejections, such as cotts, black, seedy, burry, merino and dead wool in a sack to themselves.

Sacks will be kept at Kelly's store, Edgemoor, J. W. Graff's, Bullittsville, J. C. Secor's, Idlewild. In other parts of the county your pooling solicitor will supply you. Sacks will be furnished free, but do not get more than you will need as we do not want empty sacks to carry over to another year. A sack will hold from 25 to 30 pounds.

J. H. STEVENS,
President.

Takes off Hat to Red Cross

Luther Surface, of Petersburg, who returned from France a few days since sends the Recorder the following for publication:

"Back home to stay, and I want to give my thanks to the Red Cross—and I will take my hat off to anyone that belongs to the Red Cross for they saved me. As Yankies thought the Red Cross was the best of all. If you want to know how the Red Cross treated us Yankies you can see me any time as I spent one year in France and saw the most of France, and the Red Cross was with us Yankies all the time. I would like to thank all the other organizations, but I'm afraid Mr. Riddell wouldn't want to print so much, so I thank all the organizations."

Awarded the Croix de Guerre

Ray O. Edwards, brother of Mrs. G. W. Tolin, has been decorated with the croix de guerre with gold star, army corps decoration. The citation is as follows:

"With the approbation of the commander-in-chief of the A. E. F. in France, the Marshal of France, commander-in-chief of the French armies of the East, cited in the order of the army corps. Lieut. Ray O. Edwards, 12 Reg. Artillery, from October 3-11, 1918, near Blauernmont. He displayed exceptional courage and great zeal. On the occasion he exposed himself to avoid enemy bombardment in order to verify the range of his guns."

At Gen. Headquarters, Dec. 26, 1918.

One of Boone's First.

Luther Surface an overseas soldier returned to his home in Petersburg a few days ago, having taken part in several of the hardest battles in which the Americans were engaged in France, and was cited once for his bravery. The first Boone county increment was composed of three selects—Luther Surface, Stanley Cason and Walton Rice. Cason died of pneumonia at Camp Taylor and Rice was discharged shortly after going into camp because of defective feet, leaving Surface the only one of Boone's first increment who saw service at the front.

Having a Good Time

A post card received at this office Tuesday from Philip Taliaferro, reads: "I am having a delightful time on my furlough in Southern France, the Alps and along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea. Have also taken a short trip over into Italy. Hope to be home by mid-summer." The card was postmarked April 12th.

Governors for Pair

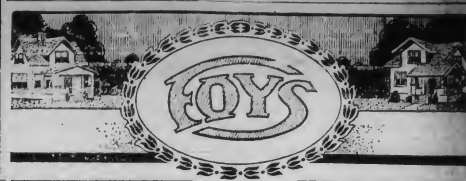

Washington. — It is reported that Senator-elect A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, and Senator-elect Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, are arranging a senatorial pair under the terms of which both will continue to serve as Governors of their respective states until their gubernatorial terms expire.

Stanley's term as Governor of Kentucky will expire next December and Edge's term as Governor of New Jersey will end next January. Stanley is a Democrat and Edge is a Republican.

The thought of a senatorial pair would mean that Kentucky and New Jersey would be represented in the Senate by one Senator each until next January. The political control of the Senate would not be changed in any way, however, owing to the fact that they are of opposite political faiths.

It is said the reasons for the desire to serve out their terms as Governors are very much the same and are based in a desire to prevent control of the states going to antagonistic factions.

"WHEN YOU BUY---THINK ECONOMY"

There's Only One Way to Buy Paint!

BUY WITH A VISION. Look ahead three or four years and determine that the paint you use will Protect and Preserve as well as beautify four years from now. It takes high-grade paint to do this but you save money in the long run. This kind of paint is an investment. The other kind—inferior paint, cheap paint—is an extravagance for it does not contain the ingredients to Protect and Preserve (its not lasting) and it beautifies for only a short period. After a few months under the hot scorching sun, then the winter of snow and hail it shows its true quality—CHEAPNESS.

FOY'S READY MIXED PAINT is recognized the nation over as one of the High-Grade Paints. It Protects, Preserves and Beautifies—not for one year, but for several. Its a real investment—costs very little more than cheap, inferior paint but worth many times as much.

Paint With A Vision—Foy's 2.95 Gal.

To The Man Who Mixes His Own Paint

You'll save money by getting our prices on Pure Raw Linseed Oil. The price we paid for our present supply enables us to sell it at considerably less than the market quotations and still make the ordinary profit. Our Price is always based on the quotations in Enquirer each day. If the market quotation is $1.88—our Price will be $1.77—that is a saving of 6% taking out of your pocket on Pure Raw Linseed Oil.

LAND ADVANCES.

The sale of a 250-acre Henderson county farm to Union county breeders of Jersey cattle at $250 an acre indicates that not all of the high priced land in Kentucky lies in the tobacco sections. The livestock breeder, or feeder, who buys a farm acquires a savings bank in the form of soil which is from year to year enriched. The tobacco grower has an opportunity for far greater acreage returns for a short time, but unless he wisely combine stock raising and other fertilization it increases the value of the land. Of course, he may fall to make a satisfactory return upon the cattle feeding if he does not know his business. Nowadays anyone who is a fairly discreet buyer or breeder should make a satisfactory profit upon dairy cattle or market animals.

The wonderfully fertile lands of the Western counties seem at last to be gaining recognition in the eyes of buyers. Where their purchases devote their farms to livestock production they will store up fertility which will guard them against any probable decline of present prices for everything that is produced from or upon the soil.

J. C. Hume and wife of Richmond, were business visitors to Burlington last Friday afternoon.

River Traffic Reviving.

A curious result of the increase of freight and passenger rates on railways all over the country is a revival of activity on the inland waterways. The river steam boats, such few of them as were still struggling against the rival that ended their prosperity, have had a surprising increase of business, for they are still allowed to charge what they please and they have seized the opportunity and the possibility to charge for their services appreciably less than is demanded over the land routes, and already their patronage is considerable. Of course the boats famed in song and story are all gone, but their humble successors are still in operation or available, and not a few people on the Mississippi and its tributaries are again really traveling in the way immortalized by Mark Twain and John Hay. In ordinary circumstances, this is a competition which those engaged in it would be allowed to fight out without interference, but now it is hard to tell what will be the result. The railways have a most powerful protector—one that may view severely the prospect of an increase in their already sufficient deficit—and the boat men may find themselves "regulated" in their ambitious effort to regain their old position. Popular sympathy, however, may save them, and everything with a liking for the antique and the picturesque will wish them good luck.—New York Times.

What Excuse Will You Have?

When Bill Smith comes home shortly from France, possibly minus a leg or an arm or an eye, with a foot twisted from a trench or a lung like a dry sponge from the effects of the deadly Boche gas, you will give him the glad hand.

"Mighty glad to see you back alive, Bill," you'll say, heartily. "How are you, anyway, old top?"

And Bill Smith, who has been down to hell and managed to crawl back by the skin of his teeth, will grin at you cheerfully. "Slightly disfigured, but still in the ring," he'll reply.

And then you will want to hear all about it. You'll get Bill Smith away from the crowd, if you happen to meet him down town, and remembering his weakness for buttermilk you'll entice him slowly and painfully up to Jackson's place. And the tinkle of the ice in the glass will be music to buttermilk-thirsty Bill Smith, veteran.

Bill Smith will tell you the whole story. There will be times when he will stop, shuddering, and close his eyes to shut out some horrible memory.

Again he will stroke his forehead dazedly, trying to recall just how this or that fellow you knew went under. His muscles will twitch when he tells you about going over the top, and his hand will steal down uncertainly to ease the itching between the toes of the foot that isn't there any more.

And you'll look at Bill Smith with an immeasurable awe and thank your lucky stars that you didn't know him.

And after a while Bill Smith will turn upon you unexpectedly and ask:

"John, how many Liberty Bonds did you buy?"

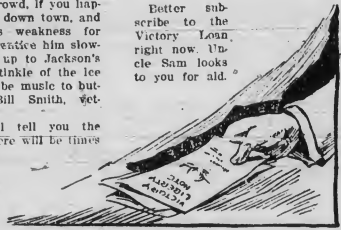

Then you'll want the earth to open up and swallow you.

And you'll deserve all, and more, of the shame and humiliation that will overwhelm you.

And, God help you, what excuse will you have to offer?

Better be ready to look Bill Smith in the eye, man to man.

Better subscribe to the Victory Loan, right now. Uncle Sam looks to you for aid.

How These Band Boys CAN Play-- But They Worked, Too, Over There

REHEARSALS and concerts were by no means all of the routine of the members of the two American overseas bands which have started out for a concert trip through the Fourth Federal Reserve District in order to help put over the Victory Loan. The two bands are the 135th Field Artillery Band, in charge of Harry F. Clarke of Cleveland, and the 136th Infantry Band, commanded by Lieutenant Alfred Hartzell of Cincinnati.

All the members of both bands saw fighting on three sectors in France and showed their proficiency with rifle and bayonet, grenades and entrenching tools as well as with band instruments.

One of the members of the Field Artillery Band, Benjamin H. Carmichael, was a mechanic in Cleveland before he enlisted and went overseas. In France he drove the official automobile for Colonel Dudley J. Hard for several months. He was through the fighting in the Marbache sector, the Argonne, the Meuse, St. Mihiel and the Trossen front and ate his Thanksgiving dinner at Metz, Germany.

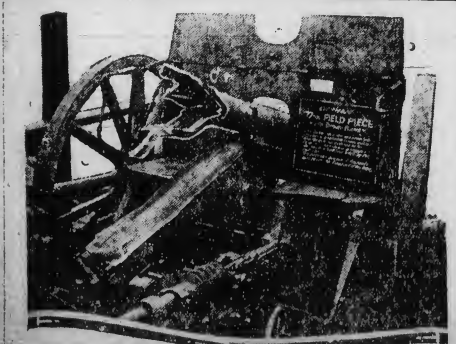

Other members of these two bands had telephone lines under shell fire or drove ammunition trucks. The instruments of the 135th Band were lost for three months and during this time they performed army routine with their fellows.

Both these bands are scheduled for a two weeks' trip through the District beginning April 21, and may remain out a third week.

Seven Huns Died Here

RETRIBUTION was swift and sure for the gunners who manned the 77-millimeter German field piece which was a feature on one of the war trophy trains which left Cleveland April 13 for a swing through the Fourth Federal Reserve District in behalf of the Victory Loan campaign.

When the position of this gun, shown in the accompanying picture, was taken by Canadian troops, seven German gunners were found dead inside it. Their blood still spattered the carriage. The barrel is mangled as the result of the explosion of a defective shell. This was at Vinny Ridge, where so many Canadians died gloriously.

An equally interesting exhibit on the train is a German 100th or 210-millimeter gun with a range of 18 miles.

There is also a 180-millimeter field gun of bronze, originally made by the Russians but captured from them by the Germans and used on the western front. It was then captured by the Canadians and turned against the Huns.

RUFUS POSSUM MAKES A PURCHASE.

Rufus Possum strolled leisurely out of his home in the old oak tree, stretched his arms, shook his tail vigorously several times, and sat down on the front steps to collect his thoughts.

While basking lazily in the sun, he heard a thump coming over the hill. He laid down his pipe, adjusted his glasses, and waited in silence and curiosity to see whom the visitor might be.

"Ah!" he exclaimed in a not overly pleased manner, "heh, com dat ol' Jack Rabbit again, and ah reckons he's ambulating 'round lookin' for someone to buy his wares."

"I am a good feller, nuffin rabbit anyhow."

"Good morning, Mr. Possum," shouted Mr. Rabbit at the top of his voice.

"Tee an awful busy man, Mistah Rabbit, an' if you got much to say, be quick about it, 'cause I ain't got no time for fumfuddles."

"Well," began Mr. Rabbit, "seeing that we are both very busy, I guess we shouldn't take the time to talk about my money-making schemes, because really, Mr. Possum, there are so many folks who want to talk business with me, that I must be getting along. Good day, Mr. Possum."

The KITCHEN CABINET

The true glory of any nation is in the living temple of a loyal, industrious, and upright people.

SUMMER DISHES.

POTTED CHICKEN.—Take the cold roast chicken, rejecting the skin and fat, chop fine and to every pint allow a half cupful of chopped tongue or ham. Put the bones left from the chicken into a saucepan, add one pint of cold water and boil down to less than half a pint. Strain and remove the fat. Pound the chicken, ham or tongue to a smooth paste, adding a little of the liquor to moisten, season with cayenne, nutmeg and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Put into small jars or pots and press down tightly. Cover the jars with melted butter. Cover with paper moistened with white of egg and keep in a cool, dry place.

Jellied Chicken.—Cut up a four-pound chicken as for fricassee. Put it on to cook with one small onion, one bay leaf, one blade of mace, three cloves, pepper and salt to taste. Simmer slowly until the chicken is tender. When done cut it from the bones and skin. Put the bones and skin back into the kettle and simmer an hour. Cover one-fourth of a box of gelatin with a little cold water, and let it soak. Add the liquor, stir until dissolved, then strain. Taste and add more salt and pepper. There should be about one and a half pints of liquor when done. The next day take all the fat from the top of the jelly, then pour half of it into a square mold and stand on ice to harden. When hard put a layer of the chicken on top of the jelly, then slices of hard cooked eggs (using three), sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Then more chicken and eggs until all is used. Pour over this the remainder of the jelly, which should just cover the chicken. Let stand on ice over night before unmolding.

Tank Pilot Lost His "Pal" in Big Argonne Drive

Operating a machine gun in the turret of a light tank is no "joy ride" even under the best of conditions, and riding in a tank in the thick of battle over ground pitted with tank traps neatly camouflaged with sod, is hazardous enough to suit almost any one. Sergeant V. G. Morgan, gunner on one of the six-ton whippet tanks, which is to tour the Fourth Federal Reserve District for the Victory Loan, almost lost his life in a light Renault tank at Argonne Woods, September 26, 1918, when the tank plunged into a twelve-foot tank trap filled with water.

Harold Roberts, who was driving the tank in which Morgan was running, did lose his life, for he shoved Morgan out of the tank and gave him a chance to swim to safety, but was unable to save himself. For this act of heroism, Roberts' relatives were given a medal of honor in his name.

Sergeant Morgan went overseas with an artillery regiment but was transferred to the Tank Corps in February, 1918. He drove a light Renault tank, similar to one of the whippets, in action at St. Mihiel and Argonne Woods. His home is in Loganport, Ind.

TRYING THE KAISER.

The decision is said to have been reached by the allied nations in conference at Paris that the former Kaiser of Germany shall be placed on trial before an international tribunal for alleged offenses against international law during the late war and the Evening Post applauds that decision.

We take this position with no feeling of bloody-mindedness, and without the slightest wish that the Kaiser be made the scapegoat for others. On the other hand a trial of the Kaiser may serve to bring out the fact that the deposed monarch was not primarily responsible for the outrages in Belgium, the judicial murder of Capt. Fryatt, but was as has been claimed by some, simply a pawn in the hands of others.

Of course the allies have a right to punish the Kaiser for making the war. His offense there was against his own people; they may feel that they have punished him sufficiently by depriving him of his throne. But it should easily be possible at a trial of the Kaiser to bring out the fact in such a way that he cannot be depicted in the future. If the Kaiser did not drive Germany into the war, he knows what did. He can name the names of the war, and the persons who may name can give a chance to be heard. That the Kaiser himself did make the war, has always been our deliberate conviction, but if there is anything to be said on the other side, now is the time to say it.

Nor is this all. We have heard in the last few months that the Kaiser disclaims all responsibility for the burning of Louvain, the shooting of Capt. Fryatt and other acts of the late war that cannot be defended. But who, if not the Kaiser, was responsible? Surely the Kaiser is the best person to go to for the desired information. During the war he boasted that he was the Supreme War Lord, and that nothing was done without his authority. It is only right, therefore, that he should be arraigned, as the man responsible for what was done. He knows who did. Arraigned before an international tribunal, the chances are that he would tell his story, and the accuracy of that story could be checked by evidence.

The Evening Post repeats its statement that nothing that could happen would be any more likely to make the Kaiser a scapegoat. Nor do we think the allies would act wisely, even should the evidence justify it, in putting the deposed monarch to death. But, if guilty, he can be punished by exile, or imprisonment. It would be far better to punish the men who really perpetrated the crimes than to hold them all up against the German nation for a generation. Louisville Post.

Lodge Silences the Senators.

What appraisal will the people of the United States place upon the astonishing and unusual request—one directed to say order of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to his Republican colleagues to refrain from public expression of opinion of the newly adopted covenant of the League of Nations until a party conference can decide upon the attitude that should be adopted? Are they to understand that they are to be denied the benefit of the thought of their chosen representatives in the supreme body which is to ratify or reject the treaty containing the nations of the earth? It is the most fitting name for the caucus to make up the minds of the Senators for them, and that the consideration of the treaty is to be approached from a partisan starting point?

To answer these questions in the affirmative would be confessing complete bankruptcy of statesmanship within a great and historic political assembly. We hesitate to take this view. It is more reasonable to have the leadership of which Senator Lodge is the visible head, has been impressed by the recent events in Paris, and realizes the necessity of making a statement to retreat from the position assumed when the notable round robin protest was signed prior to the dissolution of the last Congress. In any event students of political history will have difficulty in discovering a parallel for this most extraordinary proceeding, which severe critics might liken to the issuing of an ukase by a Romanoff Czar—or Tammany Hall—Enquirer.

School Garden Work.

Paris.—Great interest is being taken by the pupils of the Paris schools in the school garden work, which will soon be under way. A supply of seed sufficient to keep 1,500 children busy in garden work has been received from the Agricultural Bureau at Washington.

It is the purpose of the schools to have every child interested this year in garden work as a recreation, as healthy and as a means of producing foodstuffs. Prof. Matthews, Federal Director of School Gardens for Kentucky, will be in Paris several days.

GOING BACK TO DIXIE

The South as the Best Habitat of the Negro.

Birmingham Age-Herald.

Southern negroes who migrated to the North, lured by promises of high wages, are coming back to the cotton fields of Dixie. Although in some parts of the South Chicago's appeal for help in solving the problem of idle negroes who went there in large numbers was not cordially received, a dispatch from Chicago states that employers and commercial organizations in many cities of Alabama, Louisiana and Georgia want the negroes to return and work in cotton, rice and sugar fields, and sawmills. It is stated that fifty colored families will leave today for the South and many more are expected to follow. So anxious are employers to get colored help that they are offering to pay transportation.

For a generation at least the experiences of colored folks who went North by the thousands will serve to keep them at home. None of those who freed cold and privation in new surroundings where they were neither understood nor appreciated will forget the lessons they have learned.

Regardless of what agitators, professional splitters and cranks of various sorts may have to say about the matter, the South, is the natural habitat of the negro. It is the one part of the country where he can always find employment and live cheaply. And as for the treatment the negro receives in the South, whatever injustices he may be subjected to, it is not countenanced by the better element of the southern people and as time goes on the constant agitation on the part of the press and leaders of both races will largely do away with the evils of which the negro has justly complained.

The industries, law-abiding, Southern negroes are on a friendly footing with the white people, and their relations have always been characterized by a spirit of mutual helpfulness. In the North the negro is pushed aside or ignored.

A Luckless Champion.

The New York World declared "overcome" the action of Senator Lodge as the sender of telegrams to keep the Senate closed until after a conference at which it may be determined whether a political issue can be made of the League of Nations.

The New York Sun replied: "The Sun does not hesitate to bring to the attention of the admirable intellect of its valued friend the hypothesis, perhaps in the World's opinion—that Mr. Lodge may honestly believe he is carrying out or endorsing the Wilsonian doctrine communicated by the President to a joint session of the two houses of Congress on February 11, 1915, when he said with his accustomed clearness of enunciation:

"The United States has no desire to interfere in European affairs or to act as arbiter in European territorial disputes." The Sun's editorial went to press some time during the evening of April 30 and was published May 1 in the news published. Lodge's interference as an arbiter in European affairs in the form of his telegram to the Italian Society in Boston endorsing Italy's claims to Fiume, it is evident that Senator Lodge was attempting to carry out the Wilsonian doctrine which the Sun refers, but the Sun's lack of champion of the disinterestedness of the Massachusetts statesman hardly is worse luck than the lack of other journalistic politicians who have from time to time striven to protect his mildness has been above politics as the conference in Paris has proceeded. —Courier-Journal.

U. S. Business on Sound Basis.

Washington, May 4.—That the financial condition of the nation is sound and banking institutions prepared to do their part in the work of reconstruction which will hasten an era of great prosperity is asserted by Controller of Currency John Skelton Williams, in a statement issued tonight which regards to the system of national banks. "Nothing," said Mr. Williams, "could demonstrate more strongly the solid foundation upon which our banking and currency structure now stands and the improved manner in which the national banks of the country are being operated and safeguarded than the record they have made in the last sixteen months—embracing 10 months of the war and trial of war and six months of the dislocation and strain of reconstruction."

Official reports show that today there are more than 100 national banks in operation with larger capital and surplus and greater resources, making biggees dividends, and more striking immunity from failure than ever before in our history.

VICTORY LOAN SUNDAY MAY 4, WILL BE BIG FEATURE IN CHURCHES

TREASURY DEPARTMENT APPEALS TO CLERGY TO MAKE DRIVE PART OF CAMPAIGN AGAINST BOLSHEVISM.

Plans are already under way in a number of churches in the Fourth Federal Reserve District to make a notable day of Victory Loan Sunday. It has been designated by the United States Treasury Department as May 4 and appeals have been sent to every church in the country by the churches and the Sunday schools.

The performances of the clergy in the past four loans have been so earnest and productive that a big loan is being put on their shoulders in this the last loan with confidence that they will bear it through.

One clergyman in Pennsylvania has written Frank R. Wilson, director of publicity for the Victory Loan at Washington, assuring him that Victory Loan Sunday will be one of the big days of the church year. He outlines some of his views on the opportunity the Victory Loan offers the clergy.

"The Victory Loan," he writes, "is going to do a lot of the church's work for the church. Since much of the money raised has been expended and will be expended in feeding the world, the loan assumes the role of fertilizer in the barren soil of hunger. It will make the soil capable of producing the better things of the world rather than the rank growths of bolshevism which now spring from it."

"One of the targets for the shafts of bolshevism is the church. The leaders of the movement are scoffers and unbelievers and they look down as far as they are able the things which the church has spent its ages building up. Since the Victory Loan and the church are working to attain the same end, I can think of no duty which a clergyman could hold more sacred at the present than the task of giving his every effort and prayer for the success of the loan."

Liberty Loan Levity

A holdup man, James Peter Robin, O'er dropping off business was sobbing— "When people's spare dough Into Notes starts to go There will be nothin' left that's worth robbin'!"

Victory Verities

The people who spend more than they can afford are those who have not had money long—and won't keep it long.

A frugal man lives carefully and saves persistently.

The industrious man works hard and saves hard; the miser skimps and hoards; but the man of thrift earns largely, plans carefully, manages economically, saves consistently and invests in the Victory Loan.

It is true that many loans, money and cups of sugar, are forgotten or unpaid. Our Uncle Sam, however, gives us a hand for our little loans—"lest we forget" he even pays interest on it to make it interesting. We used to borrow from our Uncle; now our Uncle is borrowing from us. —Belton Hall, Author of "Thrift."

HEROES OF YPRES TO PLAY IN DISTRICT FOR VICTORY LOAN

GREAT WAR VETERANS BAND OF CANADA GOES ON TOUR WEEK BEFORE SELLING DRIVE BEGINS.

The Great War Veterans' Band of Ottawa, Canada, every member of which possesses a hero medal, will make a tour of the Fourth Federal Reserve District in the interest of the Victory Loan. The band will be out a week ahead of the selling drive.

Of the thirty men in the band, several are veterans of the Boer war and have also served under the British flag in India and Egypt as well as in France. They represent at least twelve different British army divisions and will wear their individual division badges on their caps.

Lieutenant T. W. James, in charge of the band, took the first Canadian army band to France in 1914. He was promoted in the field.

Not only is this band composed entirely of wounded veterans, but several were so seriously wounded that they are unable to continue to play.

The solo cornet player and drum major was shot through the hand and holds his cornet to his mouth by straps fastened around his neck. The solo trombone player wears five medal ribbons for bravery. He was wounded and shot through the chest, but plays with his one uninjured arm.

The band will travel throughout the entire district and will be accompanied by prominent speakers and a squad of live wire salesmen.

While this will be the first official appearance of this band on American soil it will not be the first time the band has played to Americans. The same organization recently accompanied former President William H. Taft on his trip to Pembroke.

Six Governments Send Men To Boost Victory Loan Drive

SIX men, representatives of as many different allied powers and men who passed through some of the hardest fighting in the great war, are traveling through the Fourth Federal Reserve District, telling the public their viewpoint on the Victory Loan.

Each member of the group is an officer, specially assigned by his government to tell his story to the American people. Several of them wear decorations awarded for unusual bravery and they have all passed through many months of the hardest fighting in the war.

For example, Captain L. D. Gibbs of the British Army is the first Englishman who flew in a heavier-than-air machine and was with the first British contingent to face the Germans in their march on Paris. He was sent to this country as a British embassy attaché after being wounded.

The others represent the French army, Belgian army, Italian army, Canadian forces and the American Expeditionary Forces. The French representative, Lieutenant Rene Froment, wears a Croix de Guerre with four citations; Marshal Emil Hendrickx fought through the earlier days of the war in Belgium; Lieutenant Bruno Rosell of the Italian army was through the Corso Plateau campaign; Lieutenant Robert A. Shaw of the Canadian army was through Vimy Ridge.

Captain P. C. Redick, the American representative, was awarded a distinguished service cross for unusual bravery in the Argonne Forest drive.

Marines Show Why It's Last Loan

THOUSANDS of his pupils found marks for their bayonets in the Hutts at Chateau Thierry and at Belle Wood and they thrust just as he had taught them to, but Lieut. E. B. Irving never had a chance to try his own luck with a Fritz.

That's because he was able to teach so well. He instructed at the Quantico Overseas Depot.

Right now he is taking a squad of his Devil Dogs—every one a noncom and an instructor in bayonet drill—over the Fourth Federal Reserve District showing through in every city in which they exhibit the sort of tactics that made the Hun take to his heels.

They are showing the sort of soldiers your early Liberty Bond purchases started to pay for and the sort of soldiery which made it possible for this Victory Liberty Loan to be the last Victory Loan instead of merely the Fifth.

Victory Loan Terms

The terms of payment for the Victory Liberty Loan are as follows: Ten per cent of subscriptions due with application on or before May 10, another 10 per cent on or before July 15, four subsequent installments of 20 per cent each on or before August 12, September 9, October 7 and November 11. Accrued interest on deferred installments due with the last payment. Payment in full can be made May 20 if desired, or it can be completed on any installment date.

"Put It Over!"

Major General Leonard Wood trained two divisions of Americans at Camp Funston for overseas service. He has asked the American people to support the Fifth Loan.

BY LEONARD WOOD,
Major General, U. S. A.

We have carried the war on successfully so far and must see it through. The Fifth Loan, coming as it does after the armistice, will be a more severe test than the others, of the patriotism of our people. It is just as important as any loan we have made, and should be carried through just as vigorously as the others. It is no time now to let up on our efforts.

BRAMBLEBRIAR TALES H.B.L.

MR. GROUNDHOG CHANGES HIS MIND.

One bright sunny morning, Mr. Groundhog decided that he would walk down by the creek and pick out a suitable place for his garden. He walked slowly, his hands in his pockets, dreaming and thinking about the big luscious tomatoes he was going to raise that summer. The sun grew warmer and warmer as it climbed up into the blue sky, and made large beads of sweat pop-out on Mr. Groundhog's forehead.

"Whew," he exclaimed as he whisked out his handkerchief, and seated himself behind the high hedge fence along the road, "I reckon we'll have a blistering hot summer if this keeps up. But then, of course, that's what makes fine tomatoes, and, after all, I shouldn't complain."

And as he lay resting and smoking his corn-cob pipe, his sharp ears caught the sound of voices, which seemed to come from the direction of Mr. Crow's corn field. He paid little attention to the voices until they were close enough so that he could distinguish his own name being mentioned. Then he pricked up his ears and laid low.

"Do you know," said one of the voices very distinctly, "that old Mr. Groundhog hasn't bought one Liberty Bond? And, what's more, I don't think he intends to buy any of the Victory Liberty Loan."

"I don't think we should have anything to do with him," said the other voice. "Anybody who has as much money as old Mr. Groundhog, and refuses to help his country pay its war debts, should be ashamed to look his fellow citizens in the eye."

These same voices came from Mr. Bear and Mr. Wolf, the most distinguished and important citizens of Bramblebriar Colony.

Mr. Groundhog sat in deep silence for a long time thinking what Mr. Wolf and Mr. Bear had said about him. Finally he rose to his feet and started down the road with a quick, determined step and never stopped until he came to the Bramblebriar bank. Walking up to Mr. Fox, who was the president of the bank, he said:

"Mr. Fox, I never knew what patriotism really meant to a man, but now I can see it clearly. Please let me give you my subscription for the VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN."

And then Mr. Groundhog started down the road to his cottage by the spring and he walked with a quicker step and wore a broader smile than was known to him in twenty years.

A Great Challenge

The Victory Liberty Loan is a greater challenge than any prior call for service to the government. It is the last nail to be driven in the archway of peace, and we are the instruments to preach peace to the world. If we should fail the whole structure built at so terrible a price would fall to the ground.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Head-ache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Theodor's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, nausea, caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Theodor's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Theodor's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and clearing the bowels of impurities. Try it, about on Theodor's the original and genuine. E 79

Dead Devil Dog?---Not Yet!

"THE LAST STAND" might be an appropriate title for this picture which shows a fallen Marine with his comrade beside him, continuing to work a German light Maxim machine gun in an advanced position.

This machine gun is one captured by the Marines from the Germans at Chateau Thierry. Guns of this type were used by the Germans in ambushing the allied troops. They were particularly deadly because they can be easily carried by one man and not up almost anywhere with or without a tripod. The runner in this picture is also wearing a captured German helmet.

The two Marines who posed for this picture are part of the detachment of ten wounded "Devil Dogs" in command of Captain Shaler Boone, who are traveling through the Fourth Federal Reserve District with War Trophy Train No. 3.

Captain Laude and his men have all tasted German gas and high explosive at Soissons, St. Mihiel, Belleau Woods and Chateau Thierry and are prepared to tell some startling truths about what the Allies saved civilization from when they forced the Hunns to beg for an armistice.

These men know why the Victory Loan must go over in a big way and they are able to back up their statements with exhibits gathered from many battle fronts. They know the job but they must be assured and they're willing to help finish it.

NEW DOG LAW

Backed By Sheep Growers of State—Lands Better Protected Than Ever.

Frankfort, Ky., May 1.—Sheep growers are going to the rescue of the dog law, which Chairman R. Stevenson of the Sheep Growers' Association, says is being attacked by fox hunters in the press of the state.

Dr. Stevenson, who resides in Lexington and C. S. Williams of Woodford county, who were here today getting data for a statement in behalf of the sheep growers, which they intend to offer for publication, as a reply to a card signed "Taxpayer," charging that the dog license law was enacted for the benefit of the officeholders and the revenue from it is eaten up in fees.

Dr. Stevenson asserted that the letter was written by members of the Fox Hunters' Association.

"All the sheep growers and other stock raisers are pleased with the law," said Dr. Stevenson, himself engaged in raising blooded stock.

FEWER SHEEP KILLED.

"As to the charge that the revenues are going in fees, investigation shows that there is much more money to the credit of the sheep fund now than there was under the old law, and there are fewer sheep being killed; because unlicensed dogs are being kept and licensed dogs are being kept up."

"I learned today that in 1917 there were $94,120 collected from the dog tax, and so far there has been no change in the plan $275,000."

Both these gentlemen claim to have paid attention to the operation of the law, and said this charge that county officers are making a good thing out of it must be interesting reading to the County Clerks and Sheriffs.

"Our Sheriff was complaining to me the other day he was losing money on every dog impounded," Mr. Williams said. "He gets $1 for impounding the dogs and has to keep it ten days. He found that it was costing him 10 cents the day to board the dog so at the end of ten days he had received $1 and expended $1.50."

Dr. Stevenson and Mr. Williams said they are sure the expense of executing the law is not out of proportion and as it is an effective police measure to protect livestock, the expense is nominal.

The baccalaureate sermon for the graduates of Petreusburg High School will be delivered at Petreusburg Christian church next Sunday night. The commencement exercises will be held on the night of the 17th. Dr. Crossfield, speaker.

Sheriff L. A. Connor and deputies have been very busy for several days summoning taxpayers and the value of whose property has been increased to appear before the board of supervisors tomorrow.

OLDHAM'S VICTORY SEEMS CERTAIN

PRESS OF STATE PRAISES YOUNG WINCHESTER CANDIDATE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

That R. C. Oldham's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor has been favorably received there is no doubt. His campaign has been conducted in a progressive spirit and a determination to win. His friends have formed an R. C. Oldham Club to further his interests. The state press comments very favorably upon his candidacy.

"Col. Oldham is one of the most active young Democrats in the State during these emergency days. He has been in the very heart of the contest in the interest of the Democratic nomination. It is our policy to refrain from committing ourselves in primary elections, but it is our purpose to support Col. Oldham throughout this campaign, believing that this young man will serve the constituency with honor and credit."

Oldham is a young man of sterling qualities and will do his duty as a public servant. We would like to see him elected to this office, as we believe that the people of the state in a way that will cause no regret for having given him this honor.—Livingston Enquirer.

"The Journal of Labor has not failed to support a man who openly declares for such principles. We ask the voters of Mr. Oldham, but will be followed by every citizen of 400,000 pounds of the early current needs of the ensuing year. The demand in other parts of the world is increasing, but it is well known that there is a world shortage of tobacco in consuming markets and all countries which are normally used to tobacco from the U. S. will doubtless increase these importations with the coming of peace and normal conditions."

Since July 1, 1917, the United States has shipped to the world a total of some 369,000,000 pounds of tobacco, of which about one-half went to the British Empire. The situation in the Scandinavian peninsula is most acute in any country in Europe, not one pound of tobacco being imported. The situation in the British Empire is particularly in want for tobacco of this kind, the supplies going to Great Britain not being sufficient to supply their own needs. In Russia are so peculiar, owing to the injection of the Bolsheviks between Northern and Southern Russia that we find Northern Russia endeavoring to import tobacco from the United States while Southern Russia is seeking to supply for markets the two parts of the country not being able to communicate with each other on a market basis.

"The Oldham Club is doing some very effective work for their candidate independent of his campaign. They say 'The club is formed to make absolutely certain the deserved success of our friend and candidate. We KNOW Oldham and want the people of Kentucky to KNOW him as we do. In laying the corner stone of his political career he has, I believe, a public officer is only a servant of the people' and we know he means it."

Oldham is a progressive Democrat and a progressive citizen and a successful lawyer, he is a public officer and he is a public officer. We believe he would give a progressive administration and one that would prove creditable alike to himself and to the party.—Interior Journal.

Tobacco Market of 1918-19.

The condition of the closing market for tobacco 1918-19, after a season of unprecedented high prices and preceding a season of unusual promise of a large crop of tobacco for 1919-20, has given rise to considerable inquiry among growers and buyers alike as to the probable situation in the new crop. A careful investigation of domestic and foreign markets conducted by the Department of Markets of the University of Kentucky has afforded considerable information on the subject which should be of value to the tobacco industry, and this market bulletin is accordingly issued for that purpose.

The sharp decline in the end of the season's market seems to have been caused by several factors, among which were inability to further finance a high price crop and the fact that many buyers had purchased their entire amount required by them or such an amount of tobacco as the limit of their credit would stand. Because of the several of the buyers left the market and others attended it only in a disinterested fashion and price of these leaf, therefore declined rapidly to a low point of stabilization, where it remained for the balance of the season.

It appears that the handlers of tobacco in the United States are very well stocked with the weed and in many cases overstocked, carrying large quantities on partial payment for foreign orders. Every storage house in the eastern part of the U. S. capable of storing tobacco is filled to capacity. This condition is aggravated by the fact that transoceanic shipping available for tobacco transportation has been exceedingly short and in many cases almost entirely lacking. In spite of the fact that millions of dollars' worth of tobacco are already sold to foreign purchasers, the market is stagnant in the face of inability to ship. This does not say that there is too much tobacco in America for present demands, but the reverse of truth, but the market is stagnated on account of the obstruction in shipping.

Conditions in foreign countries are such that some who have lately returned from investigations in Europe described that continent as a tobacco vacuum, due to the fact that there is scarcely any tobacco to be had outside the armies of occupation. The present immediate needs of Europe are approximately 300,000,000 pounds of American tobacco and this will only supply the immediate needs of manufacturers and dealers and should soon be followed by considerable quantities of 400,000,000 pounds for the early current needs of the ensuing year. The demand in other parts of the world is increasing, but it is well known that there is a world shortage of tobacco in consuming markets and all countries which are normally used to tobacco from the U. ed almost entirely from the bright leaf of the Eastern States. While the market will doubtless be lower than the high point of last season, it should be active, provided shipping facilities have recovered, enabling tobacco to move forward to market with rapidity. Foreign investigators feel that if shipping has reached normal by from August to October, there should be a recovery of about five cents per pound average on all grades of tobacco raised in this country, and that the outlook for next year's crop is satisfactory if production is not increased beyond what presently appears to be the intention of tobacco planters.

Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves to Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubber Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set; Cooper's Peerless for the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the Tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the Tire all the time, therefore, causing the tire to break through the Tire and stuff off.

My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel filled wheel with that of disking and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or not wear at all.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub left, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me where you will get first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

These prices took effect May 1, 1919, and will remain in effect until further notice.

Maxwell

—a car having every luxury except one

THAT luxury is brutish bigness, which means weight, which means a large gasoline tank and filled often, and large tires, and several sets a year.

Maxwell is neither a big car nor a small car. The biggest car made is less than 4 feet longer, and costs around $10,000 to buy and $5,000 a year to run.

Most cars are just a foot or a few inches longer.

And others are some smaller—shorter, lighter, less roomy, and hence lack the luxury of a Maxwell.

Nor do they cost, on the average, less to run.

Gas mileage is very nearly the same. Tire mileage is very nearly the same.

But where Maxwell earned its crowning reputation has been in its ability to run and run and never quit.

That means repair bills are amazingly low.

You therefore never get mad at a Maxwell—it's the best friend your pocketbook has. And when you stop to think of all those little points of luxury in a Maxwell you're almost sure to whip out your check book and write a check for one.

The 300,000-all-alike idea behind the Maxwell thus, you see, is sound.

The farmers had squared themselves for a big week's planting and had everything ready for the week when they "took out" Tuesday evening, but before morning there was a change in the weather and when they arose Wednesday morning they found rain falling and in a short time the ground was again too wet to work, and the probability is it will continue so the remainder of this week. The middle of May will get by with a very small per cent of the corn crop planted while there yet remains a very considerable quantity of corn land to be broken. Farmers are very much discouraged but it should be remembered that it is not so bad but what it could be worse.

Sergeant C. H. Lassing was the guest of his brother, Judge John M. Lassing and wife a few days the past week. He was connected with the U. S. Medical Corps in France for some time and returned from overseas a short time since. He was particularly pleased with his campaign in the foreign land but says the mail service was of the worst. Of the numerous copies of the Recorder mailed to him he received only two. The same complaint is made by about all the other boys who have returned from the army overseas.

Washington, Fifteen million Americans bought Victory Liberty notes in the campaign which closed last Saturday night, according to estimates received by the treasury from Federal Reserve Banks. This compares with about 21,000,000 purchases in the fourth loan, 17,000,000 in the third, 9,400,000 in the second and 4,000,000 in the first.

SALVATION ARMY VALIANT IN WAR

Having Served Gloriously in the Trenches, Is Coming Back From Overseas for Peace Time Activities.

ASKS HOME SERVICE FUND.

National Campaign to Replenish Resources Depleted by Long and Direct Contact Services With Our Boys Scheduled for May 19-26.

New York (Special).—Like the 2,000,000 American boys whom it served so gloriously in the trenches of France, the Salvation Army is coming back from overseas, ready to put aside its blank uniform of war service, don the "civies" and embark upon more on its normal peace time activities.

And, just like those doughboys, the Salvation Army has come out of the war victorious and with citations for bravery, decorations for gallantry under fire and golden chevrons indicative of honorably won wounds on its arm. The victory which the Salvation Army has won is a victory over the obstacles that lay before it in its purpose of efficient service of the fighters of Pershing's army. Its citations are the thanks, cheers and prayers of 2,000,000 doughboys. Its wound stripes are richly golden of hue, for they typify the unselfish way in which the Army threw all its resources—financial, spiritual and moral—into the effort to help the American soldiers in France.

Now the Army is asking the people of America to give it concrete evidence of the gratitude which has been so loudly and so willingly expressed. From May 19 to 26 the Salvation Army will conduct in the United States a campaign to raise $125,000 for its Home Service Fund. The money so needed both to recruit the fortunes of the Army, shattered by its long service of the soldier and to permit it to carry on the work it has always done on the larger scale which the public now demands. Raising the money by this means, the Salvation Army explains, will eliminate, perhaps permanently, the necessity for the ceaseless solicitation of funds which has been a burden to the Army and the public alike. It will permit the workers of the Army, who, forced to devote more than half their time to gathering money, were in consequence only half efficient in their evangelistic and social service work, to devote all their time in future to the duties for which they have been trained.

The amount of the fund has been determined exactly and locally by means of fund-raising locally by workers of the Salvation Army in all parts of the United States.

Already headquarters for the campaign have been established in New York City. A ready response in encouragement and cheering wishes for success has been heard from all parts of the country. Men and women prominent in all walks of life have volunteered their services as active participants in the drive. The Army's 2,000,000 loyal followers—the boys who went overseas in khaki—are all lined up ready to help. The Army not only helped them over there, but it found jobs for many of them after they had been mustered out of service, helped them get the civilian clothing that was necessary if they wanted to take these jobs, fed many of them, gave them shelter and furnished them with transportation to their homes.

For the war service of the Salvation Army is still under way. Its workers are still, many of them, in France, and its huts, clubhouses and hotels for the reception of the boys returning from abroad are in full swing here.

Neither, the Salvation Army asserts, will its war work be abandoned until the last boy is one of the khaki of the army or the blue of the navy. The larger activities which necessitated the coming campaign will exist and be financed independently of the service of the fighters from abroad.

CARDINAL GIBBONS ENDORSES S. A. DRIVE

Venerable Churchman Expresses Hope That $13,000,000 Will Be Raised.

The following letter was addressed to former Governor Whitman of New York state by Cardinal Gibbons:

"Honorable and Dear Sir:—I have been asked by the local Commandery of the Salvation Army to address a word to you as National Chairman of the Campaign about to be launched in behalf of the above named organization. 'This I am hoping to do, and I am sure that along with my fellow American citizens I rejoice in the splendid service which the Salvation Army rendered our soldier and sailor boys during the war. Every returning trooper is a willing witness to the efficient and generous work of the Salvation Army both at the front and in the camps at home. I am also the more happy to commend this organization because it is free from sectarian bias. The man in need of help is the object of their effort, with never a question of his race or color.' 'I trust, therefore, your efforts to raise $13,000,000 for the Salvation Army will meet with a hearty response from our generous public. Faithfully yours, 'J. CARD. GIBBONS.'"

That Salvation Army Smile

Several thousand veterans of the Argonne Forest recently entered New York harbor. Among them were several badly wounded Marines. One man, easily distinguished because of a crooked nose, a crooked leg and a crooked arm, was making his way slowly to the waiting ambulances when a Salvation Army girl approached him and offered him a drink of coffee. "Now I know I am home," he said. "These doughnuts helped a whole lot 'fore there' and, first crack out of the box when we land, we had those waiting for us. The first thing about the Salvation Army work out there from the line was the smile that accompanied the gift. 'These girls had a knack of wrapping up every doughnut and every cup of coffee in a smile. The doughnuts were fine but the smile—that took the place of powder-red sugar.' The Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign for $125,000 closes May 26, to last one week.

The value of the eggs and poultry produced every year in the United States is now $750,000,000, or more than that of all the gold, silver and diamonds produced in a year in the whole world. There are about three hens to a person and each hen lays an average of eighty eggs a year. The best layers produce as many as one a year. Farmers' flocks contribute the average of only about thirty birds, but even at that they contribute notably to the living on the farm.

That interest in increasing the Big Sandy and Old Dominion highway sufficient to make the project a success as regarded as a foregoing conclusion. In every county along the Big Sandy River there is rapidly increasing interest in good road work in general, especially the proposed new highway which is to run from Jenkins in the center of the Elk River, eastward, through Pike, Floyd, Ashland and Lawrence counties to the Ohio River—passing through the scenic section of the mountains.

RIGHTS AS "FREE CITIZEN"

Russian Workman Who Believed He Owned a Part of the Street Car Track.

While walking along the Nevsky Prospect in Petrograd one morning we saw a line of street cars that had evidently been blocked; in front of the foremost car was a crowd of people, says a writer in Russia. As we entered the crowd we saw a man standing on the track and arguing with the motorman. The motorman was pleading with him to get off the track so that he could proceed with his car, and the man was maintaining that Russia was a free country, that he had just as much right on the track as the car had, and that he did not intend to move until he was personally inclined to do so.

A number of soldiers looked on, but no one attempted to remove the man from the track, and neither the motorman nor the conductor attempted to move the car, but resorted solely to moral suasion. The argument that finally induced the man to move was to the effect that the motorman was a hard-working man and had to get to the car barn; the longer he was held there the longer it would take him to get through his work, and would not his brother workman please get off the track so that he could get the car to the barn? With that the "free citizen" politely bowed, folded his arms and moved off the track, the crowd dispersed and the cars went on their way.

SILLY TO HIDE ADMIRATION

Writer Makes Point When He Displaces What He Admires is Linguistic Camouflage.

The only criticism I would make of you is that your heart is so big it sometimes overrules your judgment. This is a remark that is often heard. What does it mean? As a rule it is not intended as a criticism at all, but rather as a compliment. Why not, then, have we hide our admiration for a friend under a doubtful phrase that might leave a sting? Since at heart we are all sentimental and since we consider a good heart of more real value than the head, both to its possessor and to his friends, why not say so plainly? How delicate we are, after all! Or is it that most of us have been dishonest so long that even in our happiest conversations we unconsciously resort to diplomatic expressions?—Los Angeles Times.

War's Influence on Music.

Have you noticed what a "speeding up" of music has come out of this war? There has been so much music in it. When the famous retreat from Mons was made, one set of soldiers was kept awake and moving one night by the music of a little toy life and child's drum, which the commander of it bought in a kind of desperation in a shop shortly before. The music acted like a charm on the men, who began to move more quickly and more easily as soon as they heard it. A battalion marching without secrecy is unusual in this war, unless secrecy of movement is called for. "There's a Long, Long Trail" is a favorite song, but dear old "Tipperary" is not sung much now. Little French boys sing it well, though, and sing it a great deal. "Mother March" is sung still, because it has so much of the old home feeling in it. Whenever a wounded soldier in the hospital says he wants to hear a phonograph, it is taken to mean that he is getting better. And the very sick soldiers, when they hear sweet music played in their wards in hospitals, are soothed and calmed by it. —Exchange.

Apple Crop Is Larger.

The United States commercial apple crop for 1918 will exceed the 1917 production by approximately 9 per cent, according to the November forecast by the bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture. Production for this year is now estimated at 25,008,000 barrels, with 22,519,000 barrels in 1917. Attention is called to the fact that the barreled and bulk apple production is estimated at a 31 per cent increase over last year, while the 1918 boxed apple crop will fall short of last year's production by 22 per cent. However, the latter deficiency is more than offset by the increase in the Eastern states.

Poor Widow Gives Mite.

There were only four sacks, washed and pressed together by patient fingers and then fashioned into undergarments. Around the neck of each was a crocheted edge made from the string with which the sacks had been sewed. A poorly dressed woman brought them into the department of refuge, holding of the Red Cross as her "whole" mite.

"It isn't much," she said, as she unfolded the bundle, "but it is all I had, and I hope it will be of use to some Belgian woman who may have less than I have."

Artificial Rubber.

Artificial rubber has been made in an experimental way for many years, but it is now reported that it has become a practical success, and that the great dye and color works at Elberfeld, Germany, are erecting a large factory for the production of synthetic rubber on a large scale, principally intended to supply Germany with this product in future years, when great difficulties are anticipated in obtaining natural rubber like other raw materials, from the tropics.

The Flow of Meat

Two-thirds of the live stock in the United States has to be raised in the West.

One-half of the consumers of meat live in the East.

In other words, most of the live stock is one or two thousand miles distant from most of the people who need it in the form of food.

Fifty years ago, when live stock was raised close to every consuming center, the country butcher could handle the job after a fashion.

But the job got too big.

Now millions of animals have to be moved hundreds of miles to millions of people. Somewhere on the way they have to be turned into meat.

The packers solved the problem. They set up plants where the "live haul" and the "meat haul" were in the right balance. They built up distributing systems—refrigerator cars, refrigerating plants, branch houses. They saved time, money and meat everywhere. The stockraiser benefited in better markets and higher prices; the consumer, in better meat and lower prices.

As the country grew, the packers had to grow, or break down. Because of its present size and efficiency, Swift & Company is able to perform its part in this service at a fraction of a cent per pound profit.

American Business Courage.

New York Commercial.
There is urgent need just now for every American to be an optimist. Not a blind, unthinking dreamer of prosperity without effort, but a practical, planning, thoughtful, optimistic, determined not to let the bog of the war on earth go to the bow-wows.

There is no denying the fact that a percentage of our people are in a sultry mood. They have stood much; they have exercised self-repression. They are sick of paternalism, officialism, idiotic taxation. Above all, they are sick of politics. They are sick of the political machine and that loathsome imported Russian disease, verobian, which has spread like other vile infections. The courage of Americans on the battlefield and on the sea speaks for itself without eulogium; the courage that is now essential is of a higher order. It is moral courage accompanied by the will to set to work and put our house in order. After the Franco-Prussian War, Gambetta gave utterance to the profoundly philosophical remark: "Danger is passed and now troubles begin."

The readjustment of American life is a task of tremendous difficulty. Legislation will not solve the problem for we have too much legislation already. Sentimentality between capital and labor will not solve it; nothing will solve it but the indomitable spirit of American business. It was the altruistic spirit, the enormous sacrifices of American business, that made the successful prosecution and conclusion of the war possible. In the great crisis the nation that was believed, falsely, to worship at the shrine of the almighty dollar proved to the world that, when confronted with great moral evil, money was the very last thing that Americans valued.

It was American business that demonstrated this fact. It absorbed huge loans in an incredibly short time; it turned the machinery of war in the twinkling of an eye; it robbed the Atlantic Ocean of its terrorizing aspect and tamed it to the level of a Twickenham Pearly; it threw its glorious hordes of the finest young men in the world into the vortex of war, equipped with superb engines of offense and defense. It is American business that is bringing those young men back in a large measure of safety and health, and it is those young men, thus grandly taught, that will constitute American business in the future.

It was sublime moral courage that was back of America's prodigious part in freeing the world from the hell engendered by the lust of an insatiable ambition, and back of that courage was the spirit of American business.

In Memory of Robert M. Wilson

Robert M. Wilson, aged 68 years, six months and eighteen days died of cancer of the stomach at Walton, Wednesday, April 23, 1919. Funeral services were conducted at Walton Baptist church, Friday, April 26th, 1919, after which the remains were taken to Burlington and interred. He leaves a wife, seven children, 15 grandchildren, and one great-grand child and a host of friends to mourn his death.

He was a kind and loving father and a noble husband. Owing to his loving, kind and gentle disposition it was a pleasure to talk with him. He united with the Baptist church early in life and was a faithful member. In 1871 he was elected jailer of Boone county but had to resign the office because of ill health. His wife not being able to keep house and give him proper attention, they broke up and moved to Petersburg where they spent about a year in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Bernard Jones. Not gaining any in health he decided to move to Walton where he and his wife made their home with their oldest daughter, Mrs. Arthur Bevell, where everything that could be done was done but he ailed and he was called home where he will suffer no more.

He was a citizen of Burlington many years but spent the latter part of his life in Walton where he was close to his church which he loved. It is useless to tell what a Christian life he led for all who knew him know it. His Master's will to call him home where he will suffer no more. There is a vacant place in his church and home which will long be remembered. We should be Farmers Need More Help.

"Farmers in the Western States are anticipating a greater shortage of labor this year than last, and are preparing for it," said David Henderson, a prominent farmer of Iowa, "some of the boys who went from the farms into the army or war industries have returned, but they are few in number, and they will not make up for the increased acreage. In nearly all of the great wheat States, the farmers have sown a greater acreage to wheat than ever before, and necessarily this means a far larger number of hands than ever before. I do not think the crop statisticians are much wrong in their estimates if we can get the labor to harvest it, we shall undoubtedly make a record yield. There was almost universal response to the appeals of the Government for increased crops. 'Nearly every farmer in Iowa said the same, I believe, is true of other States in the West—not only planted more, but they added to the number of hogs in Iowa this year we shall put more corn into hogs than in any previous year. The mounting price of hogs has encouraged the farmers to raise more."

"I think that when it is all over it will be found that the farmers have taken a greater percentage of victory bonds than any other class except the bankers," added Mr. Henderson. "They realize that bonds paying 4 percent interest are a better investment than anything else, because they are safe."

French Call German Protests Guerrilla War on Paper.

Paris, May 11.—The "first passage of arms," as the French editorial writers term the exchange of notes between Germany and the allies, evoked something more than the beginning of what Saint Brice in Le Journal calls a "paper guerrilla war" by the Germans against the allies' terms. The editorial writer, however, gave the opinion that the Germans, after protesting in all the keys of the scale, will eventually sign, altho says the Figaro, they will sign only under compulsion and with the determination of evading their engagements at the first opportunity. Against this, the newspaper declares, the Anglo-French-American alliance. "Pertinax" writes in much the same strain in the Echo de Paris, but Premier Clemenceau's course in referring Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau to the second paragraph of the first article of the League of Nations covenant in reply to the German delegates' complaint that Germany had not been invited to join the League of Nations, moves Saint Brice to remark that the Germans soon found the weak spot. The Premier's reply says the writer, is a clever parricidal, but only a parricidal shows how the contradiction alleged by the German delegate may come to exist, but he does not deny that it actually exists, and Saint Brice thinks that the German answer to this will not be long in coming.

RAISING WELL-BRED SWINE

Return Money Invested More Quickly Than Any Other Farm Animals Except Poultry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
No branch of live stock raising gives better results than the raising of well-bred swine when conducted with a reasonable amount of intelligence. The hog is one of the most important animals to raise on the farm, either for meat or for profit, and no farm is complete unless some hogs are kept to aid in the modern method of farming. The farmers of the South and West, awakening to the merits of the hog, are rapidly increasing their output of pork and their bank accounts. The hog requires less labor, less equipment, less capital, and makes greater gains per hundred pounds of concentrates than any other farm animal, and reproduces himself faster and in greater numbers; and returns the money invested more quickly than any other farm animal except poultry.

In the trucking and mixed-farming sections of the United States hogs are used to consume various unmarketable substances. The value of milk is known on every farm although it may not be fully appreciated, and any one who has fed pigs knows the keen appetite they have for milk and its products. In the neighborhood of many large dairies 'pork production has become a very prominent and lucrative supplement to the dairy industry. The hog is also a large factor in cheapening the production of beef. Hogs are placed in the cattle feed lots to utilize the corn and other feeds which the cattle have failed to digest and which otherwise would be wasted. Hogs following steers in many cases have increased the profit per steer by $0 to $2. Farmers who feed and restaurant owners are using kitchen refuse to produce suitable pork. In fact, as a consumer of by-products the hog has no rival.

However, this propensity in many instances is being taken unfair advantage of through ignorance and lack of care. Milk products, animal offal, etc., which contain disease germs, especially those of tuberculosis, are given to hogs. This practice not only results in spreading disease but causes loss in the hogs themselves through condemnation at slaughter. All such products should be effectively sterilized before being fed.

FEEDING NEW CORN TO STOCK

Not Safe for Hogs and Mules—Liable to Produce Disorders—Give Hogs Minerals.

New corn is not a safe grain for work horses and mules, as it is liable to produce colic and indigestion. If it must be fed, feed only the driest ears, not more than four or six ears at each meal. A small quantity of salt should be sprinkled on each feed. A better and safer method is to feed half corn and half oats.

If green corn is fed to hogs, the safest plan is to feed the entire stalks with the ears on the stalks. Feed small quantities at each meal; spread the corn out in the feed lot so that each one will get its full share. Keep a full supply of wood and coal ashes, burnt wood and corn-cob charcoal under cover in the feeding pens, so the hogs can help themselves. These minerals are useful in correcting the acidity of the green fodder and corn.

VALUE OF ACRE OF ALFALFA

Result of Interesting Experiment Conducted on Kansas Agricultural College Farm.

Experiments conducted on the Kansas agricultural college farm have shown that 170 pounds of green alfalfa, cut and fed in a dry lot, was equal to 100 pounds of corn. Six pounds of corn was necessary to produce a pound of pork, so the 170 pounds of alfalfa produced 102.5 pounds of pork. Estimating that during the season an acre of alfalfa will yield 20,000 pounds of green hay, this, if cut and fed green with corn, would make 2,000 pounds of pork. Figuring this pork at the prevailing prices will give some idea of the value of an acre of alfalfa.

Entirely Characteristic

The contemptuous attitude of the German delegates before the Peace Commissioners was entirely characteristic of the whole German program since it was a national contempt for all peoples and all governments of the world that carried her into the contest for world supremacy. After all it is a matter of small interest how Germany feels toward the allies, their associates and the peace terms. All she can get is what is given her, and if she doesn't like what is offered she can lump it. But suppose the positions were reversed and she was dictating terms.

Germany's rejection of the terms offered her now is, of course, possible, the hardly probable. For however hard she may consider that which is offered, and which, while not soft, is by no means so hard as that which she promised to do out to a conquered world, that which she would have to take in the end would, by progression of accrued interest on the principal of the offering, be much harder. She has her choice. She will sign or starve as a nation by sinking into the utter oblivion of things not long considered. Except that all mankind, save Germany, would rather see a nation saved than a suicide. There is really no great concern whether she signs or sinks. Commercial Tribune.

DEVONIA

AQUA REMEDIUM AMERICANA

$200 IN GOLD $200 FOR A SLOGAN

WE WANT a slogan for Devonia—the American Medicinal Mineral Water—a slogan with punch and snap to it—something that really suggests the benefit which comes from using Devonia. And we are going to give $200 in gold to the person who sends us the best slogan. Think of it! $200 for just a few words. But Devonia, the finest of medicinal mineral waters—the world over is worth it—worth your best thought and effort.

What Devonia Is.

Devonia is an American Medicinal Mineral Water. No other water has a record of such helpfulness to the ailing. Some of the for which it has been widely and successfully prescribed by physicians are: Constipation, Rheumatic Affections, High Blood Pressure, Hardening of the Arteries, Eczema and similar ailments.

Unlike many other mineral waters, Devonia comes to you just as it comes from its natural source, a thousand feet underground. Nothing is added to it to make it stronger. It is not condensed. Yet so effective is it that a tablespoonful to a glass of water is all usually required for effective results. Neither is it a powerful cathartic. Its properties are remedial, alterative and reconstructive. But to know what Devonia really is you should learn what it has done for others. Get some of our booklets, "The Story of a Well Man," or some of the others.

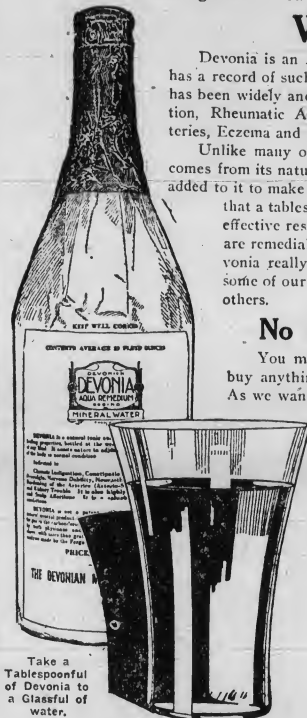

No Conditions To This Contest.

You may send in one slogan or many. You do not need to buy anything. All we ask is that the slogan be short and snappy. As we want only one slogan, there will be only one prize—$200; but that is worth winning.

The judges will be the officers of The Devonian Mineral Spring Company, Mr. Thomas E. Basham, president of the Thomas E. Basham Company, our advertising agents, and the advertising managers of the four Louisville papers.

All slogans must be in our hands by June 1. The announcement will be made as soon thereafter as the judges can reach a decision, and their decision will be final. In case the winning slogan is suggested by two or more persons the prize will be divided equally. All slogans become the property of The Devonian Mineral Spring Company.

Mail your slogan to The Devonian Mineral Spring Company, executive offices Owensboro, Ky. For our convenience we ask you to use the coupon.

Take a Tablespoonful of Devonia to a Glassful of water.

THE HARKNESS TAX

Judgment That Deprived State of Millions Can Be Reopened.

Courier Journal May 22. — Provided Governor Black proves alive to his opportunities by taking an active interest in the matter, Kentucky is not stopped by a law from collecting all the taxes due from the rich Lamon V. Harkness estate.

Deprived of millions of dollars through an agreed judgment entered in the Fayette circuit court June 2, 1916, it is not too late for the State, thru her proper executive officers to bring about a reopening of that judgment.

This judgment was entered following a compromise hastily entered into between T. C. Bradley, then Sheriff of Fayette county, representing the Commonwealth, and Harry Burgoyne, Kentucky administrator of the Harkness estate.

By the terms of the compromise the estate valued at $150,000,000 by Walton M. Byars, revenue agent, paid $500,000 covering a period of five years, Kentucky and Fayette county collecting in taxes, including penalty and costs, only $225,000, when they should have collected $7,000,000. Mr. Byars' estimate of the value of the estate was correct.

Of the sum collected, $55,000 represented the penalty of this amount $42,000 went to the Sheriff and about $8,000 to Hogan Yancey then County Attorney of Fayette.

In an opinion filed in the law firm of Trabue, Doolan, Helm & Helm, especially engaged by The Courier Journal to look into the matter, The Courier-Journal is advised that the agreed judgment can be set aside on a sufficient showing that it is tainted with fraud.

This opinion, written by Kennedy Helm, bears date of February 26, 1919, and was delivered to The Courier-Journal on that day.

The Courier-Journal, in employing the law firm, requested an opinion on three questions:— Can the agreed judgment entered into between the Commonwealth, represented by T. C. Bradley, Sheriff of Fayette county, against the Lamon V. Harkness estate, be reopened?

May the Courier-Journal, as a taxpayer, or any other taxpayer of the State of Kentucky, in behalf of the people of the State, take the steps necessary to reopen the judgment and collect the money unpaid? Or, in the alternative, what person or officer is best qualified in law to undertake such proceedings?

On what ground may proceedings be instituted looking to a reopening of the case? In replying to these questions the attorneys said:— There is yet time before the statute of limitation runs, by direct petition or intervention therein, to raise the question whether the judgment was procured by fraud.

That such proceedings could be instituted by the Sheriff of Fayette county, who has succeeded Bradley in office, or by the revenue agent for Fayette county, or by any one of the four revenue agents appointed for the State-at-large, seems so clear that we authorized steps to be taken, but have not pressed the inquiry further as to whether or not such suit could be brought by a taxpayer.

If the judgment obtained in the Bradley suit were set aside it would result that some relator substituted for Bradley as relator in the suit brought by him. In support of their opinion that the judgment may be reopened on a showing of fraud, The Courier-Journal attorneys reviewed in detail the various steps taken in the Harkness tax case and expressed the belief that the fact that Mr. Harkness at the time of his death, February 6th, 1915, was a resident of Fayette county, Ky., had been established by April 1916, two months before the tax compromise was reached. If they are right in this conclusion, the excuse that haste was made in settling the estate for fear New York claim that Mr. Harkness was a legal resident of that State at the time of his death would be held good, depriving Kentucky of any taxes whatsoever from the estate, is explored, and color is given to a theory that Mr. Bradley, in agreeing to a compromise that cost the State millions of dollars in taxes, was deeply interested in beating Walton M. Byars, revenue agent for the State at large to the penalties.

Records in the Harkness tax case show that Mr. Byars was the first to institute proceedings looking to the recovery of taxes from the estate, filing suit against it on April 24, 1916, fourteen months after the death of Mr. Harkness. A few days later, Mr. Bradley, Sheriff, filed a similar suit. The two cases were set for hearing on the same day, June 2nd, 1916, and as the law provides that the penalties go upon the judgment, and that the judgment first entered in either suit, irrespective of whether it was brought first or last is a bar to further proceedings in the other suit, "we may assume," The Courier-Journal attorneys set forth in their opinion, "there was some anxiety on the part of both the Sheriff and the revenue agent, who both cases were set down to be tried on June 2nd."

Ten days before the date set for the hearing of the rival suits, and while Mr. Byars and his attorneys were away preparing for trial, Sheriff Bradley and the administrator of the Harkness estate, through their attorneys appeared in court and tendered a judgment, immediately entered, that had been agreed to by them. Baffled but not beaten, Mr. Byars, on June 19, 1916, took the only course open to him in an attempt to reopen the agreed judgment—he filed a "direct petition" to vacate judgment, it being well settled that the judgment could not be successfully attacked, indirectly, or questioned in another proceeding. He alleged, in his direct petition that "there was no cause for haste in the entry of said judgment, and said judgment was entered to preclude a reasonable and just assessment of the property omitted from assessment. He further alleged that said judgment was entered with the design and attempt to forestall and avoid a trial upon the merits of what property was really subject to assessment, and the value of the same; that the judgment entered is many times less than the judgment and assessment would have been had had the case been heard upon its merits."

Two days after the filing of this suit Sheriff Bradley paid to Mr. Byars, court records show $5,000, to cover any expense Mr. Byars may have gone to in preparing his tax suit, it was explained later, the understanding being that in accepting the $5,000 Mr. Byars relinquished all claim to the penalty collected by Sheriff Bradley.

On the following day Mr. Byars appeared in court and had his independent petition to vacate the Bradley judgment dismissed. In doing this he made no mention of the agreed judgment by Sheriff, volunteering in explanation of his action, the statement that he had been advised by the Attorney General that the agreed judgment was not in any way a bar to the suit instituted by him, as revenue agent, against the Harkness estate. The judgment was a bar, however, the courts so holding later, and the suit of Mr. Byars was thrown out as a result. Having had dismissed the only action that he had had against this judgment the revenue agent was left "without a leg to stand on," and after a few more futile plays on his part the Harkness matter dropped out of court.

In full, the opinion of the law firm employed by The Courier-Journal to look into the Harkness case, appears elsewhere in this issue.

Walton Byars, revenue agent for the State-at-large in the original suit against the Harkness estate, placed a valuation of $150,000,000 upon it. He sued to recover back taxes for a period of five years.

On the basis of 50 cents on the $100 valuation there was due the State in taxes for one year, $750,000, and for five years $3,750,000.

On the basis of 60 cents on the $100 valuation there was due Fayette county and school district for one year, $900,000, and for five years $4,500,000.

Total amount due State, Fayette county and school district $8,250,000.

These figures are based on valuations appearing in Walter Byars' original suit and it is wholly probable that he placed his valuations at the highest possible maximum.

EDITORS THINK

Repeal of Classification Feature of Tax Law Would Be Fatal.

By Chilton R. Bush.

Just now the favorite sport seems to be taking a crack at the tax law, which many candidates appear to regard as the most favorable mark to shoot at, probably on account of the scarcity of other game. While the slogan, "Repeal the Tax Laws" has been announced by a number of candidates as a means of attracting votes, when called upon to specify the laws they would repeal, there is an ominous silence. There are undoubtedly many tax laws which should be repealed and many others which should be changed, but to consign all of the laws to oblivion is neither logical nor practical, as any one entitled to hold office must admit.

Many editors with political ambitions and political demagogues talk "bumbo" to gratify their constituents and to gain the public applause. Politicians, who, a few weeks ago, were eager to repeal into the present tax law, have changed the positions and declare for a "change." Their change in position has been brought about by the press of the state which denounced their demagogic tactics. But, that the tax laws need changing in several respects is not denied by any candidate or any editor.

The weak point in the law is the provision which permits a central board at Frankfort to review the assessments of county property, as made by the county boards. This provision is very unpopular. There are a number of counties that feel that the Board at Frankfort has acted in an arbitrary fashion in raising county assessments. The probable outcome of the tax question will be to allow the principle of classification to stand but to wipe out the power of the central board at Frankfort to review county assessments.

The trouble encountered in abolishing the central board, if each county is allowed to fix its own assessment for purposes of state taxation, the Louisville Evening Post thinks, will be "the inducement to fix that assessment too low with a result that taxes would not be equitably distributed."

"The trouble is not with the new laws," says the Cynthiana Democrat. "They represent the only progressive legislation Kentucky has enjoyed in a quarter of a century. The equalization of land values is not undertaken under the new laws, but under the old. It is nothing but an effort to enforce an old law which has never been enforced, and in consequence of its non-enforcement Kentucky has fallen deeply in debt. The new laws should be given a chance. They have uncovered more bank deposits and hidden securities that were assessed before, reduced the tax on live stock, and agricultural implements, and when every fellow gives in his real estate at something like its true value the tax rate will fall."

By no means should the classification feature of the tax be repealed. Instead of placing the burden on the real estate, the new classification feature has taken part of the burden from real estate. Real estate in 1917 bore 73.3 per cent of the entire assessment, exclusive of bank deposits, which in 1918 real estate bore only 63.18 per cent of the entire assessment, exclusive of bank deposits. Farm land in 1917 paid 45 per cent of the total taxes, while in 1918 they paid only 38.8 per cent of the entire taxes for state purposes. In one year since Kentucky has had a classification tax the assessment of intangible personal property increased 252.9 per cent, the amount of taxes paid in by real estate was $37,911.71 less in 1918 than in 1917. Money in bank increased 1,485.5 per cent from 1917 to 1918. Certainly, the voters will not abolish the classification feature of the tax when they began to change the system of assessment.

"Shall Kentucky return to a tax system that every progressive State in the Union is discarding as absolute and inadequate, or shall this Commonwealth determine now and forever to go forward and compete with other states that are developing so rapidly and with such tremendous strides in the arts and industries?" asks the Lexington Leader.

We can never hope for a lowering of taxes. Political demagogues may cry that a repeal of our progressive tax will lower taxes, but their cry is only a humbug to secure the support of ignorant voters. "No system of tax laws can be devised that will meet the increasing demands of government and at the same time reduce taxes," says the Lexington Herald. "We may expect the cost of government, even if its functions be not extended, to keep pace with the general price level. The candidate who goes before the people proposing to reduce the expenses of government, asking for votes on the plea that he is going to reduce taxes, is either ignorant or a demagogue. The history teaches that the new tax laws are at least the foundation of a system of taxation that will be both equitable and ample."

"Economy in taxation is the only thing that will ever reduce taxes," says the Cynthiana Log Cabin, another Republican paper.

The Things About a Maxwell You Remember

1. It runs endless mileage.
2. It makes a dollar's worth of gas travel a mighty distance.
3. It shies at the repair shop.
4. Its tires seem to last forever.
5. Its upkeep never makes you poor.
6. It never wobbles or creaks in its old age.
7. If you keep two or three other cars you'll drive your Maxwell twice as often as any of the others.
8. It is never thirsty for oil.
9. Your neighbor and your banker respect your motor car judgment.
10. When you part with it, it's like parting with a life-long friend.

All ten of which are due to the 300,000-all-alike idea conceived at the time the Maxwell was originated, 5 years ago. The policy of doing one thing and doing it well over a period of years has no better example in business today than the product of the Maxwell Motor Company. It's the kind of car you never forget.

The "New War."

There will be many and diverse views of the opinions expressed by Henry Morganthau, in his address to the American soldiers in Coblenz. Those who believe in wars will gloat over his prophecy that another will occur in twenty years. Those who hate the League of Peace for selfish or partisan reasons will chuckle over his charge of its impotency. Those who are simply timid and apprehensive will suffer another shock of fear for the future. Those who know how terrible are the perils of other wars, but believe that every effort within the range of human powers—of which the League of Peace is one—could be eternally and conscientiously ready to stop them, will experience a profound regret over this prognostication of failure.

We belong to this latter class, and deprecate expression of such views. We are having all we can do as it is to keep our courage up, without the spread of such words of his pessimism and despair. It is no news to us that the treaty is a compromise; that the nations are all dissatisfied, and that its terms will continue to rankle. We know it as well as Mr. Morganthau himself. But who is he to tell us that "the manifold and conflicting demands of all the nations are impossible of fulfillment" and that therefore "we must prepare for a greater conflict" in the future?

We consider the first assertion a groundless assumption, and the second a non sequitur of the grossest and most unjustifiable sort. Conclusions and predictions such as these ignore the fact that a new and tremendous lesson has been taught the world by this war. Such reasoning might have been unimpeachable before this frightful holocaust, but absolutely inconsequential since. What! Are we to suppose that the nations have learned no lessons at all by this cataclysm of folly or of madness?

For ourselves we think that it will be many centuries before another nation will reason as the Germans did, or as the Russians do, or as many nations have. A hundred causes which have kindled wars in the past will not even start a squabble in the future. A social and civil earthquake like this war could not have left humanity as it was, any more than a glacier could have crossed a continent and left no trace of its passage.

What humanity needs today is reassurance, confidence and hope. We are always and only "saved by faith." In proportion as all men are made to doubt the value of the league it will become a failure. In proportion as they are made to believe in its effectiveness it will become a success.

Nine tenths of the merit of any instrument—a sword, a plow, a creed, a constitution, an organization, a league—is the confidence of the person or the people by whom it is wielded—a fact which Mr. Morganthau has evidently overlooked.—Enquirer.

Third Term Talk

Washington Post.

In an interview at Philadelphia Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer is quoted as saying: "If President Wilson so wished he would be nominated and would be reelected. I do not think there is any doubt of that."

Another Eminent Pennsylvanian Gifford Pinchot, who recently hurled his hat into the ring of politics, says there is no doubt that President Wilson is a candidate for a third term, though he is convinced that Wilson can be beaten if the Republicans nominate a good, progressive candidate—and Mr. Pinchot is a Progressive.

Like the ghost we have read so much about, this third-term talk will not down. Some weeks ago, when the Democratic National Committee lunched with the President at the White House, there was much buzzing of the presidential bee, and all ears and eyes were strained in an endeavor to catch a word or look of significance from the Commander in Chief. But they received no sign, and left Washington with a vague assumption that the President had no intention of running for a third term unless circumstances should compel him to become a candidate.

That, however, was very indefinite, and speculation has been rife ever since in both Democratic and Republican circles as to what the President really is thinking in connection with the next presidential election. A number of potential candidates in the Democratic party are eager to enter the race, but they hesitate because of the uncertainty as to President Wilson's intention. And as a situation is developing which cannot be adjusted except by the chief himself, he will be home in a few weeks, probably, and then may be induced to break his silence. Until then the entries are closed.

Charles E. Miller, of Big Bone, who was in the military service at Camp Taylor, was honorably discharged on the 20th inst. and accepted a position at the Bass Hospital, Sunday Department. He and Mrs. Miller will make their future home in Louisville.

Market Good Eggs.

Every freshly laid egg looks like a good egg; but many bad eggs reach the market. It is estimated by experts that 17 eggs out of every hundred spoil. A fertile egg will start development at seventy degrees and will become unfit for food after a very few hours of summer heat. Under these same conditions an infertile egg will not start incubation and will stay fresh for a considerable time. The difference between a fertile and an infertile egg is the rooster. With the rooster in the flock the eggs will be fertile and will rot during warm weather. Without the rooster there will be the same number of eggs but they will be infertile and will not spoil quickly.

Every rooster in Kentucky should therefore be sold, killed or run away from the flock as soon as the hatching season is over. June 2nd to 7th is Rooster Week in the State. Let's all get together to swat the rooster and save the money which fertile eggs lose for the farmer each year. Recent figures made by the specialists at the College of Agriculture at Lexington show that the State loses a million dollars each year thru fertile eggs. Sell the rooster while the price is high, save the price of his board and feed, and save the seventeen eggs which are usually lost out of each hundred that go to market.

ARTIFICIAL EMPIRE REMAINS

Austria is Sufficiently Sick of Its Past To Make Relapse Unlikely.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
Austria at the peace table will fare somewhat better than its wicked partner. It can plead that it fell into terribly bad company and was tempted and fooled to its ruin. Yet its own imperialistic greed and falsehood through the centuries are quite distinct enough to demand that it shall exist no more as an alleged unit in government. It never was an autonomy. It never had a conscience, nor an individualized place in moral qualities. At the last it was practically a vassal of the Prussians, a weak accomplice in the policy of frightfulness that will astound future generations. With difficulty Austria was held together by the long reign of that petrified autocrat, Francis Joseph. His death would have broken the loose aggregation if there had been no great war. Hungary was held to be a part of Austria only by a jugglery of titles. Bohemia was virtually a prisoner. The whole polyglot empire was a fiction. Austria, it may fairly be said, never had a soul. It was a machine-made semblance of a nation, a Frankenstein monster concocted in that laboratory of wickedness and lies in which Prussia was the master devil, seeking at length to put Satan on a mountain top as master of all he surveyed.

But it can be said in behalf of what was once Austria that different races so labeled would not, if they could, go back to former conditions. They are not howling that they are murderously wiped out because required to abandon evil courses and get in touch with decent humankind. Like Germany it has escaped devastation, though inflicting it on others. It is, it may reasonably be supposed, sick of its past. In this respect it differs from the whining culprit, Germany when brought to the bar of justice. Some of the poison of Hohenzollernism is scattered in the Germanized end of crumbled Austria, but not enough of it to leave the lump.

At all events, what remains of Austria will hardly want to chain itself to the Hohenzollern corpse.

SUES TO DEFINE POWERS

Orders Reassessment of Lyon County's Farm Lands.

Frankfort, Ky., May 28. — Lyon county must make a reassessment of farm lands. The State Tax Commission today, acting on petition of 128 farmers and owners of 50 per cent. of the land, directed the County Judge to have a reassessment made at once.

Lyon county is the first in which land owners laid the blame on county taxing authorities, instead of the State Commission, and found that lack of equalization, rather than high total assessment, is at fault for conditions at which they complain.

The petitioners came with affidavits and a plan of the Cumberland river bottoms, with the assessment per acre of each tract marked on it, showing inequalities, ranging from $4 to $40 the acre in the territory.

This river bottom land brings according to location and fertility $25 to $150 the acre. Gates Young, supervisor of field work, visited Eddyville and inspected the work being done by the local board, and the Commission heard a delegation of complainants and the members of the board.

A big land company, which recently sold 6,000 acres for $90,000, was assessed at $90,000, 85 per cent. of its fair cash value. To a protest that the 85 per cent. was $6,000 in excess of the sale price, the board retorted that the land would have sold for more if broken up into small tracts.

A hundred and twenty-eight farmers signed the petition for reassessment, declaring that land of the same character, and in the same neighborhood, was assessed at from 25 to 85 per cent. of its cash value.

Affidavits were made by farmers, who said their land was assessed below 85 per cent. while some of their neighbors' land was assessed for more than its fair cash value and the land of others assessed as low as 25 per cent.

A Letter From Home.

"War is hell," said Gen. Sherman, and those who have looked upon it, one and all agree that no other earthly scene so nearly pictures the most horrible imaginings as does the carnage of a bloody engagement. The heart sickening groans of the wounded, corpses scattered about and horribly mutilated, trenches heaped with dead and dying, appeal and shake momentarily the firmest belief in the righteousness of any cause requiring such expiation.

But there is another side to war. Horrible as it is, it is not only the slaughter, it is not only the passions which are aroused, it is a school of heroism, not merely of the kind which finds expression in daring acts of bravery, but also of the kind which consists of cheerful endurance of discomforts and pain. It is a trial in which many a virtue which lies dormant in the ordinary course of life is roused to action under the press of hardships endured for country's sake. How often gratitude for kind words and aid to sorest need blazes up in hearts made selfish by a hitherto quiet sheltered life. War is truly described in an old Greek play as "the hated by mothers."

It is true that war has made as many women mourn as it has killed men, and the suffering of the soldiers is small compared with that which the mothers endure. But many a mother has drawn consolation from war because of a son's awakening to the holiness and worth of a mother's love. A letter from home, worn next to his heart in the thick war and is now reading on the battle fields of France, or who has a son that was wounded for life, has my heartfelt sympathy, although I am one of the lucky ones who went through without a scratch, and I expect to return back to Boone before the summer passes, and I hope to see the same old flag flying in the school house yard that was flying at Daring Maneuver.

The daring maneuver of jumping from one airplane to another while in full flight was recently accomplished by a lieutenant of aviation, and is pictured in Popular Mechanics Magazine. Climbing down to the under carriage of the machine in which he had left the ground as a passenger, he reached the horizontal bar of the landing chassis. Hanging to this, and executing acrobatic evolutions, he awaited the approach of a second ship flying at a lower level. As it came beneath him, he released his hold and dropped onto its top plane, landing at a point near the middle of the right wing. While he had estimated the relative speeds of the two machines correctly and judged his distance without error, it still remained for him to obtain a firm hold, or possibly suffer the inconvenience of falling 5,000 feet.

LETTER FROM GERMANY.

Orville Rice Writes That He Has Passed Thru Many Hardships Without a Scratch

Under date of May 11th, Orville Rice, of Bellevue, who is in Germany, writes his mother, Mrs. Robert Rice, as follows:

Dear Mother, I will now take the pleasure to write you a few lines in answer to your last welcome letter. This is "Mother's Day," and I think it is requested that I write to my mother on this day, which is no more than proper. I am sure about the love of a mother renders who has given up a son to fight for the freedom of the world and the freedom of mankind.

Mother, I have been thru many hardships since I left home on the 22nd of September, 1917, but there is no doubt in my mind that you have gone thru many more hardships and worry than I have since I was called away in that black hour when the world was brought to a standstill by the barbarians of the outrageous Hun, but when the flower of America came to the rescue of her sister republic, France, in 1917, with an army of 400,000 men, they could not stand the enormous weight of the young blood of America which was thrown against them. On September 11th, 1918, I am proud to say the old 15th P. A. never ceased firing a moment either before 11 a. m. on that date, for which I am proud to say I joined the 15th P. A. and was fired just as the clock struck 11. This was at Muyen on the Meuse river on the Argonne front. Just one year ago today I joined the 15th P. A. at Britton, France, and from there we were rushed to Chateauvieux, where the Hun were making a victorious drive up the Meuse, and on the 2nd of June when they met the 2nd division which they have always hated since, and they don't hate any more than I do them, either.

Well, mother, Germany received the peace treaty a couple of days ago and they don't seem to like the medicine very much for it is a pretty bitter dose, alright, but to the victor belong the spoils. They say they will come across alright or we will be in Berlin before the snow falls. They are a good deal like the snake taking medicine. They will try to get out of it if they can, but when they see they can't, they will take it and then they will be alright.

Mother, I think we will leave here next month, but it all depends on the peace treaty, and don't know for sure yet, so you continue to write me until you receive word from me in the States. I will let you know as soon as possible after I land over there by way of a sure long to get away from this country, and I never want to see a foreigner again when I leave this side of the pond.

Just a word for the charity workers of the A. E. F. before I go. The U. S. A., who have given up a son for the cause, as you have, that has not his Waterloo in this war and is now reading on the battle fields of France, or who has a son that was wounded for life, has my heartfelt sympathy, although I am one of the lucky ones who went through without a scratch, and I expect to return back to Boone before the summer passes, and I hope to see the same old flag flying in the school house yard that was flying at Francis J. Sayre Writes to His Friends in Old Boone.

Laval, Mayenne, France, May 12th, 1919. To all my Boone County Friends:

As I have a little time to spare, may as well write to the Recorder and let my old friends at home have a chance of knowing how I am. At present I am not with my company, but am on detached service, working in the American Postoffice.

It is now 11:15 p. m., and I must shut out my thoughts in a gas-loud train to Le Mans at 12:01 a. m., and receive incoming mail from a westbound train to Brest at 1:55. But I shall not until noon tomorrow to make up for it. Tomorrow night my "buddy" will meet the train.

We have been at this place since the latter part of March, having left Coulaines, March 22. While we were at that place I had my most enjoyable four weeks since entering the army. From February 3rd to March 1st I was on detached service in Metz, the capital of Lorraine, with the interrelated Railway Commission, which was receiving and inspecting the locomotives which the Germans were delivering to the Allies at that point. It is, by far, the finest and most enjoyable city in which I have ever been stationed since my arrival "over here," last September.

On February 10th I was sent as courier to Strasbourg, the capital of Alsace, to carry some reports from Capt. Knight to Lieutenant Jennings and to bring some others back. As I had not ten hours to myself, I had a grand opportunity to see the city. I saw the famous Cathedral with its astronomical clock, which is one of the "seven wonders of the world." I also visited the University and the Kaiser's Palace and even took a trolley ride out to Kael on the bank of the Rhine, from where I could look over into Germany, even if the Algerian guard would not allow me to cross the bridge. While in Metz I made a very good friend named Mr. Marius Chambered, who has one uncle in Louisville and another in Salt Lake City. He has traveled most of the world, including the U. S. twice, and speaks seven different languages. He helped me stay in his city quite pleasantly.

The rest of my company is at work repairing highways, and I don't know what we will be doing. I would like to be at home July 4th so I could go to Toledo for the Willard-Dempsey fight, but if not then, surely hope it will be before the base ball season closes. Well, as the train is almost due, I must close and say "good-bye" and "good luck" to all. FRANCIS J. SAYRE, Co. L., 4th Bu. Int. Engineers, Am. Ex. Forces, via New York.

FAREWELL

Delivered by General Pershing Eulogizing 9000 Americans Inteed in the Argonne Cemetery.

Following is the Memorial Address delivered by General John J. Pershing in the Argonne cemetery, where 9,000 Americans are buried in the greatest war of history. With tremendous expenditure of life and treasure an end has come to the terrible conflict which has wrung the world for four years.

"It was a war against forces of conquest that had violated every law of humanity. It was waged against military and naval despotism and their arbitrary extension to other lands. 'Thousands of brave men' had fallen in defense of their firesides, still allied hope seemed all but lost. In righteousness, more people rose and our armies in ever increasing numbers vigorously threw their strength to the allies on the side of civilization.

"Reared in a land of freedom, these valiant men, but partly skilled in arms, came willing to give their lives to the cause without desire for gain. By their energy, their devotion, and the tide of war turned, invaded homes were saved and human liberty was saved from destruction.

"The principles which our forefathers fought to establish the heroic dead who lie here, fought to maintain, and their ideals have brought our gift to the world. But beyond this our own people thru these sacrifices gained much honor as individuals and as a nation.

"There is given us a more lofty conception of the grandeur of human liberty and with it a distinct vision of a better world. To realize this fully the foundations of our society must be laid deeper and the structure more firmly built.

"The times demand of us clearness of thought and firmness in action. The solidity of our national institutions must be the bulwark against invidious and destructive tendencies. The glory of our independent nation must be heaven and our flag the emblem of all that free men love and cherish.

"Strengthened by the practical test of war and with an abiding faith in the Almighty, let us be steadfast in upholding the integrity of our traditions as a guide to future generations at home and a beacon to all who are oppressed.

"It is especially given to the soldier to know clearly the price of liberty. Those to whom America pays tribute here today came with us in the full vigor of their youth. They left their homes encouraged by beloved ones who remained behind.

"As they went to battle they were under the glow of inspiration, realizing their mighty task and their obligations to their country, and they fought with unparalleled stoicism and determination.

"We saw enthusiasm and confidence carry them on with irresistible force. We saw them at Cantigny, and at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel, and on this historic field in the decisive battle of the war.

"We again can see them yonder advancing across the shell-torn field under withering fire. They cheer and gallantly charge the enemy's strong positions. They put him to flight in the shock of arms. Onward, ever onward they go, through weary days and sleepless nights of continuous struggle on to the final great victory.

"We weep to-day over their graves because they are our flesh and blood, but even in our sorrow we are proud that they nobly died, and our hearts swell within us to think that they fought beside them. To the memory of these heroes this sacred spot is consecrated as a shrine where future generations of men who love liberty may come and do homage.

"It is for us to proclaim what they did; their silence speaks more eloquently than words. But it is for us to uphold the conception of duty, honor and country for which they fought, and for which they died. It is for us to carry forward their purpose and make their noble sacrifice. 'Farewell, dear comrades, under the clear skies on the green hills and amid the flowering fields of France in the quiet hush of peace, we leave you forever in God's keeping.'

CHARLES A. CALDWELL

Tells of His Experience With U-Boats—Has Seen All The Principal Cities.

Kirkwall, Orkney, Ire., May 3rd, 1919.

Dear Aunt Lula:—Albertha has told me in a recent letter about your visit to my home and of mother's visit to your home and I know it just did me a world of good to hear your home, poor soul and as Albertha says, my dear mother.

Since last July, up until armistice day, we were patrolling and doing convoy work between Brest, Ire., Holyhead, N. Wales and up to Dublin, Ire., and many a weary hour I have spent in the crow's nest, following the Hun U-boats, stopping to listen, as we carry a listening device which enables us to hear a sub 20 miles, and then we rush forward at top speed and drop ash cans, as we call them, but to be more proper, death bombs, above the spot where we have heard the sub, and we must use every ounce of speed we can get so as the bomb will not blow up our own ship when we drop it forward at top speed.

Our group of chasers which had its base at Queenstown, Ireland, and consisted of fourteen chasers, had been given official credit for destroying five German U-boats. Now that we can no longer hunt down the U-boat, the Atlantic fleet has had us sent up to the North Sea, where we sweep the Ocean to sweep mines, and we have a field here in the North Sea with twenty thousand mines laid, and which must be destroyed before traffic can be resumed on the North Sea, for which service the Government is going to give medals, or medals which participate in the sweeping, a medal.

I have been in all the principal cities of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales and have been in Paris, France and London, and many times, but I find there is no place like home, and happy will be the day when I arrive home again, and I begin writing my ones, who patiently await my return.

Well, Aunt Lula, I will say good bye to my prayers for you and Mr. Bruner. Your affectionate nephew, CHARLES A. CALDWELL, U. S. S. C. 329, U. S. Naval Forces, Europe.

The writer of the above is a great grandson of the late Thos. Underhill of this county.

He is arresting them without fear or favor, and the good people of the town and county are giving him encouragement in this good work. There must be a check put to the present condition, or the capital of Pendleton will soon be in the hands of a drunken mob.—Falmouth Outlook.

County Agent Reemployed

So well has county farm agent W. D. Sutton done his work in this county that his reemployment was a foregone conclusion before the matter was submitted to the board of commissioners.

day, which voted to continue his services at an increased salary. Mr. Sutton has certainly made good in this county, and many farmers who previous to his employment by the county were skeptical as to the benefits to be derived from a farm agent, are now able to acknowledge that he is of great advantage to them and would protest against a proposition to retire him. Mr. Sutton is a hustler and his every thought is what can I do that will be to the benefit of the farmers of Boone county while his courteous manner makes them feel at ease with him at any time for such information as they may desire.

Kenneth Olt, who stuck type for the Recorder about twenty years ago, arrived in Burlington, Tuesday evening. He has spent much of his time in the West and is now back, coming east about a month ago to escape the excessive heat of the Imperial Valley.

LESS CHOLERA--MORE HOGS.

It is with gratification that officials of the Department of Agriculture are noting that losses from hog cholera in the United States are on the decline. They have become less year by year since 1913, when Federal control was begun, and the disease now rarely causes losses in herds which have received the preventive serum treatment properly administered.

During the last fiscal year hog cholera work was extended to 34 States, principally those in which swine-raising is a well-developed branch of the live stock industry. An important result of hog-cholera control work has been the stimulus given the development of swine raising in the South.

In connection with other activities of the department in this line, the assurance given to southern farmers that hogs can be produced without fear of loss from cholera has encouraged growing not only larger numbers of animals but also better types.

Similar progress has been made particularly in Georgia. A few years ago that State purchased about 40,000,000 pounds of pork more than it produced annually, but efforts for the control of hog cholera have gradually extended over the entire State, with resulting confidence in hog raising.

By 1918 Georgia produced pork enough to make shipments to outside points, besides supplying a large number of hogs to its local slaughtering establishments.

Similar progress has been made in Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

The application of sanitary measures and the proper use of the preventive serum treatment have accomplished results gratifying in individual cases but most striking when considered collectively. How great a menace hog cholera has been to the Nation's swine industry may be judged from the accepted estimate that per cent of hogs lost through all ailments die from cholera. In 1918, however, the death rate of swine from disease was placed at 42.1 per 1,000 head, making the mortality rate from cholera practically 38 per thousand. Thus the loss was somewhat less than 4 per cent for the United States, the lowest on record, according to figures of the Department.

Immunizing swine against the disease, however, combined with proper handling--both of which are included in the department's field activities--has convinced farmers that the industry is a profitable investment and can be engaged in with entire confidence.

Boone County Will

Get Two Trucks

The Government turned over to Kentucky 150 of the surplus trucks on hand at the close of hostilities to be used in road construction. The State Road Department retained 14 or 15 of them and the others were distributed last Monday at Lexington among the counties in the State that are engaged in road construction with State and Government aid.

County Road Engineer Goodridge attended the distribution and secured for Boone two trucks, one a three ton Federal and the other a two ton Yates. The only expense in which the county will be is the cost of delivery which will be small. The present where abouts of the trucks are not known, but it is thought they will be at Lexington.

During the last fiscal year the Department of Agriculture's representatives and officials of the State experiment stations inoculated more than five and a half million hogs with anthrax cholera serum, and somewhere more than 2,000 farms found to be infected with cholera were cleaned and disinfected.

Immunizing swine against the disease, however, combined with proper handling--both of which are included in the department's field activities--has convinced farmers that the industry is a profitable investment and can be engaged in with entire confidence.

"TOOT SWEET"

For God's Country When His Work of Registration Is Completed.

Reville, France, May 12th, 1919.

My Dear Mr. Riddell:—

I know you must have thought several times that I had forgotten my promise, however, such is not the case, as I finally succeeded in securing some stamps from a distant American Postoffice and forwarded you the Helmet about a week ago, and certainly hope it reaches you in due time. I also enclosed in the helmet a German Hand Grenade which I unloaded by unscrewing the tap in the end and pouring out the high explosive powder, rendering it absolutely harmless.

Since writing you last we have moved and are now quartered in a German camp near the destroyed little town of Reville and am very comfortably situated. My "buddy" and I have a room in the Officers Quarters and I got my "beauty sleep" on a mattress and iron bed with springs, which I salvaged from the Germans, and believe me the two are quiver and luxur over here.

The advance zone looks quite different since the day the armistice was signed. The French soldiers, who are slowly moving back to their destroyed homes with the aid of German prisoners, are removing, as far as possible, all trace of the war by filling shell holes and trenches, tearing down camouflage, barbed wire, entanglements, etc. Now that spring is here and the foliage is all green and beautiful and the sun shines real often. It is much better than the winter months when we had nothing but rain and mud. We have a couple of ball teams organized in our unit and have some fine games, equipment being furnished by the "Y" and K. of C. We hope to complete the registration of all American graves by July 15th and then we will be at "toot sweet" for God's Country.

Trusting the helmet reaches you promptly and with best wishes, I am,

Sincerely Yours,
Q. M. Sergeant, Senior Grade,
PHILIP TALIAFERRO,
311 Graves Registration Service,
American Expeditionary Forces.

"Take All"

"Take All" has practically destroyed whole fields of wheat in Illinois near East St. Louis. It has also been found in Indiana. The specialists at the Experiment Station at Lexington are on the lookout for this fatal disease on Kentucky farms. The following description is given by the specialists that the farmer may be able to recognize "Take All".

Plants affected with "Take All" or foot rot, are greatly stunted. The leaves are darker green than those on healthy plants. The stalks are brown or gray-black and are often so rotted at the base that they will pull out easily. Such plants often send up secondary shoots which may have grasslike leaves much narrower than the first set. As the disease progresses the plants may be entirely killed out in considerable patches. Plants not so badly diseased may send up jointed stems and even produce a head. These usually become white and fail to fill out properly.

Farmers, who find plants which appear to have this disease, should send them at once to the Experiment Station at Lexington, Ky.

Good Rain Will Make the Wheat

A rain at the proper time will make a very large yield of wheat in this county, and the farmers are highly pleased with present prospects. The acreage is very much larger than for many years and it is time now threshing machines were brought into the county to take care of the crop. Last year some of the farmers were late getting their crops threshed and unless there are more machines to attend to that work this year the delay in many instances will be very perplexing.

Voted 20 Cents Road Tax

Five more counties in the State of Kentucky have lately appropriated funds for securing county agents; but the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture is unable to find men for these places. Sixty-five county agents are already busy on their jobs at the present time. This means that seventy counties, more than one half of the State of Kentucky, are striving to make farming a better business for both the big farmer and the little farmer.

Broke Camp

The Erlanger boys down on Gunpowder creek broke camp last Sunday afternoon, having had a splendid outing of ten days, during which time they caught a great many fish that were served in the best of style by their noted cook, Wm. Phillips. The camp has by no means been abandoned as it will be visited often during the summer by Erlanger people, many of whom delight in a sojourn there.

Chickens Doing Well

John P. Duane reports his chickens as doing splendidly this summer. He has about four hundred in his yard and they are producing a large quantity of eggs. He has taken great pains in breeding up his chickens and is now reaping his reward. He has many numerous sales of stock to persons both in and out of the county.

DAIRY FACTS

RENTING FARM FOR DAIRYING

Half-and-Half System Proves Most Successful in Representative Section Near Chicago.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The so-called half-and-half system is the most common in use and the most satisfactory in renting dairy farms in representative dairy regions near Chicago studied by farm management specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Generally speaking, under this system the landlord supplies the land, the tenant the labor, and each shares the expenses and income equally. The study was made on 143 farms in Green county, Wisconsin, and Kane county (the Elgin district) Illinois, where dairying is a comparatively old, well-developed and profitable industry. In the report of the study, published as Bulletin 603, of the department, it is brought out that while this system is particularly applicable to the regions studied, it is believed to be suitable in dairy sections generally.

Under the half-and-half system the landlord furnishes the land, buildings, the greater part of the seed and fertilizer, and half the productive stock, while the tenant furnishes horses, machinery, half of the productive stock, part of the seed, and sometimes part of the fertilizer. All surplus from the grain and hay owned in common. When a feed of any kind is bought, its cost is shared equally between the landlord and tenant. In general, each party pays the taxes on all property owned by him, including the farm road tax, though in many cases in the North Central states all the farm road tax is worked out by the tenant.

Under this system the poultry frequently is owned exclusively, in limited numbers, by the tenant, and he gets the proceeds therefrom, but with this exception, each party generally receives half of the proceeds of farm sales of all products of whatever nature.

Less frequently dairy farms are share-rented on the third system, the landlord supplying everything but the man-power, which is furnished by the tenant, and getting two-thirds of the sales of all products while the tenant receives one-third. When feed is purchased the tenant pays one-third of the cost.

The length of lease in the regions studied ranges from one to five years. In the Wisconsin district 76 per cent of the leases were for one year only, none being for a longer period than three years, while in the Illinois district 63 per cent of the leases were for one year. In the Wisconsin group 35 per cent and in the Illinois group 27 per cent of the leases were verbal. Seventy-five per cent of the farm income on the farms of the Wisconsin group and 85 per cent on those of the Illinois group was from dairy cattle and dairy products. In the Wisconsin group 21.5 per cent of the cows were home-raised heifers that became fresh during the year; 18.9 per cent of the herds were discarded or sold as dairy cows. The farmers prefer to raise their cows instead of buying them, and on over half of the farms studied there were pure-bred Holstein bulls. In the Illinois group 8 per cent of the cows were home-raised heifers with first calves, while 27.6 per cent of the herds were discarded, indicating that this is a dairy-cow purchasing region.

FEW "DON'TS" FOR DAIRYMEN

Overfeeding Causes More Stunted Calves Than Underfeeding—Feed Them in Stanchions.

In rearing and developing dairy heifers:

- Don't overfeed. Twice as many calves are stunted by overfeeding as by underfeeding.
- Don't change suddenly from whole to skim milk.
- Don't keep calves in damp, dark, crowded, poorly ventilated barns.
- Don't feed milk in dirty pails.
- Don't be irregular as to the time of feeding, temperature or amount of milk.
- Don't feed too much alfalfa hay before the calf is three months old.
- Don't let calves suck each other after drinking milk. They should be placed in stanchions and fed grain.
- Don't make calves go without water.

ADVANCE NOT GENERAL ONE

Publication Points Out Strong and Deplorable Contrasts Existing in Alaska.

The native Alaskan of today is becoming in some sections, an intelligent and progressive factor in the life of the territory. Recently a daughter of the Hydah tribe made application for United States citizenship, and after examination was pronounced qualified to exercise intelligently the duties of an elector—the first native woman of Alaska to receive citizenship. Her father is a staunch elder of the Hydah Presbyterian church. All through southeastern Alaska, natives are taking up homesteads, organizing villages upon sound civic principles, reading the daily papers, putting telephones and electric lights into their homes—in a word, are proving the value of Christian citizenship.

But there is another side to the picture and the contrast between the unenriched and the Christian Alaskan is distressing. Scores of villages in the Bristol Bay region live where no Protestant missionary has ever been, and the one Greek priest who had ministered to the needs of 1,700 people is now dead. The revolution in Russia has cut off the support of Russian missions in Alaska, leaving the spiritual destitution and physical wretchedness of large numbers of these people wholly unrelieved.—The Home Mission Monthly.

HONOR IS GIVEN TO ITALY

Pisa and Venice Proved to Have Sent Explorers to River Niger Four Hundred Years Ago.

The director of the French school in Rome, Monsignor Duchesne, has sent the president of the Royal Italian Geographical society a letter which accompanies a brief note, most interesting to us, regarding the discovery of the narrative of a journey in central Sudan at the time when the republics of Pisa and Venice had stipulated with the sultan of Magreb for special treaties in which he conceded to the Italians the right to pass through central Africa on the Niger.

The letter says: "I write to inform you of an interesting discovery made by Charles de la Ronciere, curator of prints in the national library of Paris and author of important books on the French navy. The discovery restores to Italy the honor of having visited and described the African regions of Tunt and the Niger four centuries before the explorations of Reihdt and Chaille, the first a German and the last a Frenchman."

The account given of Tunt in 1447 is signed by an Italian by the name of Antonio Maffione and is directed to the Genoese Giovanni Maria. He was the first Christian to penetrate to that oasis—Italian American News Bureau.

What Germans Must Do.

Under the title "Conquest and Kultur," the committee on public information issued a compilation of quotations from German writers and speakers, including the Kaiser himself, to show the Teutonic worship of the war god and greed for world conquest. The pamphlet, compiled by Prof. Wallace Notestein and Elmer E. Stoll of the University of Minnesota, assisted by faculties of their own and other universities, has a foreword by Guy Stanton Ford, saying:

"No peace can ever make of Germany a fit partner for a league of honor until the German people have driven out the spirit which inspired these utterances in their name."

Work of Bureau of Standards.

One of the many new undertakings of the bureau of standards is an investigation of magnetic compasses, in behalf of the naval observatory, the joint army and navy board of specifications, and the shipping board. The bureau proposes to develop a standard method of testing compasses and to prepare specifications for the purchase of compasses by the government. A special form of magnetometer has been devised for the determination of magnetic moment and a rotation test for pivot friction is being developed. The bureau expects to test several thousand compasses in the course of the present year.

Did His Part, Anyway.

The day of the peace celebration at Chicago the school children, acting of their own volition, formed a parade and carried out a program, which included singing patriotic songs, after which they took up a collection for the united war work fund. Buddy had kept pace with the older children in everything, singing when they sang, whether the songs were familiar to him or not. When he told them that evening his mother asked: "What was it you sang?" "Oh, I don't know what we sang," answered Buddy, still enthusiastic over his part in the celebration, "but I sang just the same."

Helped Burn Emperor's Effigy.
During the celebration of victory at Genoa, Italy, a characteristic episode occurred in front of the Garibaldi monument. A group of English sailors surrounded by an immense crowd held a mock trial about the effigy of Emperor Charles of Austria. They condemned him to death and hanged the effigy on a pole, afterward applying the torch. The pole and the effigy were consumed. MARKETING BY PARCEL POST

Plan Outlined by Department of Agriculture for Building Up Trade and How to Keep It.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Parcel post as a means of transportation has been found by commercial houses to be useful and efficient. There is no reason why farmers cannot make extensive use of it under certain conditions if they will. It has been found that one of the chief factors in preventing the satisfactory development of parcel post marketing has been the price asked by some farmers for produce. To illustrate: One farmer's wife was receiving 20 cents a pound for butter in her local market, a country store. When asked if she would be willing to ship it to a city by parcel post, and at what price, she replied that she would do so at 50 cents a pound. Would-be purchasers frequently have been known to offer producers a lower price than they can obtain in their local market. It is needless to say that such imperfect and erroneous ideas as to proper and equitable prices altogether defeated the possibility of marketing produce by parcel post. Success in marketing by parcel post can be secured and held only by supplying produce of high quality and by charging reasonable prices.

The larger the quantity, within the postal limits, that is shipped at any one time, the more economical is the factor of postage and therefore the more attractive from the viewpoint of cost both to the producer and to the consumer. This applies both to shipments and the return of empty containers. It would not be economical to secure half a dozen different kinds of vegetables from as many different producers, but if a supply of half a dozen kinds of vegetables, or vegetables and fruits, could be obtained in one parcel from one producer it would be both advantageous and attractive.

Another advantage to the producer in parcel post marketing is that his mail box or local post office becomes his shipping station. This relieves him from any extra trip in order to make shipment, as the rural mail carrier takes the shipment from the mail box or some member of the farmer's family deposits it at the post office when going to call for the mail.

Many farmers often have a small surplus of produce not needed for home consumption, which could be marketed if some ready means of getting it to a consumer were available. The parcel post supplies this medium. There are also many important or side lines of production which could be developed for the same purpose.

Mutual confidence and helpfulness are needed in order to succeed; co-operation is needed. Consumers are interested in buying by parcel post only when they can secure more satisfactory produce, some advantage in price, or both. The producer will not be interested in marketing by parcel post unless it means some additional net return to him. A high quality of produce, well prepared, carefully and attractively packed, and forwarded so as to reach its destination at the time desired will go a long way toward the establishment and continuance of business. Ordinary or inferior produce will not only lose a customer but hinder the gaining of others. The producer must aim to give satisfaction by supplying his customers, as nearly as possible, with produce which meets their individual desires. The consumer must also aim to give satisfaction by properly caring for and returning containers, making prompt remittances as agreed upon and by doing his part in all phases of the transaction. In other words, a square deal is needed.

DAIRY COW FOOD CONSERVER

One Great Law Is to Turn Inedible Feeds Into Food in Cheapest Manner Possible.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Two facts stand out prominently as reasons for the increased production and use of milk. The first is that milk as purchased on the market usually supplies food material together with the growth-producing ment or vigor. The second reason is that the dairy cow is the most economical producer of animal food. One great law of food conservation is to turn inedible feeds into edible foods in the cheapest possible manner. The dairy cow will utilize coarse materials, inedible to humans—such as grass, corn stalks, hay, etc.—and will turn them into milk. Other farm animals also are converters of coarse roughage into edible foods but are not so efficient as dairy cow.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

MALLEST bits of a cloth may be used, tied in a cloth for a flat iron smoother. Use a crochet hook to catch up the threads in a run in a silk stocking; it is much more satisfactory than drawing. A piece of scouring soap put through the meat grinder will sharpen the knives.

Mead a turn halmet with a hair from your own head. When using lincen to season vegetables, like string beans, cabbage or greens, put the meat grinder; it will go farther in seasoning and save on the amount of bacon.

Paste a piece of velvet or felt in the bottom of the heel of each shoe, or if the heel of the heel wears out first, put a piece of velvet there. It will save wear. Old stockings make fine braided borders for rag rugs. Make over the worn tablecloths into smaller lunch cloths, napkins or tray cloths. The thinnest portions should be put into the emergency cupboard to be used in case of wounds.

Keep the heels of the shoes straight; this will save rubbers and buckles. Rubbers worn over turned over shoe heels will wear out often in one walking trip. A heel too high or worn unevenly will throw the body out of balance, causing many ills.

To make two pounds of butter out of one pound soften it and mix with a pint of new milk; add salt, and be sure it is carefully mixed. The butter will be lighter in color, not so solid, but will save on the butter bill.

Paint the inside of the garbage can with two coats of paint before using. It will not rust and lasts much longer. Alum mended in an iron spoon makes a fine mender for glass or china. Hot water will not dissolve it.

When roasting a chicken, place it in the roasting pan, breast side down, then baste frequently. The juice will run down into the breast and make it of better flavor. Be careful of your can tops. Do not bend the edges by putting a knife under them to remove the tops. To loosen the tops, turn upside down in hot water.

VICTORY MEALS.

CORN MEAL mush we have a homely dish; but one that is very wholesome. As a breakfast cereal served with cream, milk or butter, it is a most nourishing dish. Cooked in skimmed milk instead of water it is more highly nutritious, making the mush almost double in food value.

Indian Pudding—Cook one quart of milk in a double boiler 20 minutes, with one-fourth of a cupful of cornmeal; add three-fourths of a teaspoonful of ginger and one-third of a cupful of molasses. Pour into a buttered pudding dish and bake two hours in a slow oven or four hours in a fireless cooker. Serve with thin cream or top milk.

Cornmeal mush combined with chopped meat, seasonings of various kinds, such as fried onion, a cupful of tomatoes, or chopped green pepper, baked as one does any scalloped dish, makes a most satisfying main dish.

Spoon Bread—Take two cupfuls of water, one cupful of milk, one cupful of cornmeal, one tablespoonful of fat, two eggs and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Cook the cornmeal in water together five minutes. Beat eggs and add with the other ingredients. Beat well and bake in a well-greased dish for 25 minutes in a hot oven. Serve from the baking dish.

Corn Dodgers—These are fine, served with a roast and gravy, to be eaten with the meat and vegetables. Take two cupfuls of cornmeal, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of fat, one and three-fourths cupfuls of boiling water. Pour the boiling water over the other ingredients, beat thoroughly and cool. Form into cakes and bake in a hot oven 30 minutes. This recipe makes 14 biscuits.

The cornmeal ground at home, using the whole kernel, is as much superior to the ordinary cornmeal as fresh foods are to canned. Housewives are beginning to realize that a hard meal, costing about $3, is a good investment. One may raise her own corn, and with a mill be perfectly independent.

Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves some on Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubbe Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $15.00 per set. Cooper's Tires, the best cheap tire on the market today for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the Tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the Tire all the time, therefore, causing the wire to break through the Tire and the stuff off. My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel-tired wheel without dishing and killing the wheel. They will not let the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub left, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist the spokes. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me when you get it. I will do first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

These prices took effect May 1, 1919, and will remain in effect until further notice.

VALUE OF BORDEAUX MIXTURE

No Substitute Known That Will Control Certain Common and Serious Diseases.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As a result of the present high price of copper sulphate, the principal active ingredient in bordeaux mixture, many farmers who are compelled to combat such diseases as late blight of potato, black rot of grape and bitter rot and blotch of apple are asking the United States department of agriculture, "What can we use as a substitute for bordeaux mixture?" There is no substitute, according to specialists of the department—bordeaux mixture is the only reliable preventive for such diseases. Methods of calculating the value of commercial bordeaux mixtures have, therefore, been published in Farmers' Bulletin 994, a copy of which can be obtained from the department at Washington.

Every package of commercial bordeaux mixture carries a label on which is given its content of copper. This is usually given in percentage, and by multiplying this percentage by 3.93 the result gives the amount of crystallized copper sulphate, the bulletin explains. If the percentage is given in terms of copper oxide, multiply by 3.14; if in copper hydroxide, multiply by 2.56. In order to calculate the copper sulphate when diluted ready for application, multiply the number of pounds of the concentrated bordeaux mixture to be added to 50 gallons of water by the percentage of copper sulphate.

Physical properties, such as adhesiveness, texture, spreading quality and rate of settling, also are important factors in determining the efficiency of bordeaux mixtures. A preparation containing a large amount of copper, but coarse and granular in texture, with poor spreading and sticking qualities, cannot be expected to give good results in cases where a good fungicide is required. To test the physical properties, dilute the mixture and place a small quantity in a glass tube, and watch the speed with which the solids settle to the bottom. If the copper is held in suspension for a great length of time the physical properties of the mixture may be regarded as good.

In order to reduce the cost of spray material some growers are using a weaker mixture than is commonly advised for the various diseases which require bordeaux treatment. When the disease attacks are mild a bordeaux mixture containing considerably less copper sulphate than is commonly advised may give very good control.

Gasoline-Power Spraying Outfit With Carpenter's Horse Type of Tower and Rotary Pump Tank Filler.

provided its physical properties are good and it is thoroughly applied, the bulletin states. When infection is severe, weak mixtures should be avoided for the resultant loss when they are used may much more than offset the amount saved by using the proper strength. Spraying is a question of insurance and the grower must decide whether he wishes to insure his crop wholly or only partially by the use of bordeaux mixture containing sufficient copper.

TRIM SMALL BERRY BUSHES

Old Canes of Raspberry and Blackberry Should Be Removed Right After Bearing Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cut out all the old canes of raspberries upon which fruit has been borne during this season and burn them so as to destroy any diseases and insect eggs or immature insects on them. The old canes will die in a short time if left, but in the meantime will rob the new shoots of much nourishment. When the new shoots reach a height of three and one-half to four feet pinch out or cut off the growing tip to cause the shoots to branch. Cut out also all of the weak shoots, leaving only the strong ones.

Old blackberry bushes the same treatment.

SHEEP RAISING IS PATRIOTIC

Wool From Twenty Animals Necessary to Clothe and Equip One Soldier for War Service.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

War has given the sheep and wool industry a stupendous task. There must be 20 sheep back of every soldier to clothe and equip him. This need has made sheep raising a patriotic as well as a profitable undertaking. Sheep require little bread grain, and as both wool and mutton are in strong demand, the development of the industry will contribute materially to the nation's food and clothing supply.

"Farm Sheep Raising for Beginners" (Farmers' Bulletin 840), a recent publication of the United States department of agriculture, contains all the general directions needed to make a start. Another recent publication of the department, entitled "Sheep and Intensive Farming" (Yearbook 1917, Separate 750), will also be found helpful.

For the present season wool has about trebled in price and the price of lambs has about doubled. The gross annual returns from ewes of breeding age may be expected to range from $3 to $15 a head, depending upon the percentage of lambs raised, the weight of the fleeces and the values for these products. The lamb and wool yield depend largely upon the breed selected. So the choice of a breed is a very important matter. There are 12 breeds of improved sheep which are well established in the United States, and a number of others are gaining in popularity. These breeds differ widely in their special points of usefulness for various sections and systems of management. These points are carefully developed in "Breeds of Sheep for the Farm" (Farmers' Bulletin 576).

Sheep require a very much smaller proportion of grain than is required by other meat animals, as they get much of their nourishment from rough permanent pasture, and at the same time they keep down the weeds, which is an improvement to the pasture. This information, with much else of interest and value, is to be found in "The Place of Sheep on New England Farms" (Farmers' Bulletin 929).

Sheep raising does not require expensive equipment or heavy labor. In mild latitudes little housing is needed. Important features of buildings for sheep, drawings, and bills of materials for barns, sheds, feed racks, etc., are given in "Equipment for Farm Sheep Raising" (Farmers' Bulletin 810). In any sheep enterprise provision must be made for the guarding or fencing-in of the flock, for not only are the animals prone to stray from home pastures, but they are favorite prey for dogs, which annually inflict great losses on the industry. Winter care must be provided for, and feed and sheltered quarters must be available in cold weather. Especial care should be taken to provide for the wintering of lambs, as they are advised to enter the industry with a view of staying for several years at least. The useful life of a sheep is about six years.

SHEEP FOR "SLACKER" ACRES

Labor-Saving Value of Animals Is Important, for They Are Effective Grass Cutters.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the winning of this war guns and bullets are no more important than bread and meat. Several million acres of land in the United States produce good summer feed for sheep, but are not grazed at present. Effort should be made to secure the most economic use of every acre, and much may be accomplished in this direction by the raising of a few sheep in public parks, on golf courses and private lawns. The use of sheep in income and parks has been extensive in England. The labor-saving value of sheep is important, for they are neat and effective grass cutters.

Hogs Must Have Water.

Hogs must have water to drink, and if they cannot get fresh clean water in the trough or fountain they will drink wherever they find water, regardless of its condition.

FATTEN CALVES FOR MARKET

Tests Conducted by Bureau of Animal Industry and the Alabama Experiment Station.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In cattle feeding contests conducted by the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture and the Alabama experiment station, covering a period of five years, the fattening of grade calves for market proved profitable in every test made.

Cottonseed meal, cottonseed hulls and alfalfa hay proved to be an excellent ration and a profitable one for fattening calves. Cottonseed meal and cottonseed hulls proved to be a good fattening ration for calves for a short feeding period.

When fed in conjunction with cottonseed meal, corn silage of rather poor quality produced the same daily gains on calves as did cottonseed hulls and cheapened the cost of the daily gains.

The substitution of two-thirds of the cottonseed meal in a ration with corn did not prove profitable when corn cost 70 cents a bushel and cottonseed meal $28 a ton.

In one test it was profitable to replace one-third of the cottonseed meal with corn-and-cob meal, but in a second test nothing was gained by the introduction of corn-and-cob meal. The first year the calves which received corn-and-cob meal made slightly larger daily gains than did those which received the calves which received cottonseed meal as the sole concentrate. The second year the addition of corn to the ration did not increase the size of the daily gains, nor did the calves which received corn sell for any more per pound than the other calves.

In a third test 52 high-grade Aberdeen-Angus calves fed on a ration of about three pounds of cottonseed meal, two pounds of cowpea hay and as much cottonseed hulls as they would eat made daily gains at a cost of $5.55 per hundred pounds and returned a net profit of $3.20 each.

In a fourth experiment 34 calves which were fed for 112 days in the dry lot and then fed 89 days on pasture made good daily gains, but the profits were not as large as they would have been if the calves had been sold at the end of the winter. The gains made during the summer were good and were made cheaply, but the price of calves was so much lower in the summer than at the close of winter that the continued feeding into the summer months was not profitable.

NOW FREE OF TUBERCULOSIS

Pure-Bred Herds That Have Successfully Passed Annual Tests Are Placed on Accredited List.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One hundred and seventy-one herds, representing 6,250 cattle, were qualified June 1 for the accredited list of pure-bred herds of cattle free from tuberculosis which the department of agriculture is developing to insure disease-free sources of pure-bred stock. In order to have his herd accredited the owner must comply with uniform rules approved by the United States department of agriculture and adopted by nearly all of the states, which require annual tuberculin tests at least two successful annual tuberculin tests. In addition to the number of herds mentioned, more than 600 others have passed one successful test in preparation for accrediting. One of the many advantages of having accredited herds, which is proving popular with breeders, is that the owner may make interstate shipments accompanied by a certificate at any time within one year without subjecting the animals to further tuberculin tests.

Parasites Are Troublesome. External parasites are extremely troublesome on live stock. They do most injury when the animals are low in condition, for strong stock can resist them better than the weak ones.

Hogs Must Have Water.

Hogs must have water to drink, and if they cannot get fresh clean water in the trough or fountain they will drink wherever they find water, regardless of its condition.

ORCHARD CLEANINGS

BUDDING GAINING IN FAVOR

Most Economical Form of Artificial Reproduction of Fruit Trees—Operation Is Simple.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

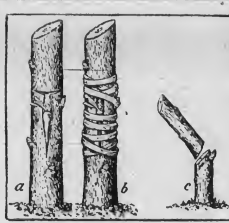

Budding is one of the most economical forms of artificial reproduction, and each year witnesses its more general use. Some nurserymen have gone so far as to use it as a substitute for all modes of grafting, save whip grafting in the propagation of the dwarf pear. Budding is economical in the amount of wood used from which to take buds. In this method a single bud does the work of the three or more upon the scion used in grafting. But while it is economical of wood, it is expensive in the use of stocks, a seedling being required for each tree, while, with the piece-root system of grafting, two, three, or more stocks can be made from a single seedling.

The operation of budding is simple and can be done with great speed by expert budders. The expense of the operation is, therefore, not more than that of whip grafting, although the work has usually to be done in July, August, or early September. The usual plan is for a man to set the buds and a boy to follow closely and do the tying.

The bud should be taken from wood of the present season's growth. Since the work of budding is done during the season of active growth, the bud sticks are prepared so that the petiole or stem of each leaf be left attached to serve as a handle to aid in pushing the bud home when inserting it beneath the bark of the stock. This is what is usually called a shield bud and is cut so that a small portion of the woody tissue of the branch is removed with the bud.

The stock for budding should be at least as thick as the ordinary lead pencil. With the apple and pear a second season's growth will be necessary to develop this size, while with the peach a single season will suffice; hence peach stocks can be budded the same season the pits are planted. Consequently the peach is left until as late in the season as is practicable in order to obtain stocks of suitable size.

The height at which buds are inserted varies with the operator. In general, the nearer the ground the better. The mode of the reception of the bud is made in the shape of a letter T. Usually the crosscut is not quite at right angles with the body of the tree, and the stem to the T starts at the crosscut and extends toward the root for an inch or more. The flaps of bark caused by the intersection of the two cuts are slightly loosened with the ivory level of the budding knife, and the bud, grasped by the leaf stem as a handle, is placed under the flaps and firmly pushed in place until its cut surface is entirely in contact with the wood of the stock. A ligature is then tightly drawn about, above and below the bud, to hold it in place until a union shall be formed. Bands of raffia about 8 or 10 inches long make a most convenient tying material.

Budding—a, Inserting the Bud; b, Tying; c, Cutting Off the Top.

As soon as the buds have united with the stock the ligature should be cut in order to prevent girdling the stock. This done, the operation is complete until the following spring, when all the trees in which the buds have "taken" should have the top cut off just above the bud.

The removal of the top forces the entire strength of the root into the bud, and since the root itself has not been disturbed by transplanting a more vigorous growth usually results from the bud than from scions in whip or crown grafting.

The one objection to budding is that it causes an unsightly crook in the body of the tree unless the tree is planted deeply enough in the orchard to cover the deformity. In rigorous climates, where trees upon tender roots are likely to suffer from severe winters, a bud of a hardy sort on a tender root is no harder than the root, because budding leaves a portion of the stock exposed above the surface of the soil and thus precludes the possibility of the development of roots from the portion above the bud; while a piece-root-grafted tree with a long scion is practically the same as a tree propagated from a cutting, as the scion will strike root and the new plant will be upon its own root. In regions where severe winters do not enter as a factor there is undoubtedly a number of reasons why budding will be the most desirable method of reproducing horticultural varieties.

School Notes.

The last session in the county to close its session is Verona for the reason it was the last school to open last autumn. The commencement will be held Friday, June 6th. It will be a combined program both for eighth Grade and High School. The 8th Grade members will receive the examination for Common School Diploma, the High School members doing equally as well passing their work and tanks. A very interesting program is arranged. R. H. Carter, of Petersburg, is to deliver the Class Address. Verona never does things by the halves so we are anticipating a great time and are sure we shall not be disappointed.

The County Board closes its school year not discouraged, although the year has been a trying one on account of the flu. We have planned for an eight months school term for next session at increased salaries thereby giving next session what we lost last.

The Division Boards will meet Saturday, the 7th, for applicants for teaching the various schools, and in the afternoon the trustees with regard to the imperative examination in Agriculture which will be held in Burlington on the afternoon of June 21st. The teachers will please be present and meet this legal requirement and avoid the trouble that may ensue by having their certificates withheld. This is a State provision over which we have no alternative.

We shall be out of the office from Thursday the 5th until the 12th inst., being at Lexington on a school mission.

We wish to call attention to the list of premiums offered by the Boone County Fair Board for school contests and exhibits. Should anyone wish information in the particular you may secure a catalogue of the fair by addressing Hubert Conner, Secretary, Burlington, Ky. R. D. 3, or addressing the Superintendent of Schools.

IN THE COUNTY COURT.

Two wills were probated in the county court last Monday. The will of J. H. Rich which gives the income from his estate to his wife until her death or so long as she remains his widow, then the estate goes to his two children but not to be divided until the youngest child is of age. The widow qualified as executrix and J. A. Loomis, Warren Lewis and C. C. Slet were appointed appraisers.

The will of Mrs. Virginia Clow gives all her property to her daughter, Mrs. Ida L. Baisly. Edgar C. Riley, Dr. Nummely, W. C. Watts and J. W. Grant were appointed appraisers.

Members of the commission say that Scott county has made every effort to make the increase as ordered, but so far has been unable to do it. If the county can show that land and town lots are assessed up to 85 per cent of their value it will not have to make all of the increases ordered.

Can't Make the Increase.

Frankfort, May 31. — As Scott county has been unable to make the increase in assessment ordered by the State Tax Commission, the commission has tentatively ordered a reassessment of the property in that county. Representatives from the county have been invited to appear before the commission.

Members of the commission say that Scott county has made every effort to make the increase as ordered, but so far has been unable to do it. If the county can show that land and town lots are assessed up to 85 per cent of their value it will not have to make all of the increases ordered.

DAIRY COWS BRING SUCCESS

Prosperity Follows Closely in the Wake of the Bull Weevil in Southern Communities.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The story of how the dairy cow came to the rescue of a section of southern Mississippi which had become badly in debt and greatly discouraged by unsuccessful attempts to grow cotton after the arrival of the devastating boll weevil is told by dairy specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

For many years the section mentioned had continued to grow cotton. The boll weevil reached the district in 1908 and began to show its effects the following year. The year in which the weevil appeared, the community produced 31,812 bales of cotton, but the next year receipts fell to 18,178 bales. In 1910 the crop was 8,282 and in 1911 only 3,168. The farmers continued to grow cotton in hopes that the weevil would leave their section, but their efforts gave less and less promise. They could no longer borrow money on the prospective cotton crop and were forced to mortgage their farms to the limit.

Finally the decline in the rural district was reflected in the nearby city. A cotton and woolen mill gave up operations. Everywhere business was affected, and the whole region faced financial ruin. The business men became thoroughly aroused to the situation and began advocating the production of other crops in place of cotton. Through their efforts, the farmers attempted to grow peanuts, cane, melons, sweet potatoes and other crops, but because the soil had become depleted in fertility and on account of lack of experience in producing and marketing the new crops, these attempts proved to be a failure. There were a few razorback hogs in the county, but little corn on which to fatten them. There were also a few scrub cows, which led some enterprising citizens to believe that the dairy industry could be developed, and as a result a local creamery was built at a cost of $7,500. It failed, however, within a year, and although a second effort was made to start it the result was the same.

At this juncture the United States department of agriculture and the State Agricultural college became interested in the problem and a dairy specialist was sent to the community. After making a thorough study of local problems, he interested many of the farmers in the growing of such crops as would furnish feed for dairy cows. Legumes and corn were the crops best adapted to support the dairy cow as well as to build up the soil and keep it clean of weeds. He succeeded, after some opposition, in getting 15 silos built before the end of the first summer. He arranged meetings and campaigns on dairy subjects. He encouraged farmers to weight and test the milk from each cow once a month, and in this way they were enabled to weed out the unprofitable animals. The creamery was reopened, and by proper management and an increased supply of milk from the community the attempt proved to be very successful. Many former cotton growers became full-fledged dairymen and are now making a greater profit than they ever had made. The business men in the town are becoming enthusiastic, and local bankers, though skeptical at first, are now supporting the movement and are providing funds for the purchase of better dairy cattle.

The work of improvement in the community has spread to other sections of the state. Other creameries have been established, and from this beginning, the publication says, the dairy cow has gradually won her way to prominence in the section where "King Cotton" had ruled for years.

The People and the Mob

The people en masse constitute what we call the mob. Mobs have rarely been right—never except when capably led. It was the mob of Jerusalem that did the unforgiving Jesus of Nazareth to death. It was the mob in Paris that made the Reign of Terror. From that day to this mobs have seldom been tempted, even had a chance to go wrong, that they have not gone wrong. The "people" is a fetish. It was the people, misled, who participated the South into the madness of secession and the ruin of a hopelessly unequal war of sections. It was the people backing if not compelling the Kaiser who committed harakiri for themselves and their empire in Germany. It is the people leaderless who are now making havoc in Russia. Throughout the length and breadth of Christendom, in all lands and ages, the people, when turned loose, have raised every inch of hell to the square and the circle were able to raise, often upon the slightest pretext, or no pretext at all.—Henry Watterson in Leele's.

Pendleton county will have good roads some of these days, but the youngest child may not live to see them. There is one system now used and the kind of roads being built are not practical. Banking Worth While

There is a sentimental side to Banking and it makes us feel that our efforts are not in vain when often some customer says to us,

"I would never have gotten a start or had what I have today had your bank not taken an interest in me and helped me to get started on the road to success."

This is what makes banking worth while and keeps our daily "grind" from becoming monotonous—we hope that we are doing some good for our customers and community in general and are glad that our service is appreciated.

REDUCE WASTE BY CANDLING

Difficulty in Determining Quality of Certain Classes of Eggs in Commercial Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although the candling method of determining the quality of eggs in the shell is the best known for commercial grading, recent investigations conducted by the United States department of agriculture show that one group of eggs of inferior quality cannot be detected by this system, and that it is inadequate in grading still another group. The investigations, reported in Department Bulletin 702, show that experienced candlers and those using extreme care do not make many mistakes in grading eggs. Eggs with green whites and those having a normal appearance but had colors are not recognizable by candling. White rots, more particularly mixed rots, eggs with yolks slightly stuck to the shell, blood rings and eggs with bloody whites are not always detected, and are included in the group most frequently misclassified by inexperienced or careless candlers. Eggs with brown shells or light-colored yolks make detection between good and bad specimens more difficult.

In the studies with skilled candlers, who candled a number of cases of 30 dozen eggs each, the average proportion of bad eggs misclassified per case varied from 0.2 in spring fresh to 10.77 in very low grade cold-storage eggs. The percentage of bad eggs which could not be found by recandling ranged from none to 6.93 per cent per case and depended on the grade of the eggs examined. In the commercial candling of 128,587 eggs, 5,685 bad eggs were found, of which 71.05 per cent were recognized by candling and the balance, or 28.95 per cent, were not found until the eggs were opened and examined individually. Then it was observed that the 28.95 per cent was divided between a group of 17.02 per cent bad eggs, which in many instances are distinguishable by candling, and a second group of 11.93 per cent consisting of types of bad eggs which cannot be discovered until the eggs are broken.

The accuracy of candling depends upon the quality of the eggs and the skill of the candler, according to the bulletin. In plants having poor management and poor candlers the number of good eggs in the discard sometimes reached 11 dozen to the case. The enforcement of a system of checking the work of individual candlers, particularly in plants employing inexperienced help, was found to be the best way to maintain high efficiency and thus eliminate waste by grading marketable eggs as rejects.

BEST WEIGHT FOR LEGHORNS

Three and One-Half Pounds for Hens and Four and One-Quarter for Cocks is Average.

There is no standard weight given for Leghorns, though the average may be said to be three and one-half pounds for hens, and four and one-quarter pounds for cocks. Pullets and cockerels are a trifle under these weights. Some strains run heavier, which is obtained by introducing more blood. It is thought that some of the English breeders have crossed a little Wyandotte blood, for their Leghorns are of a much different type.

Bank Officials Entertained.

Last Saturday being regular meeting of the directors of the Citizens Deposit Bank, at Grant, Henry Clure, president, sent notice to the directors, cashier and assistant that he was preparing lunch for them. After the business session was completed they all repaired to Henry's commodious home and upon entering the dining room it only took a glance at the table loaded with good things of the season to see it was not a lunch but one of the splendid dinners for which his wife and daughter are noted--everything prepared as only first-class cooks can.

The large platter loaded with nice, brown river fish was a favorite with the members. One fellow present ate them bones and all until a bone stopped the passage of his throat, but he managed to dislodge it in time to get his share of the strawberries and cake. To say that everyone enjoyed themselves is only putting it mildly.

MORE CAUTION NEEDED.

Ohio State Journal.

Let every man who owns an auto resolve now never to cross a railroad track without stopping and looking far up and down the track to see if there is a train coming. This simple duty can save many a life and save bloody tragedies. There is no need of these calamities. The remedy is in the hands of the autoist. There is too much reckless driving these days. One can see it on the street on nearly every trip of the trolley where some impertinent autoist flies in front of the trolley, perfectly heedless of any danger. The friends of the trolley will not permit it to figure in a disaster. There is no place that offers a better chance for courtesy and care than in an auto. It ought to be a civilizer instead of a tempter.

DEFENDS THE RED CROSS.

Corpl. Leo N. Utz Writes From Ringsdorf, Germany.

Any One Who Knocks the R. C. Never Spent Much Time At The Front.

Ringsdorf, Germany, May 22, 1919.

To the Recorder:— I have at hand a copy of the Recorder for April 24, in which an article by Mr. Charles J. Akin was very noticeable to me in view of the fact that he was very emphatic in denouncing the Red Cross overseas. In this article he would have one to believe that any soldier who was over here and has anything complimentary to say of that organization, was in the S. O. S. line, being in and never at the front, but the very fact that he knocks the Red Cross gives sufficient proof that he never spent a great deal of time at the front himself or he would have entirely a different view of the matter. When I say this, I speak from experience; for, personally, I don't know what the S. O. S. looks like and I think I can safely say that I have been through considerably more than Mr. Akin ever thought of.

I was very much amused by the ridiculousness of some of the charges which he brought up. First: He blames the Red Cross because he did not receive his mail or see a girl. I will admit that the mail service could have been improved on. I was in France three months myself before I received any, but how is one going to blame the Red Cross for that? They have nothing whatever to do with army mail, as that is handled exclusively by the military. The second of the only two reasons he gave was that the Red Cross wouldn't give him a housewife. It is hard for me to decide which is the most amusing and most ridiculous of the two. If Mr. Akin had not been so close with his money, or, perhaps, lost it all in a crap game, he might have stepped into a French store and purchased himself a needle and thread for the large sum of one franc.

Now, just a few lines in which I will state the reason why I, or anyone else, who was initiated thoroughly into this war game, speak in defense of that great unit which has fittingly been called "the greatest mother in the world."

To begin with the Red Cross was always present at the rail-way stations during those long, tiresome train rides from one front to another. With hot coffee, and more often sandwiches, to go with it. But where they shone brightest was in the front line during the drives when everything else failed. Just after the battle at Belleau Wood, when we were holding the line on the outskirts of it, my company was entrenched in a wheat field, directly exposed to enemy artillery and machine gun fire. Our ration of food was very meagre. Bread, more commonly known among us as "monkey meat," and half a box of hard tack. It was while we were preparing to be killed, half starved, that the Red Cross came to our aid with chocolate, cookies, smokes, etc., and it tasted better than the best Christmas candy I ever ate. Will I knock the Red Cross? Maybe—NOT!

It was practically the same thing that happened at Soissons in July, at St. Mihiel, in the Champagne, and the Argonne-Meuse. They always showed up in the darkest moments, and in that way I believe there was no other factor that did more toward keeping up the morale of our troops.

To conclude: The strongest evidence I can give in behalf of the Red Cross is this: If anyone wishes to pick a scrap in this outfit of Marines all he has to do is say something against this "greatest mother in the world," and he has certainly not more than he can handle. "Toot Sweet!" Now, if Mr. Akin had been with the Second Division, or any other real combat unit that he would change his ideas about such things. As it is, it doesn't pay to talk about it when you know practically nothing about it.

CPL. LEO N. UTZ.

18th Co., 5th Marines, 2nd Division, Germany.

Sold His Store. E. E. Kelly has sold his large stock of general merchandise in Burlington to Dudley Blyth, who has been in his employ for several years. Mr. Kelly has been in the business here for ten years and has made friends of a large circle of persons. Before coming to Burlington he had sold goods ten years in Bellevue and he has decided a rest is due him. He turns over to his successor a good trade and as Mr. Blyth is very much of a hustler all predict he will maintain its present volume and increase his already large stock as the trade demands. Here's wishing him success and Mr. Kelly a speedy recuperation. Walter Brown will operate the store for the new proprietor of the store.

RUST IN WAEAT

Disease Threatens To Curtail Greatest Wheat Harvest.

Washington, June 9. Bumper crops are growing throughout the country, but plant diseases already have done some damage and threaten to curtail production somewhat.

The largest wheat crop ever grown, aggregating 1,236,000,000 bushels of winter and spring wheat combined, was forecast in today's monthly report of the Department of Agriculture.

That represents practically one-third of the world's wheat crop this year. In previous years the United States has grown about one-fifth. Big crops of oats, barley, rye, hay, peaches and apples prospect.

Red rust made its appearance during May in the principal winter wheat producing sections and the infection is spreading. It caused damage to the extent of about 7,000,000 bushels to winter wheat, and experts are unable to determine how extensive the damage will be by the time that crop is harvested.

Burlington base ball team traveled to Petersburg again last Saturday, where it turned in another loser to the team at that place, the score being 5 to 1 in favor of the home team. Matthews was complete master of the Burlington batsmen as usual and had no trouble keeping them off of the bases. His support was good. Finn pitched a good game and with anything like the support to which he was entitled and some slugging on the part of his team, the score would not have been so lopsided. Petersburg has a very promising aggregation of young players that bids fair to be the class of the county this year.

The State Road Department has offered County Road Engineer C. W. Goode $175 a month to take charge of the road work in Warren county, of which Bowling Green is the county seat. The fiscal court has been called to meet.

Goode took up the matter with Mr. (Goode) as he has a year's contract with Boone county.

INTERIOR OF CHICKEN HOUSE

Kind of Floor Most Suitable Depends Greatly on Soil on Which Structure is Located.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The kind of floor which is best suited for a particular poultry house depends upon the soil on which it is located, and the use of the house. On light, sandy, well-drained soils a dirt floor is satisfactory, especially for small or colony hen houses. Such floors should be from two to six inches higher than the outside ground surface, and it is advisable to renew them each year by removing the contaminated surface down to clean soil, and to refill with fresh sand or fine gravel and earth. A board floor is generally used where the level of the floor in the house is from one to three feet above the ground surface and in portable houses on land which is not well drained. Board floors harbor rats and rot quickly and should be raised some distance off the ground so that cats or dogs can get under them, which also allows a free circulation of air to prevent the wood from rotting. Cement floors are adapted to long permanent buildings, brooder houses, incubator cellars, and to all permanent houses where an artificial floor is required and can be built on the ground level. These floors are easy to clean, very sanitary, rot proof, and comparatively inexpensive, if one has a cheap supply of gravel or sharp sand.

Wooden floors are usually made of matched flooring and are generally in cold climates to make them tight and warm, in which case the lower layer of boards is usually laid diagonally to strengthen the floor. Floors of one thickness give good satisfaction in most sections of this country and in growing houses. Three-quarter-inch mesh wire may be used under wooden or dirt floors to keep out rats. In making concrete or cement floors and walls select Portland cement of known reputation, which should be kept in a dry place; use clear, coarse, sharp sand or gravel which does not contain over five per cent of clay or silt and crushed stone or gravel one-fourth to two inches in diameter. The gravel should be screened through a one-fourth-inch mesh wire screen and the coarse particles used as stone, while the material which passes through the screen is sifted through a Well-Arranged Hen House.

40-mesh wire screen in order to separate the sand and any material which goes through a 40-mesh wire is thrown away. A mixing board with a smooth surface and a box for measuring the sand and gravel are necessary. Spread the sand on the board and add the cement; mix these thoroughly together; add three-fourths of the required amount of water and then the gravel or stone; mix thoroughly and add water to the dry spots, making the mixture just wet enough to be jellylike. Thorough mixing is very essential, as the mortar should completely coat all particles of the mixture. Only enough water should be added so that when the concrete is tamped on laying the water will nicely flush the surface.

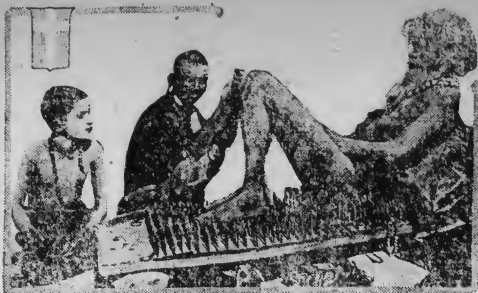

POULTRY FOOD FROM WASTE

Fowls Convert Materials Into Feed That Cannot Be Utilized by Any Other Kind of Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Keep this thought in mind in considering the growing of more poultry as a war necessity: Poultry is a means of converting into good food materials that cannot be utilized by man, that cannot be eaten by any other kind of stock, and that without the poultry would be absolute waste. Very clearly it becomes a national as well as an individual duty to keep enough poultry to take up all such waste materials. As long as fowls take the bulk of their feed from such sources and require to be fed on grain or other garnered feeds only as a finishing process, additional food is being created.

To prove that his soul is above worldly troubles and physical pain, this Hindu fakir nonchalantly reclines on a bed of spikes, much to the amazement of less spiritual observers. The bed of spikes will be one of the interesting exhibits shown at the Methodist Centenary Celebration, in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13. Whether a fakir, Hindu or otherwise, can be found to demonstrate his power of endurance on it is still an unsettled question with celebration officials.

To Play Great Organ at the Methodist Centenary

MRS. MONTGOMERY LYNCH of Seattle will play the great $50,000 organ in the presentation of "The Wayfarer," the magnificent pageant of the Methodist Centenary Celebration, in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13. Montgomery Lynch, her husband, will direct the chorus of 1,000 voices, which is a part of the pageant.

REDUCED FARE ADDS INTEREST

Visitors to Methodist Centenary to Be Well Cared For.

REGISTRATIONS ON INCREASE

Housing Committee of the Celebration Have More Than Forty Thousand Rooms in Private Homes at Their Disposal, Where Those Who Attend Can Be Lodged as Conveniently as at a Hotel.

Announcement by the government that a special low rate of one and a third fares for the round trip has been authorized for the celebration, Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13, has tremendously increased the interest in that event and advanced manifold the inquiries and registrations coming from all parts of the United States. At headquarters the other day a single mail brought cash registrations from 14 separate states and South America.

The low rate has increased work for the special committees, which are responsible for housing the large influx of visitors now seen to be certain. Accommodations fall into three classes: First, the hotels, which have an average daily capacity of 5,000 visitors. The second field of accommodation will be in public buildings, which have been specially fitted up for this sort of service for the celebration. These include the State School for the Blind, the State School for the Deaf, the large barracks which were provided at Ohio State university for the student army training corps, and other buildings of a similar nature held in reserve should the throng exceed even present generous expectations.

The third line of convenience for the hospitality of Columbus is in the homes of the citizens themselves. More than 40,000 rooms have been listed with the housing committee, and these are card indexed by location, telephone number and best means of access. Visitors to the Celebration can be lodged as conveniently as a clerk at a hotel assigns a visitor to his room. In order that there might be no misunderstanding, the committee in charge has a uniform rate for accommodations in private dwellings. The charge will be $1 per day for a single person in a room and $1.50 per day for two persons in a room.

Always generously provided with restaurants, Columbus at the present time is having its number largely reinforced by reason of many places being turned into restaurants which were occupied as cafes before May 24, when the state became dry. In addition to these, extraordinary facilities for feeding large numbers quickly are being installed in the exposition grounds.

MONSTER SCREEN AT METHODIST CENTENARY

Special Lantern Devised For Throwing Pictures.

Finishing details are being placed on the arrangements for the erection of the largest screen for the projection of pictures ever built in the world. This is to be one of the features of the Methodist Centenary Celebration, to be held in Columbus, June 20 to July 13.

This monster screen will have a surface for pictures 115x115 feet. The actual structure will be several feet larger in each direction. A special lantern has been successfully devised for throwing these tremendous pictures the necessary distance. The screen will be 250 feet from the nearest spectator and will be built to withstand 40 pounds pressure to the square foot. The lantern which will project these pictures has already successfully thrown pictures on a screen in New York City across a distance of four and a half city blocks. According to Architect Harry C. Holbrook, the screen will be, in effect, three sides of a house. It is necessary to give it the foundations equivalent to a four-story building.

In order that there may be as much salvage as possible after the screen has served its purpose, the picture face will be of fitted lumber, which later will be treated with a white surface preparation.

The estimated cost of this screen will be $8,000. The screen and the lantern will be used in showing the tens of thousands of views, made all over the world by the Methodist Missionary Survey, which has the finest collection of pictorial reviews anywhere in the world.

Columbia Professor in Charge of Exhibits at Methodist Centenary.

PROFESSOR LA MONT A. WARNER of Columbia university is director of fine arts and designer of exhibits and scenery for the Methodist Centenary Celebration, in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13. On plans which he laid down, the multitude of exhibits, domestic and foreign, have been arranged in the buildings in scenic effects, making them at once appropriate and effective. Professor Warner had charge of world exhibits held in Boston, Chicago, Baltimore and Providence in past years, and has studied and worked abroad.

Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves some on Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubber Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set; Cooper's Peerless, the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel, it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the Tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the Tire all the time, therefore, causing the wire to break through the Tire and shut off.

My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel-fitted wheel without dishing and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub left, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me where you will get first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

These prices took effect May 1, 1919, and will remain in effect until further notice.

SALVATION ARMY
VALIANT IN WAR

Having Served Gloriously in the Trenches, Is Coming Back From Overseas for Peace Time Activities

ASKS HOME SERVICE FUND

National Campaign to Replenish Resources Depleted by Long and Direct Contact Services With Our Boys Scheduled for June 23-30.

New York (Special).—Like the 2,000,000 American boys whom it met in the trenches of France, the Salvation Army is coming back from overseas, ready to put aside its khaki uniform of war service, don again the "civvies" and embark once more on its normal peace time activities.

And, just like those doughboys, the Salvation Army has come out of the war victorious and with citations for bravery, decorations for gallantry under fire and golden chevrons indicative of honorably won wounds on its arm. The victory which the Salvation Army has won is a victory over the obstacles that lay before it in its purpose of efficient service of the fighters of Pershing's army. Its citations are the thanks, cheers and prayers of 2,000,000 doughboys. Its wound stripes are rightfully golden of hue, for they typify the unselfish way in which the Army threw all its resources—financial, spiritual and moral—into the effort to help the American soldiers in France.

Now the Army is asking the people of Kentucky to give it concrete evidence of the gratitude which has been so loudly, and so willingly expressed. From June 23 to 30 the Salvation Army will conduct in Kentucky a campaign to raise funds for its Home Service Fund. The money is needed both to reequip the fortunes of the soldier and to permit it to carry on the work it has always done on the larger scale which the public now demands. Raising the money by this means, the Salvation Army explains, will eliminate, perhaps permanently, the necessity for the ceaseless solicitation of funds which has been a bugbear to the Army and the public alike. It will permit the workers of the Army, who, forced to devote more than half their time to gathering money, were in consequence only half efficient in their evangelistic and social service work, to devote all their time in future to the duties for which they have been trained.

The amount of the fund has been determined exactly and logically by means of budgets prepared locally by workers of the Salvation Army in all parts of the state.

Already headquarters for the campaign in charge of Colonel I. Sobel, of Erie, Pa., have been established in Lexington. A ready response in encouragement and cheering wishes for success has been heard from all parts of the state. Men and women prominent in all walks of life have volunteered their services as active participants in the drive. The Army's many loyal rooters—the boys who went overseas in khaki—are all lined up ready to help. The Army not only helped them over there, but it found jobs for many of them after they had been mustered out of service, helped them get the civilian clothing that was necessary if they wanted to take those jobs, fed many of them, gave them shelter and furnished them with transportation to their homes.

For the war service of the Salvation Army is still under way. Its workers are still many of them, in France, and its aid, comforts and hopes for the reception of the boys returning from abroad are in full swing here.

But the Salvation Army workers will its war work be abandoned until the last boy is out of the khaki of the army or the blue of the navy. The larger activities which necessitated the coming campaign will exist and be conducted independently of the service of the fighters from abroad.

CARDINAL GIBBONS
ENDORSES S. A. DRIVE

Venerable Churchman Expresses Hope That $13,000,000 Will Be Raised

The following letter was addressed to former Governor Whitman of Kentucky by Cardinal Gibbons:

"Honorable and Dear Sir—I have been asked by the local Commander of the Salvation Army to address a word to you as National Chairman of the Campaign about to be launched in behalf of the above named organization. This I am happy to do, and for the reason that along with my fellow American citizens I rejoice in the splendid service which the Salvation Army rendered our soldier and sailor boys during the war. Every returning trooper is a willing witness to the efficient and generous work of the Salvation Army both at the front and in the camps at home. I am also the more happy to commend this organization because it is free from sectarian bias. The man in need of help is the object of their effort, with never a question of his creed or color.

"I trust, therefore, your efforts to raise $13,000,000 for the Salvation Army will meet with a hearty response from our generous public. Faithfully yours,

"J. CARD. GIBBONS."

That Salvation Army Smile

Several thousand veterans of the Argonne Forest recently entered New York harbor. Among them were several badly wounded Marines. One man, easily distinguished because of a coat sleeve that dangled empty at his side and a Croix de Guerre, was making his way slowly to the waiting ambulance when a Salvation Army girl approached him and offered doughnuts and coffee. "Now I know I am home," he said. "Those doughnuts helped a whole lot 'over there,' and, just crack out of the box when we land, we find more waiting for us. The best thing about the Salvation Army work out here the front line was the smile that accompanied the gift. Those girls had a knack of wrapping up every doughnut and every cup of coffee in a smile. The doughnuts were true, but the smile that took the place of powdered sugar." The Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign for Kentucky opens June 23 to June 30.

FARM STOCK

INCREASE SHORT-FED CATTLE

To Save Feed, Department of Agriculture Advises Against Too High Finishing of Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In view of the unfortunate experience last winter of some feeders of heavy cattle, the continued high price of grain and the uncertainty of a continuation of good prices which well-finished heavy carcasses now command, the United States department of Agriculture believes that feeders should concentrate their efforts on the production of economically short-fed cattle. Of course, this statement does not refer to baby-beef production, which is a specialty within itself.

There is no question that for the last several years cattle feeders have been making beef too fat; that is, they have put more finish upon the animals than economy would justify. This idea was evidently in the minds of the advisory committee of agricultural and live stock producers appointed by the department of agriculture and the food administration when that committee recently made the following recommendation:

"We feel that cattle marketed at the present time in class 4 (long-fed or export and highly finished cattle), and known as 'exports,' owing to the high costs of labor and feed, are not an economical product, and their production should not be encouraged."

Not only has the advisory committee thus warned against the heavy feeding of cattle, but it is also understood that the government officials directing the buying policies of the government will not consider themselves responsible for the prices of very fat cattle.

Recent experiences by various state experiment stations and the United States department of agriculture have borne out the fact that good beef can be produced by using a relatively small amount of grain, or with nutritious concentrates in connection with silage and some other cheap roughage in the form of hay.

The principle that should be avoided in future feeding operations, according to the advice of the department of agriculture, is to reduce to a minimum the amount of high-priced feed and to make judicious use of cheap roughages. In other words, instead of feeding from 50 to 60 bushels of dry corn per steer in the long feeding period, as was the custom in the past, the quantity should be, and may be profitably, reduced to 15 to 20 bushels in a shorter feeding period, or the dry corn grain can be eliminated altogether, as the liberal use of good quality silage will furnish an excellent ration. The use of cottonseed meal, linseed meal or other protein-rich feed, even though high in price, is to be highly recommended, because the higher other feeds are, the more profitable becomes the use of a protein supplement. Expensive hay may be completely eliminated in the ration by the use of a cheaper dry roughage such as corn stover, coarse hay or straw.

The department believes that by avoiding too heavy feeding and too high finish, and by following the suggestions given above, feeders should be able to feed cattle at a profit in spite of the high prices of food and labor. The recent statement of the United States food administrator, and the available reports from foreign countries, indicate that there may be a great increase in the demand for beef, which is encouraging to the cattle feeders of this country, and especially those who suffered losses during the past feeding season.

Clean Wallow Hole Important. A clean wallow hole is very important. Hogs may use the muddy wallow if no other is available, but if clean water is provided in a concrete wallow they will prefer it to the mud-holes.

Protection From Flies. Horses, mules and cows should be protected from flies as much as possible. Some of the best ways of doing this are the use of fly nets, fly paper, and the use of fly repellents.

Settling Returned Soldiers

The co-operative farmers of Western Canada are aiding the Government materially in settling returned soldiers on farms.

When the soldier decides to take up farming, he is examined first by the Soldiers' Settlement Board, which determines his fitness for the work. If he fails to stand this test, the board advises him to try something else. If he passes it, he selects his farm and agrees on the price with the owner of it. He then applies to the board for a loan on the land.

The board's first step is to learn whether he has bought the land at a fair price. To do this it calls in the services of the United Grain Growers' Securities Co., the co-operative farmers' organization for appraising land for settlers. When the securities company presents its appraisal the board pays over the value of the land, retaining a mortgage upon it in favor of the Government.

The soldier next purchases his farming implements. Here again the farmers' co-operative organization lends a helping hand. The United Grain Growers have show rooms in many cities. From the machines on exhibit, the soldier makes his purchases and equips his farm. This bill also is paid by the board.

A large per cent of the returned veterans are taking advantage of the Government's generous offer to establish them on the land. In all the larger towns of Canada, the Soldiers' Settlement Board has headquarters and almost every day there are a hundred or more soldiers in the offices arranging to buy farms. The Government loans go as high as $8,000 to an individual soldier.

When the co-operative farmers of Western Canada went into the land business last year, land owners and intending settlers welcomed an organization through which farm lands could be handled on a uniform basis. The co-operative appraisal business, by furnishing reliable information about Western farm lands and their real values, has been of wonderful help in the marketing and settlement of farm lands. It was not expected, however, that the Government would so soon see the value of this organization and use it in the settlement of soldiers.

Edith Cavell's Last Letter

Tampa Tribune.
A beautiful letter written by Edith Cavell on the night before her execution to the young nurses associated with her at the time of her death, and for a few years ago has recently been made public. It is so full of worth-while sayings, that it should be read wherever there are people who admire courage and a clear outlook on life. A part of the letter is as follows:

"I hope that you will not forget our evening talks. I told you that devotion to duty would bring you true happiness and that the knowledge that you had done your duty earnestly before God and your own conscience would be your greatest support in the trying moments of life and to the face of death."

The more wordy, beware of uncharitable speech. In these eight years I have seen so much unhappiness which could have been avoided by a few words had not been withheld here and there, perhaps without evil intention, but which ruined the reputation, the usefulness, the life of some one who had been so refined upon their lips, cultivate loyalty and esprit de corps."

"I was such a woman as this world was foully put to death by human command, but who 'dying dead, yet speaketh.'"

Anarchists at Work.

The bombing of the homes of Attorney General Palmer and other public officials and of business men following the sending of deadly bombs through the mails last month leaves no doubt that there is a working conspiracy of anarchists to maintain a reign of terrorism for revolutionary purposes.

We do not doubt the sentiment of an overwhelming majority of American working men on this issue. They will repudiate any programme with horror. They will denounce the murderous conspiracy as alien to America and its free institutions and detestable to Americans, who have in their hands the power by ballot and legal process to right all wrongs and insure justice and liberty for all elements of people.

There is no doubt of the response of the American people as a whole to this revolutionary programme and murderous appeal. They will repudiate and denounce it.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE $13,000,000 SALVATION ARMY POSTER

"A man may be down, but he's never out!"
HOME SERVICE FUND CAMPAIGN
SALVATION ARMY
MAY 19-26
1919

"A man may be down, but he's never out," the Salvation Army slogan, furnished the theme for the official Home Service Fund Campaign poster designed by Frederick Duncan, the noted artist. From this he has evolved a striking artistic creation, typifying the hand of the Salvation Army reaching out to rescue those who are enshrouded in the clouds of poverty and vice.

A Salvation Army lass is the principal figure, and the slender figure of her cloak, thrown back as she enfolds those who are calling out to her in distress, furnishes the poster with its one spot of brilliant color. The background is of blacks, grays and greens, indicative of the storm clouds of misery and want.

HYDROPHOBIA

Caused From Dog Bite Inflicted Six Weeks Ago—Mad Stone Applied.

Howard Beall, 26 or 27 years of age, son of Jordan Beall, of Hebron neighborhood, is suffering of Hydrophobia. About six weeks ago he was bitten by a puppy that belonged to him and which had hydrophobia having previously been bitten by its mother that had rabies. Both these animals were killed and Beall visited O. P. Tanner, where the Mad Stone was applied to the supposed wound but it failed to adhere.

The matter was given very little more thought until a few days ago when the young man became ill, and shortly thereafter his physician detected symptoms of hydrophobia, which soon became pronounced. It was decided to give the mad-stone another trial, and Mr. Tanner was called. The stone was applied to a different part of the finger which was bitten and it stuck for several minutes. In a few hours after the stone adhered the patient showed a change for the better and was able to eat some and a restful followed, but he grew worse again Tuesday and died about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning. Drs. Nunnally, of Bullittsville and Sayre, of Florence had charge of the case and did all in their power to alleviate the suffering of their patient, recognizing that he was hopelessly stricken. Mr. Beall was a nephew of Mrs. R. S. Crisler, of Burlington.

EVANGELINE BOOTH TELLS HOME SERVICE FUND'S NEEDS.

Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, explaining the purpose of the campaign for $13,000,000 which will be conducted in Kentucky June 23 to 30, for the Salvation Army House Service Fund, said:

"The Salvation Army has been toiling on the upward trend for more than half a century, doing just what it did in France, all in the same spirit and manner, but you did not happen to hear of it, perhaps.

"The war depleted our forces and our finances at home. There must be not only a re-education now, but we must rise to the new high tide mark and equip ourselves to maintain here in the United States the contracts we were privileged to make on both sides of the sea because of the war."

The Salvation Army Home Service Fund campaign for Kentucky will be conducted during the week of June 23-30. Its success will enable the Salvation Army to practically double its efforts among the poor.

The Salvation Army returns from the trenches of France to take up its half-century old battle in the trenches of poverty in the United States. Remember the Salvation Army Home Service Fund campaign for Kentucky June 23-30.

LLOYD GEORGE PRAISES "ARMY"

Evangeline Booth, Commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, received the following letter from David Lloyd George:

"British Delegation, Paris, April 8, 1919.

"Dear Madam—I have very great pleasure in sending you this letter to say how highly I think of the great work which has been done by the Salvation Army amongst the Allied Armies in France and the other theaters of war. From all sides I hear the most glowing accounts of the way in which your people have added to the comfort and welfare of our soldiers. To me it has always been a great joy to think how much the sufferings and hardships endured by our troops in all parts of the world have been lessened by the self-sacrifice and devotion shown to them by that excellent organization, the Salvation Army. Yours faithfully,

"DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

Banking Worth While

There is a sentimental side to Banking and it makes us feel that our efforts are not in vain when often some customer says to us,

"I would never have gotten a start or had what I have today had your bank not taken an interest in me and helped me to get started on the road to success."

The Coal Situation.

The Coal Age says:

"Consumers of coal have a short memory. Every possible effort must be made right now to point out the dangers that will arise from permitting coal stocks to be depleted. The mild winter has caused a saving in coal consumption of about 5,000,000 tons. The slowing down in industries and the lessened demands of transportation are responsible for a further decrease in coal consumption of approximately 8,000,000 tons per month. The production of coal during January, compared with October, the last month of the year, showed a falling off of about 16,000 tons. The February decrease will be still greater. It is evident, therefore, that the falling off in output is considerable greater than the decrease in consumption. If this continues, a serious situation will arise. Every effort should be made to get consumers to buy coal in moderation right now. If this is not done, prices are certain to go higher. The public has been misinformed.

It has been told that if purchases were deferred, fuel prices would come down. Instead there has been an increase in the selling price."

A sharp advance in price of domestic coal already began, following closing of contracts with railroads and an abnormally light production, portend the winter advance, according to Mr. McGuire, who said:

"The householder in paying his coal bill can make a mental change to the extent of a substantial portion of the cost to the account of the United States Railroad Administration, and can decide more readily than otherwise whether he is in favor of Government ownership of railroads and other utilities."

"In numerous instances railroads have controlled mines separately from the commercial market so long that they had no customers to whom they could turn their product at $1 or more per ton under the price at which the Government had commandeered their output. A number of such mines have been forced into bankruptcy or serious financial embarrassment."

"During the last several weeks the majority of railroads have placed their fuel contracts for it is easy to see that small consumers, including householders, will have to pay prices to restore the average. With the abnormally light production of the last four or five months, it seems most probable that prices on domestic coal next fall and winter will be high."

Casualties in the Air.

Casualties in the air service of the American army in France aggregated 50 per cent, according to figures revealed by the War Department. This was a considerable higher percentage of killed than is disclosed by the records of the British and French aviation service.

The number of killed, wounded and missing of the American, British and French air service casualties were disclosed as follows:

Killed—American 509, or 50 per cent; British 2,680, or 38 per cent; French 1,945, or 31 per cent.

Wounded—American 241, or 23 per cent; British 2,938, or 40 per cent; French 2,922, or 46 per cent. Missing—American 277, or 27 per cent; British 1,837, or 24 per cent; French 1,461, or 23 per cent. Total for the three services—killed 5,134, or 35 per cent; wounded 6,751, or 41 per cent, and missing 3,751, or 24 per cent.

(Some American Junkerism.

The native ferocity of the power-hungry politician may be appreciated one needs consult the history of wars. Millions were incriminated of the charge that the rulers of Europe deliberately invited hostilities that could only mean destruction of human life and property in staggering proportions. They believe it now, and rightfully so. The tendency is not confined to any particular continent or race of people. New England opposed the War of 1812 and sympathized with Great Britain because of the belief that the politicians of the Administration had brought it on. The sordid and selfish reasons. There was an outcry against the war with Mexico, no less a person than Abraham Lincoln joining in the stinging criticism of the Polk Administration with the famous Tom Corwin, of Ohio. In certain histories it is still taught that hostilities were prompted by the so called slavery seeking more territory and more power.

Quite recently there has been brought to light a letter written by that master politician, Theodore Wood, of New York, most properly regarded as the parent of what is called today "ward politics" in which he showed us as despicable light as Treitschke or Bernhardi or any of the military philosophers of Germany who taught that war was a beautiful function and necessary for the betterment of the race. Writing in 1855 to the famous Joshua R. Giddings, of Ohio, at a time when England was creating friction because of the Ostend manifesto awarding Cuba to the United States, and when there was loose talk of war, Wood propounded certain questions and stated certain propositions which showed his readiness to resort to slaughter for partisan advantage.

He wanted, for instance, to know why [President Franklin] Pierce should not be "out-trumped" if, in an expiring message, he played the same of war. Proceeding to discourse and expatiate he asserted in true Teutonic fashion, that there were worse things than war, which was at times a rational blessing, too again quite the reverse. The Mexican War, which he called causeless and ugly, nevertheless contained elements of advantage to the country.

Then he said, "If a war with England will give us the tariff, Canada and freedom, shall we refuse it?" By freedom he meant the triumph of the abolition principle for which he stood. What he coldly proposed to do, it will be seen, was to plunge the country into war if the message of the President afforded the slightest pretext, and for what must be apparent to the reader, mere party advantage. To "out-trump" the opposition he was ready to invite misery, slaughter and suffering to millions.

This incident illuminates and makes lucidly clear the statement of Henry Watterson in recently published recollections of his life in Washington, that the Civil War could have been avoided at any time during the decade that preceded its launching but for the pettifogging politicians of both parties who contrived the feeling of hostility between the sections purely for personal aggrandizement—Equiur.

KILLED BY FALLLloyd Setters Falls From Tree and Breaks His Neck—Remains Brought to Bellview for Burial.

Lloyd Setters Rice, grandson of James Setters, of Nashville, Tenn., and great-grandson of Mrs. Eliza Riddell, of Bellevue, was killed by a fall from a tree at Bellview, last Sunday afternoon, following a brief funeral service at the Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Edgar C. Riley and C. E. Baker. C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral. A Nashville paper gave the following account of the church's tragic death:

Lloyd Setters Rice, aged 12, was killed in a fall from a tree where he was making a swing. One moment Lloyd Rice was poised joyously on the limb of a tree to fasten a rope swing for himself and his brother. The next, the little life was snuffed out, and the plaything had become an instrument of death.

Little thinking of the terrible possibilities that lay in the making of a swing, the lad playing for the moment by himself, Thursday afternoon, seated at the front yard of his home at 1822 Eighteenth avenue, north, and prepared to climb to a suitable limb not too high up.

For convenience in climbing, he looped the rope about half an inch thick—around his neck, and mounted to the limb, about ten feet above the ground.

Here he tied the loose end of the rope, without, however, removing the rope from his neck. He lost his balance.

No one saw the accident. Only a fraction of a moment later, his grandmother, Mrs. James Setters, at whose house he made his home while his stepfather is in France, stepped out on the porch to draw some water.

In an instant she had reached the dangling body and unwrapped the rope, but it was too late. The fall had broken his spine and the end came a moment later.

A neighbor rushed in to render assistance and carried the child into the house. He never recovered consciousness and the spirit had fled before the doctor could be summoned.

The body was touching the ground, and the place where the rope had bound his neck was low, but the weight of his body had snapped the vertebrae.

His mother, Mrs. Eliza Riddell, is stenographer at the office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and was on her way home from work when the accident occurred at 2:30 p. m.

The little boy was only 12 years old. He was in the fourth grade of the Selma school, located not far from his home.

The grandparents, mother and uncle accompanied the remains to Bellview, and the funeral took place from the residence of Mrs. Eliza Riddell.

THE PEOPLE AND THE TREATY.

Reactionary Senate Malicious American Generosity and Good Sense.

Philadelphia Record.

Of course Mr. Taft is entirely right in saying that American public opinion is heartily in favor of the League of Nations and of the treaty as a whole, but the American people of Nations is the daily part to which there is any considerable opposition in this country.

And there is considerable opposition to the League of Nations outside of the Senate and some very limited partisan political circles. The League is exactly what the American people have been clamoring for. Arbitration instead of war has been the aim of this country for generations.

The first treaty for arbitration of an individual dispute was between this country and Great Britain for the determination of the Canadian boundary. The first general arbitration treaty was between England and France, but directly afterward there was a treaty between this country and England which went much further than any previous treaty in removing restrictions and reaching almost every sort of controversy.

United States from setting an example to all the world of the abolition of war.

Only a factional and reactionary and narrow partisan or personal opposition is now offered to the peace treaty with the covenant embodied in it.

An Honor Conferred

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of Carson & Newman College, Jefferson City, Tennessee, the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity (D. D.) was conferred upon Rev. J. C. Riddell, who began his labors June 1st as pastor of Big Bone Baptist church. Mr. Peyton was, for some years, pastor at Jefferson City, Tennessee, and in connection with his pastoral work, he taught the schools of Psychology and Ethics in Carson & Newman College. He preached regularly to the faculty and students of the college, and this honor, coming as it does from those who are intimately acquainted with the life and labors of Mr. Peyton, is all the more appreciated.

Made First Sale of Tobacco

Sherriff L. A. Comer is the first in the county to report a sale of tobacco. He has sold a crop of tobacco for $100.00. The sale took place at the home of Mr. Comer, last Friday afternoon, and Saturday morning (Charles H. Youell, of Limburg, offered him $100.00 for the crop. The offer was accepted instantly.

WILL HELP SAVE GRAIN.

United States Starts Campaign Against Careless Threshing of Grain Crop.

The Department of Agriculture has started a campaign against the careless threshing men. It wants only "clean straw ricks" left of the greatest grain crop the nation has known, and the threshing men will be asked by the government to develop efficiency and avoid loss in separating the wheat from the chaff.

Records of the department reveal startling losses of grain through avoidable waste of threshers. Tests made in just ordinary crop years show an average of about 1000 to 20,000 bushels is thus thrown away. What it will be this year, unless the waste is eliminated, the department believed would be worth much more than the campaign of education would cost the government.

In Minnesota, where the department made comprehensive tests covering 6500 threshing machines last year it was found that more than 10 per cent of the machines averaged an average of 15 bushels of grain a day each. This loss, according to the figures was large enough to make the loss of 1000 bushels of grain a day each.

Some Minnesota threshers wasted as much as fifty bushels a day in the threshing season.

The grandfathers, mother and uncle accompanied the remains to Bellview, and the funeral took place from the residence of Mrs. Eliza Riddell.

The little boy was only 12 years old. He was in the fourth grade of the Selma school, located not far from his home.

Important to Tobacco Dealers.

Tobacco dealers should become familiar with Treasury Decision No. 2813, which was issued from office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, on Feb. 24, 1919. According to the decision, the dealer understands this decision, it does away with speculation on the loose leaf market. In other words a dealer can not buy tobacco from a farmer and then sell it over the loose leaf floors, without paying the Government tax of 18 cents a pound.

The Chronicle is badly mistaken as to the amount of the government tax. Instead of 18 cents a pound it is only 18¢ the 100,000 pounds.

HOME SERVICE FUND.June 22 Will Be Salvation Army Sunday In All The Churches in Kentucky.

Work for the Home Service Fund of the Salvation Army will start promptly, in fact has already begun, an organization for the drive, with some of the best men and women of the state in charge having been selected. News from the State Headquarters at Lexington, where Colonel I. Sobel is in charge of the State Campaign, is to the effect that the outlook for Kentucky going over the top is excellent and that this worthy organization will be given the new drive to look after the wants of returned and returning soldiers as well as they looked after the fighting men at the front in Europe.

Sunday, June 22, will be Salvation Army Sunday in all the churches of Kentucky, the ministers having been asked to preach at that time on the work of the Army at home and what it did for the soldiers abroad. The next day, June 23, the drive for the Home Service Fund actually starts and it will be completed Monday, June 30th.

The problem of establishing a no-alcohol saloons where there is any demand for them, finding work for unemployed soldiers and others who may work after the saloons has passed out, there will be plenty of use for the fund to be raised in this drive and Commander Evangeline Booth and her co-workers at the head of the Army are sufficient assurance that it will be properly expended.

FROM WILLIS H. DELPH.

Willis H. Delph writes from France under date of May 12th as follows:

Dear Mother:—I had to hear from you all. These few lines leave me well and when they come to your hands I hope they will find you all well.

Yesterday was Mother's Day in the A. E. F., and every soldier should have written to his mother. But I was in duty and did not get a chance to write to you even if you don't hear from me every week for I am all right.

This was the first letter I had received from you all for more than a week, but I knew you all were o. k. or thought so any way.

I want to know what I thought when I heard about the baby. That name will do I guess but it don't appeal to me at all. We are having fine weather here now. It puts me in mind of the month of May back at home.

I guess Dad is busy planting corn now, isn't he? How is the tobacco plants?

I'll bet George and Newcom are having a time of it now. He is having a time of it now. He is having a time of it now.

What is Wallace doing now days? I'll bet he is fishing. Did he go to the lake yet? We have snow over here and the best of it is it does not cost anything to see them.

Dick said he got a letter from Newcom and New said if we didn't hurry and come home he was coming over on a horse and get us. What do you think of that? I think I will get back home in July but the way things are going now, I hope so anyway.

So don't worry about me, for that won't be long to wait.

Well, I don't know of anything worth writing so I will close for this time.

All the love from me and tell everybody hello for me. As ever, your loving son,

WILLIS H. DELPH.

COLLECTION OFFICE

For Walton If Present Plan Is Approved by President.

The following letter is self-explanatory: Mr. J. C. Riddell, of Burlington, Ky., Dear Mr. Riddell:

If the present arrangements of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which will be done if the President approves the plan, an additional office will be established at Walton for the convenience of those who live near Walton than to Covington, Newburg or Carrollton.

With kind regards and best wishes, I am

Sincerely,

A. B. ROUSE.

Ratcliff Gave Bond

Joe Ratcliff, who was indicted at the last term of the circuit court for deserting his children, was arrested last Thursday by the Kenton county officers and lodged in jail in Covington, Kentucky, where he was held until he was brought to Burlington by Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume, and lodged in jail. That evening Benjamin Riddell, of Lexington, came over and signed his bond and he was released.

Work of The Huns.

In Northern France 550,000 buildings of various kinds—religious, municipal stores, shops, factories, and homes—have been demolished or practically ruined by the Huns. Some of these were destroyed by military operations, but more of them were wantonly ruined in order to make a waste of the industrial region of France. In Belgium, the destruction was relatively as great, and the needlessness of much of it in both lands is apparent from the fact that buildings in German lands were looted while they were still intact, their contents being shipped to Germany, and were thereafter demolished by the Huns in their occupancy of the territory or just as they were being driven out.

No building in Germany proper has been destroyed save for the few that were bombed from the air in reprisal for Zeppelin raids. All of Germany's structures are standing unharmed. All its homes are habitable; all its plants are in operation or ready for work. This fact should be thoroughly understood, throwing light as it does on the financial conditions imposed on Germany which its delegates violently denounce and threaten to reject.

WHO WAS HE?Strange Man Causes Excitement in Gunpowder and Hopeful Neighborhoods

Last Friday a strange man was seen in the Waterloo neighborhood, and his actions caused excitement in the gunpowder and hopeful neighborhoods. The man was seen by a woman who said that he was crazy. The telephone soon made his presence known for miles.

FROM BREST, FRANCE.

Brest France, May 6.

Dear Folks at Home:—I got the letter you wrote the 15th of April, and was sure glad to get it. I had not heard from home since I left.

Was sorry to hear that Susa was not well, but hope she is better now.

I wish you had given me Robert's address as I might have had a chance to see him as there is lots of soldiers going thru here now. Lots of boys are missing from the army.

Was glad to hear that the talking machine was alright. I had figured that I was going to get some new records for the talking machine.

I was sure surprised to hear that Bill McGuire was married. I wish I had been there to help him out and shoot a few shots at Carrollton.

Tell Susa hello and that it is or must be lonesome for her there now, and that I wish she would write to me and tell me how they are all.

Where is Bill going to live? When I get back across this pond I will have to drop it and see very long before I am at least started home—maybe around two months—not longer I don't think.

The 89th Division is going thru hell now and they are the last except the S. O. S., which means Service of Supply, and in July they are all billed out for home.

Tell Charlie hello and that I am still alive and am fatter than ever, as you will see by the picture I am sending.

The weather here is much better than when we came here and the trees are beginning to leave out, and nearly all the mud is dried.

The day before yesterday, May 8th, we were issued our first gold stripe and S. O. S. shoulder patch. The gold stripe is for the month of May and the S. O. S. patch is Blue with red letters and is worn on the left shoulder.

I am sending an envelope of pictures to you. I hope you will like them. I am going to get some more pictures of cards which go to town again and will send them to you.

Well, folks, this is about all I can think of today, so answer soon. I am as ever your son and brother with love and devotion.

PROSPEROUS AMERICA.

In the year 1909, when nobody had thought of this country ever being involved in a world war, our exports to foreign countries amounted in value to $254,000,000. In the big year of 1918, the great war, the total value of our exports had grown to $1,350,000,000.

In 1914 the United States Government owed foreign countries $1,000,000,000. At the beginning of 1919, all this foreign debt had been wiped out and foreign countries were owing the United States $100,000,000,000.

In 1913, while we were at peace with the world, we pointed with pride to our deposits in banks, then aggregating $6,051,000,000. Today after having gone through the great war, our people purchase with pride the Liberty Bonds, besides contributing billions to other war activities, and paying the high cost of living that has kept our dry ration.

United States amounts to $15,051,000,000, having increased $9,000,000,000.

These are staggering figures, and we might go on telling how America and Americans have prospered as no other nation of people ever prospered.

It was a righteous cause and we were not in the war for gain, yet through it all our people picked up wealth beyond the dreams of the wildest optimist.

Work Horses Need Pasture.

"See that your work horses have pasture regularly, in addition to the grain ration," says P. K. Heerwagen, of the Colorado Agricultural College. "If work horses are turned into pasture every night or for a few hours every evening, they will keep in much better working condition if kept on dry ration."

Putting work horses on pasture is objected to by some, as it is claimed the horses don't stand up to the work, but this is due to either putting them on pasture at irregular times or thinking pastures will supply all the nutrients for the work horse.

It will for an idle horse, but not for a work horse. "Pasture is a tonic and appetizer, and keeps the system in good condition. It is also a very nutritious food."

Bought Fine Cattle.

Joe Walton, of the Commissary neighborhood, and Aubrey Finn, of Plattburg, attended a big Hereford cattle sale up in Ohio last week and bought one even bull, ten cows and four heifers. They are said to be very handsome animals and cost a good long price.

The cattle business is very profitable territory of good blue grass land, and are in a position to make the cattle business very profitable.

Lightning Kills Mule.

Kenneth Stephens, of Florence R. D., was in Burlington, last Saturday, to take out a policy on his livestock, the lightning a good mule that belonged to him. He had been intending for some time to have his livestock insured.

Robert Koons Home. Robert Koons, son of George Koons, of Middle creek neighborhood, arrived home one day last week, looking like his military experience and sojourn in France had agreed with him in every particular. His brother, Rafe, is still in France, Robert Koons was not at the front but he saw enough to satisfy him that Sherman's estimate of war is correct.

One Day Early.

The "killing frost" of 1919 men today the Times-Star as having occurred on June 4th was a day too early. It occurred on the night of June 4th but it was the morning of June 5th that marked the beginning of the frost.

The writer recalls it vividly besides he has on file much data connected thereto. — Lawrenceburg Register.

Will Reconstruct Their Line.

The Consolidated Telephone Co. has brought to Burlington for use in this territory a considerable lot of large telephone poles with which to reconstruct its lines. The poles will be placed closer to the sidewalks and being considerably taller than the poles now in use will raise the wires above the boughs of the trees.

Is a Youngster.

The Leader, published at Falmouth, Pendleton county, claims to be the oldest established paper in Northern Kentucky, and is in the fourth year of the new series—not 33 years old quite. The Recorder is nearly 41 years old and has never changed series. In comparison the Leader is a youngster.

Burlington and vicinity was visited by a very hard rain last Sunday afternoon, and the south end of town was very high. Several antique parties that were out on the East Bend road were held up at the ford for an hour or more, waiting for the creek to run down so they could cross.

The 300,000 Maxwells All Tell the Same Story

MAXWELL first caught on in those sections of America where grades are long and severe, where roads are none too good, where distances are great, and where few cars before had made good.

Today if you could visit those places, those zones—some of them hundreds and hundreds of miles in area—you would see the Maxwell the prevailing car there.

These "Maxwell areas," so to speak, have since spread into nation-wide—even world-wide areas—for like all things good, news travels fast.

Today there's no spot of consequence where Maxwell cannot be found in ever-increasing numbers.

Because Maxwell expresses to a marked degree that one quality that every one seeks in a motor car—everlasting reliability.

This dominating trait of the Maxwell was built to be its dominating trait.

Instead of a brand new model every year with frequent, expensive changes in design (changes costly to the purchaser) a very simple Maxwell was designed five years ago.

And since that time no radical changes have been made, no new models built, but instead a constant, almost daily improving process has gone on until today the 300,000th Maxwell tells the same story as No. 1.

It's a better car, to be sure, more refined, better looking—even more reliable, but it would not be half the car it is today were it merely a 1919 model with but one year behind it.

"ROOSEVELT HOUSE"

Louisville, Ky., June 12, 1919. Miss Eunice Willis, Burlington, Ky.

I have been asked to represent the State of Kentucky in the "Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association" in an effort to commemorate the life of Theodore Roosevelt by "establishing and sustaining a permanent Memorial in New York—the city of his birth."

The sacred duty to memorialize our great men especially appeals to women, who not only recognize the justice of such tributes, but the beneficial influence and inspiration such memorials are to the youth of our land.

It is planned to buy the house in which Theodore Roosevelt was born, on East 20th Street, and make it a center where the ideals of Roosevelt Americanism would be taught.

In the house will be interesting things connected with Mr. Roosevelt's early life collected in his travels—but "Roosevelt House" will be more than a museum. Civic Clubs will be organized there, informal talks and classes for studying civil problems will be carried on. Indeed, in "Roosevelt House" will be combined an historic museum, a settlement house, a forum for free discussion of civic problems, a living memorial to a great citizen.

It is especially fitting for the women of America to establish such a memorial. It was due to the women that Mount Vernon was saved, and they were largely instrumental in preserving Lincoln's birthplace.

I feel sure that in this nation wide movement you would not be willing for Kentucky to fall behind. We are asked to raise $18,000, preferably in small subscriptions, and I am writing to know if you will help, by becoming the Chairman for Boone County.

In this appeal to our women all party preferences are cast aside—Democrats and Republicans, Suffragists and Anti-Suffragists and representatives of all creeds are responding with enthusiasm.

Thanking you in advance, believe me, Very cordially,

S. F. BALLARD.

I publish the above letter which explains fully the purpose of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, and I am simply going to appeal to any who may wish to contribute to this most excellent cause of keeping fresh the best ideals of a great man, to send his or her contribution to me and I shall most gladly turn it into our state treasurer's hands. No gift is too small, and the name of every donor will be inscribed in the "Donors' Book" to be placed in "Roosevelt House." Also a Roosevelt bronze button shall be given to every one contributing.

Roosevelt expressed himself very strong against meaningless monuments to the dead, saying: "I fancy legends of our past to commemorate us after death; the way to do it is by some expression of good deeds to those who are still living."

The plan is most worthy since it is to establish a permanent citizenship foundation for native and foreign born, to make this birth-place, year after year, forever, a place where men and women, boys and girls, all Americans wherever born—shall learn in practical terms the priceless privileges and the stern obligations of their American citizenship.

I hope through this appeal to receive sufficient response from the citizens of Boone County to make us proud of our share in this commendable cause. It matters not your political creed, this is a most excellent undertaking to promote the furtherance of Americanism.

FARMERS CHAUTAUQUA

At Burlington First Week in August--No Admission To Be Charged.

EXACT DATE TO BE FIXED LATER

If plans do not miscarry a Farmers Chautauqua will be held in Burlington the first week in August. It will consist of lectures, motion pictures and music and instructions will be given in about everything that concerns rural life. This meeting will be one of the many given in this State at the instance of the Louisville Board of Trade assisted by the State Bankers' Association, these two organizations having pledged $25,000 for carrying the work through. R. J. Sanderson, who is routing these meetings, was in Burlington last Tuesday night and a meeting held in the court house was attended by several of the citizens of the town, and when Mr. Sanderson explained the object of the meetings that are to be held in about sixty counties in the State, those present decided it was too good a thing to pass up, and for the purpose of having one in Burlington an organization was perfected and the following officers elected: E. C. Gaines, Chairman; L. T. Clure, Vice-Chairman; J. A. Caywood, Secretary and Treasurer.

The meetings will be held in the afternoon and evening of three days, and they will be free, no charge for admission to any of them. It is believed that this will be a rare treat for the farmers of the county, and that they will attend it in large numbers. It will be liberally advertised immediately following the fixing of the dates which will be in the first week of August.

AN AMAZING SITUATION.

Evidence Supports Statement in Enquirer Editorial.

Knoxville Journal and Tribune. This statement is made in an editorial in The Cincinnati Enquirer: "One who is an expert has just demonstrated beyond cavil that there are no fewer than 15 propaganda centers in New York City alone which read out inflammatory literature by this country, literally speaking to all parts of the U. S. and Canada."

Evidence in support of that statement is found in the report of a meeting held last Sunday in Madison Square Garden, in which there were present 6,000 persons, who were addressed by Victor Berger and others. Every intimation of that noted Anarchist of a resort to anarchistic methods for the redress of presumed grievances met with howls of approval from his audience.

Using a figure of speech, the unseated Congressman from Milwaukee, the convicted criminal set out of prison, referred to a Red Sea drowning of the forces of capitalism, the allusion was taken literally by his audience and one cried out: "Yes, red sea, that is what we must have here."

Possibly assuming that he had gone too far and wishing to make himself less threatening, Berger said he "had always opposed violence," which statement was a lie; but it did not reflect the spirit of his audience, and was received with silence. A report of the meeting, printed in the New York City Enquirer, stated that "Every utterance of smacked of violent radicalism they uproariously applauded while all other utterances they received in silence."

Berger shouted: "I can carry the red flag to the prison door. It is for you young fellows to pick it up and carry it to victory," and his several hundred stood up and roared for several minutes. One of the speakers was an alleged Chicago lawyer in the Federation of Labor, which he had been "handing out flaps of to his followers."

That such an audience was gathered in America's largest city and thus desecrate the American Holy Sabbath, is something that should rouse liberty loving Americans to solemn thought and positive action. Without law there can be no liberty; while there can be as many as 45 propaganda centers in that city, sending out inflammatory literature by tons, to all parts of the country, who will deny there is danger of the country being governed by violence instead of by law.

It is a fact, being more and more demonstrated, day by day, we have here in our own country problems to solve that are of at least as much importance as those presented in any plan proposed or that may be proposed to Americans to take up and solve problems for the peoples of the nations in Europe and Asia or Africa.

Before undertaking to help other nations on other continents, it will be the part of wisdom to see our own house put in order.

If the party who was seen take Dr. M. J. Crouch's fishing tackle from his buggy down on Gunpowder last week will return same to William Shinkins no questions will be asked, otherwise they will be prosecuted.

Dromedary Came a Long Distance to Attend Methodist Centenary Celebration

THE first Methodist Centenary celebration dromedary has arrived in Columbus, O., and has consented to an interview. In fact, so softened was his disposition by the familiar scenes which greeted him in the North Africa exhibit section at the exposition grounds that he smilingly consented to pose for a picture with the reporter perched precariously on his hump.

"I've come a long distance to attend the Centenary celebration," he stated, "and I don't regret a mile of it now."

that I have seen the preparations being made for it at the exposition grounds. This world's missionary exposition is going to beat anything I have ever seen, and I have seen many things in my travels."

The dromedary is one of a number of animals who are arriving to take part in the great Centenary celebration in Columbus. They will appear in the exhibitions of foreign countries, and some absolutely safe camels and elephants will be ridden by children who come to the exposition.

Associate Director of Music at Methodist Centenary Celebration

TO Horace Whitehouse, head of the department of music of Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, and associate director of music of the Methodist Centenary Celebration which will be held in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13, is due the credit for the remarkable success of the Children's Crusade chorus of 500 young voices. Professor Whitehouse has been training this chorus for several weeks. They will appear as an effective feature of the Centenary celebration program.

COLISEUM HAS LARGEST STAGE IN THE WORLD

Crowning Feature of Methodist Centenary Celebration.

Columbus, O.—As the Coliseum is the crowning feature of the exposition grounds where the Methodist Centenary celebration will be held June 20 to July 13, so it will house a number of the crowning features of that celebration.

Built originally by the state of Ohio at a cost of a quarter of a million dollars to house live stock exhibitions, it has been transformed by liberal expenditures into one of the finest auditoriums in America.

It has been furnished with a $50,000 pipe organ.

The building is solid concrete, steel and glass, and has extraordinary acoustic properties.

In the building will be given the daily presentation of the pageant, "The Wayfarer," with 1,000 participants, the daily organ recital, periodic concerts by the symphony orchestra, concerts by the trombone choir of 100 pieces, lectures by Lowell Thomas, distinguished traveler and writer from the Holy Land, and other events equally notable.

The architecture of the Coliseum is such that every person will have an unobstructed view of what goes on under the stars, and can hear every word spoken or note played or sung.

ENTERTAINMENT AT CENTENARY VARIED

Every Effort Made to Popularize Daily Programs.

CHILDREN TAKE GREAT PART

Huge Pageant, Representing the Children's Crusade of the Twelfth Century, Will Be Given Each Day. Famous Speakers Have Agreed to Attend Celebration at Columbus, June 20 to July 13.

In addition to the religious features of the Methodist Centenary celebration, which opens in Columbus, O., on June 20, every effort is being made to popularize the daily programs and to make them attractive to the varied tastes of all visitors, according to Alton E. Wilson, director of the department of special days.

The Rainbow Division band and a famous Jackie band will furnish music daily, and well known Chautauqua entertainers have contracted to be there with lively programs of singing and instrumental music. For lovers of classical and sacred music, the Coliseum at the exposition grounds will be a Mecca. Daily recitals by Professor William J. Kraft of Columbia University, at the $50,000 organ; a symphony orchestra, famous singers, a chorus of 1,000 voices and the trombone choir of 100 pieces will be featured there.

Pageants in life plays, motion pictures and educational lectures will fill the mornings, afternoons and evenings. "It is our aim to provide entertainment for everybody every minute of the day," says Mr. Wilson.

That the celebration is not for grownups alone is proved by the extensive preparations being made for the children who come. In addition to playgrounds, well equipped and attended, there will be elephants, camels and burros to ride, and a Wild West show every day. A huge pageant representing the Children's Crusade of the twelfth century will be presented daily by 500 children, accompanied by a children's chorus of 500 voices.

Among the famous men of the country who have agreed definitely to be here for the Centenary celebration are ex-President William H. Taft, Major General Leonard Wood, Secretary Josephus Daniels, William Jennings Bryan, Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Governor Henry J. Allen, Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the Interior, John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American Union, Henry P. Fletcher, United States ambassador to Mexico; El Sr. Dr. L. C. Bonilla, Mexican ambassador at Washington, and Chaplain Triplady of the British army. These men will speak in the Coliseum during the celebration.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

LOOK OUT!

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. Treat with GOLD MEDAL HARRIEN OIL CAPSULES now. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would at most as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL HARRIEN OIL CAPSULES. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL HARRIEN OIL CAPSULES. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves on Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubber Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set; Cooper's Roadless, the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the tire all the time, therefore, causing the wire to break through the tire and shift off.

My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel-tired wheel without dishing and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub left, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me and where I will get first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

These prices took effect May 1, 1919, and will remain in effect until further notice.

Belleview Odd-Fellows held their annual services last Sunday, Rev. H. H. Carter, of Petersburg, delivering the oration. Quite a good crowd was in attendance and was well pleased with the address.

Alcock's voyage across the Atlantic was somewhat shorter than that of Christopher Columbus, but then Columbus traveled by wind and water, while Alcock had a different combination—gasoline and air.

The two government trucks which were awarded to this county for road work will be received in Louisville. A bed like that on the truck now in use in this county for road work will be put on each.

It is said that the Big Four bridge over Hogan creek will be completed next week and that the track will be extended down the river so that the freight may be carried to the site of the new dam between Aurora and Rising Sun.—Lawrenceburg Register.

An epidemic of small-pox has broken out in Augusta and the school commencement and public meetings have been called off. A number of families suffering with the disease are under quarantine. Small-pox is a cold weather disease, and the epidemic will not last long.

Germany declares she will not accept the treaty the allies have handed her, and the Republican members of the United States Senate say they will not accept it, consequently they are very much of a whiff of a whatness. It don't look good to see an element in this country playing into the hands of a country that has cost Uncle Sam thousands of lives and billions of dollars to assist in threshing.

During the electric and wind storm last Thursday afternoon seven steers belonging to Mayor Thos. W. Balsly, of Ludlow, were killed on his farm in North Bend bottoms. The cattle were standing near a tree that was struck by lightning. It is probable that Mayor Balsly had his cattle insured in the Boone county company that insures stock against lightning, in which event his loss will not be so heavy as it otherwise would be.

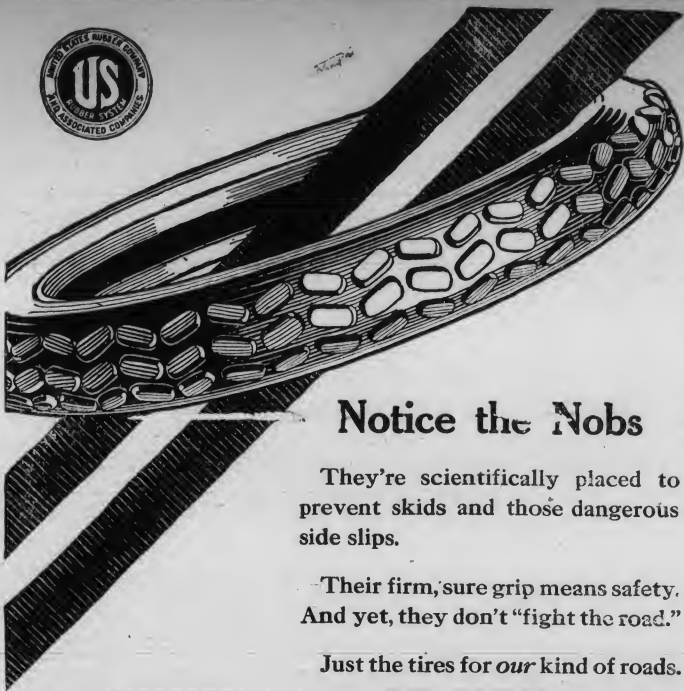

Debts of Three Nations.

Providence Journal.
Comparison of the debts of Great Britain, France and the U. S. brings out the fact that our war obligation, which is without precedent in the history of the country, are much smaller than those of either of the two Powers of Western Europe, which did the most of the fighting in Belgium and Northern France against the common foe. Our debt according to conservative estimates, is not less than $24 per capita. Great Britain comes next with $67, and France is still more heavily burdened, the amount being $800. According to these figures the United States is in a favorable position in respect to war obligations, but the greater debts of France and England do not show that either of the two countries is in danger of financial collapse.

The credit of France and Great Britain is backed by ample resources and a spirit of enterprise that will be as pronounced in commercial activities as the material spirit was on the battlefield. The indebtedness is heavy, but no one who holds French or English securities need be apprehensive as to the payment of interest or principal. And it need hardly be said that the purchasers of the bonds of the U. S. Government with a debt far below that of France or England, and resources beyond calculation, are certain to get 100 cents on the dollar when payday comes.

Learn What to Kill.

Kansas City Star.
Did you ever stop to think when you put your foot down to crush a little insect that you might be taking the life of something very valuable? Even the little beetles and toads and snakes, which I know you don't like, according to our naturalists, are doing a good work, destroying insects that are harmful to our crops, our vegetables and even our pretty flowers. The snake really eats so many poisonous insects that he is like Nature's policeman sure enough. Some has suggested that each boy and girl call themselves members of a protective association, and see how many little harmless lives they can protect every day. Always be sure before you kill anything is the best plan.

RAISE HOGS.

No branch of livestock farming is more productive of satisfactory results than the raising of well-bred swine, if conducted with a reasonable care, according to the specialists of the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Hogs fit into the modern scheme of farming on nearly every farm, and are one of the most important animals to raise both for meat and for money. They require less labor, less equipment and less capital, make greater gains per hundred pounds of concentrates fed, reproduce themselves faster and in greater numbers, and give a quicker "turn over" of money than any other animal except poultry. Farmers of the South and West particularly have awakened to the merits of the hog and are rapidly increasing their output of pork and their bank accounts.

The hog has no rival as a consumer of by-products and numerous unmarketable materials which but for him might be wasted. Kitchen refuse, not only from farms, but also from hotels and restaurants, when cooked before being used makes an excellent feed.

The value of skim milk as a hog feed is known on every farm, though not always fully appreciated. In the neighborhood of many large dairies, pork production is a very prominent and lucrative supplement to the dairy industry. To prevent tuberculosis all milk and milk products should be cooked before being fed to hogs. To control hog cholera, use sanitary precautions and anti-hog-cholera serum treatment.

The hog is also a large factor in cheapening the production of beef. Hogs are placed in the cattle feed lots to utilize the corn and other feeds the cattle have failed to digest and which otherwise would be wasted. Hogs following steers in many cases have increased the profit per steer by from $6 to $8. Hogs should not be allowed to follow dairy cattle, unless the cattle are tuberculin tested.

Disease, such as cholera, has been taking a smaller toll than in recent years; more pure-bred and high-grade hogs are available than ever before; prices of hogs are now past the 16-cent level, demand for pork for home consumption and for export is keen. All of which means that the farmer who does not raise hogs is losing a chance to increase the supply of pork and thus serve the country and at the same time expand a profitable phase of farming.

CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN D. CARROLL
Democratic Candidate For GOVERNOR

He Can Win in November.

WHO WON THE WAR?

If all goes well the peace treaty will soon be ready for signature. It is quite to be expected and altogether to be desired that no country will find that treaty exactly to his liking. Should any one country emerge completely satisfied it would mean that there had not been at the conference the full degree of mutual concession which marks the community spirit when functioning wholesomely.

The more acute dissatisfied elements will be very, very audible. They will give utterance at the top of their lungs as follows:

"The war has been fought in vain."

You will hear that said so earnestly, and on so many sides, that it will be worth while keeping in mind whatarrant nonsense it is. America's chief reason for going to war—also France's chief reason and England's—was self-defense. It was to avoid capture and enslavement by Germans on a tout. It was the same purpose which animates every posse of citizens who are out to catch a maniacal burglar.

That purpose has been achieved. The burglar nation is in the lock-up. Our chief reason for going to war has already been awarded.

If the posse, before it breaks up can readjust the affairs of the neighborhood so as to discourage soot to discourage future burglarious enterprises on the part of any nation, so much the better. But do not let anyone kid you into thinking for one moment that we fought the war in vain. It was Germany who did that.

LISTENING TO APES.

New York World.

Prof. R. L. Garner, says the N. Y. World, has returned from Africa more than ever convinced that there are apes that can talk. That, the natives in the Congo told him so. Then, after investigation on the spot, he found that the natives spoke the truth. By way of final proof he has brought home phonograph records with records of messages uttered by animals of the jungle, which in due time he proposes to translate. Unfortunately the only specimens of these interesting creatures that he secured he shot, and dead apes tell no tales.

By naturalists like John Burroughs, who hold that birds and beasts are incapable of thinking and act entirely on blind instinct or from habit, Professor Garner's theories will probably be dismissed on short order. By the unlearned they will be accepted or discredited according to personal inclination. But because male and female apes in the mating season exchange distinct calls will hardly appear to be a satisfactory demonstration that they have sufficient intelligence to develop a system of articulate speech. If that is science, why spend years in the Congo observing the habits of monkeys?

While Prof. Garner is reducing to printed form his glossary of the ape language, some less serious-minded explorer might profit by the opportunity to discover a new school of poetry of African origin. A system of poetry borrowed from the jungle also appeal to many minds when anything that is profound or disorderly is presented as the only true faith.

THE TAX LAWS

Chief Justice Carroll's Proposed Amendment—An Increase In Revenue and No Increase In Taxes

Chief Justice John D. Carroll's plan of taxation is to exempt lands and town lots from all state taxes. Counties will not be required to assume any obligation now taken care of by the state. The state will have no touch or more money as it now has and will use it for the same purpose that it is now used.

$5,000,000 will be taken off of real estate and $2,000,000 will be collected annually by the state in the place of it from other sources, as follows:

1. Franchise tax-paying corporations, banks and trust companies, will pay all taxes except for graded schools and municipalities to the state.
2. All taxes now paid on this property shall be not more than now paid. The additional revenue from this source will be not less than $2,000,000.
3. All intangible personal property will be assessed. Not less than $1,000,000 additional will be collected from this source.
4. The state will save more than $200,000 which is now paid for assessing and collecting taxes on real estate.
5. An adequate system for collecting inheritance taxes will enable the state to collect not less than $400,000 additional.
6. By a revision of the license tax laws, more than $300,000 additional can be collected.
7. Elimination of useless expenses for salaries and other purposes will save the state not less than $500,000.

FLEW ACROSS OCEAN.

1900 Miles Without Stop in 18 Hours—Plane Smashed In Landing.

London, June 18.—Jack Alcock, a Captain in the British Royal Air Force, and his navigator, Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, goes the honor of having made the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic, from Newfoundland to Ireland, the Daily Mail's $50,000 prize is theirs.

Forty minutes after 5 o'clock this morning their big Vickers Vimy bi-plane landed on the beach near Clifden, Galway. They made the flight in sixteen hours and twelve minutes, having left St. John's Newfoundland, at 4:13 yesterday afternoon (Greenwich time, 12:30 New York time).

Both pilot and navigator were in good spirits, but fatigued. Every mile of the flight was a terrific battle against the elements.

Of the human qualities that combined to conquer the air on this direct transatlantic route, unshakable luck unquestionably was the decisive factor.

Immediately after landing, Captain Alcock said:

"We were tired, being alone in the fog and drizzle. Sometimes we found ourselves flying upside down, having lost all sense of direction while enveloped in the heavy blanket of fog."

"Our wireless was useless for the greater part of the flight. The wireless propeller blew off soon after we started from St. John's. Our receiver was much jammed by strong signals not intended for us."

Both Alcock and Lieut. Brown were in good spirits when they made their landing.

W. L. Kirkpatrick,

Burlington, Kentucky.

During the storm last Sunday afternoon lightning struck a large sycamore tree at the entrance to W. L. Kirkpatrick's premises just beyond the town limits on the Florence pike; took a crack at one corner of L. T. Cloro's barn near town, and killed a mule belonging to Willis Grant, who lives on Gunpowder creek near the church.

Born on the 13th inst. to Wm. McQuire and wife of Commissioners neighborhood, a fine daughter.

The Latonia races have drawn large crowds the past two weeks.

Most of the tobacco in Harrison county was set last week, and those who did not get rain up and set. The rain that fell Friday of last week was of great help to the plants that had been set and furnished a good reason for those intending to plant by hand.

Nine head of valuable stock was killed by lightning in this county the past week. Insurance is a good thing to have when this happens, and Boone county has a company that will take pleasure in issuing a policy on your livestock.

Farmers of Franklin county took advantage of the good season last week and every available hand was put to work in the fields. The settler was used. There is every prospect of a great crop in that county. The acreage is large, the plants abundant and healthy and are starting off nicely. Fully one-third to one-half more than ever grown in Franklin before will be raised this year.

Captain Fenton has been the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Edgar Berkshire, several days and is growing fat on strawberries, Jersey cream and short cake.

DEVONIAN

After the "Flu"

You know how you felt—you who have had the "flu." That easily tired feeling. You are "all in" after the least exertion. Just seems as if you cannot get your strength back. Weeks and months sometimes have gone by till you wonder if you are ever going to get well again.

That is because you have not been drinking Devonia, the American Medicinal Mineral Water. Really wonderful are the reports that have come to us entirely unsolicited of the way Devonia has helped people after the "flu."

Its action is alterative and reconstructive. It enables the body to rid itself of the poisons left by the "flu." It tones up your system and very quickly you find yourself looking better and feeling better. Your old-time vigor returns. You feel like yourself once more.

The reason that Devonia is so helpful, not only after the "flu," but in so many other human ailments, is that it contains those elements which, as far back as human knowledge goes into the past, have been recognized as helpful to the human system. By drinking Devonia regularly—a tablespoonful in a glassful of water—decayed food elements which have acted as poisons in the body are loosened and carried off. It is their presence in the bowels which have in many cases retarded and even prevented complete recovery.

Devonia is known and endorsed by the medical profession, and is prescribed by leading physicians everywhere. Its effectiveness in cases of Constipation, Rheumatic Affections, Hardening of the Arteries, High Blood Pressure, Eczema and similar skin diseases has been demonstrated time and again.

Devonia comes to you just as Mother Nature skillfully compounded it in her own laboratory, a thousand feet underground. It is not changed, altered or condensed in any way. It is nature-made. That is why it is so good for you. So heavily laden is it with natural remedies that, as we have said, a tablespoonful in a glass of water is enough to take at a time in most instances. Thus a dose costs you only about a cent and a half, making it the cheapest remedy you can buy.

Devonia is to be had at most drug stores in the city. If you are desirous of knowing more about this wonderful medicinal water, write for our booklet, "The Story of a Well Man." Perhaps the facts it relates may have an important message for you. Use the coupon.

"When You Buy—Think Economy"

THE WAR DEVELOPED FOREIGN BORN.

Have Learned About American Principles and Are Now Learning to Save.

During the war ordeal millions of men, women and children born abroad have stood staunchly by the United States. Their hearts their service and their dollars have proved their loyalty again and again. While sentimental sympathy attached them to the soil of their nativity, they clung to the land where they had found the liberty of their dreams.
Another duty and another opportunity has come to these foreign born loyal millions to help uphold the government of freedom. The War Savings Stamp Campaign this year affords a special significance. Such purchase is a particular incitation to loyal help as contrasted with the buying of stamps by those native to the United States. Naturally the native should and his government, but the same aid by the foreign born means a double devotion to the Stars and Stripes in that it requires the alien to tear asunder the ties that bind him to his birth soil.

The son of alien soil, through the strength of every War Savings Stamp, purchased, becomes just as much an integral part of the national fabric as the son of seven generations of American birth. He is woven into the national texture so closely and strongly that the completed product of the patriot loom reveals not where the native strand begins and the foreign ends. Every War Savings Stamp in the progress of purchase is another movement of the governmental shuttle in the hands of the Treasury weaver. Every alien born who buys his stamp is of equal fabric strength to his native born brother.

The cost of the new stamp ranges from $1.12 in January to $1.23 in December. The Government promises to pay $5.00 for each stamp on January 1st, 1934. This represents a return of four per cent interest on the cost compounded quarterly.

Governmental expense and governmental obligation mount high even though the clash of arms has ceased abroad. There is a tremendous outlay necessary for the transportation of hundreds of thousands of troops from France to the United States. There are social and economic necessities at home requiring immense sums. The sum to be raised from the New War Stamp issue will be applied toward meeting these necessities. The foreign born purchasers of stamps will give their loyal and efficient aid to the government of their adopted land.

Is The Senate a National Body?

Louisville Courier-Journal.
Is the Senate dominated by men of national instincts or by a lot of gibbering and meddling old ladies? Were Messrs. Lodge, Borah, Reed and the like sent by their constituents to Washington to indulge in personal attacks or to apply certain elemental considerations of statesmanship to the country's problems?

These are not idle questions. The events of the past few days bring them to mind for the serious contemplation of persons who, having no interest in the petty quarrels of petty men, are devotedly concerned with the sober handling of national affairs.

Look at the facts a moment. The President of the U. S. whose authority to act as a Peace Commissioner may not be debated, is at the head of the American delegation in Paris. It is immaterial to his task whether he be Democrat, Republican or Whig; his duty is itself national; it has no more to do with the party's whims than it has with the work of the U. S. Supreme Court when it undertakes to determine a proceeding before it. It has as little to do with American party politics as the work of Clemenceau, Lloyd George and the others, who are not members of any American political party, for whom President Wilson is laboring in the prodigious work of planning the minute specifications of a dictated and permanent peace. The treaty having been tentatively drawn, it has been served upon the German delegates, the Allied representatives having agreed that no delicacy of the proceedings made it necessary to withhold the actual text until it was in final form. It is not known definitely whether the Germans are to sign or reject the treaty. The belief that they will accept is not of itself, in such a serious circumstance, warrant for any participating nation to act without discretion or reserve.

At so critical a juncture certain members of the Senate — their party, too, is irrelevant in a matter whose whole nature is national — place this country in the position of breaking faith with its Allies on the subject of publicity for the treaty and, further, undertake to serve notice on the Germans and on Lloyd George and Clemenceau that the Senate will reject the work of the Paris conference. Senator Knox goes even so far as to urge a resolution committing this country to intervention should any Power or combination of Powers menace the peace of Europe.

The Courier-Journal is not concerned with the party politics which the entire spectacle assumes to present. It is interested at so momentous a period only in the spectacle's national aspects. And, from a national viewpoint, it asks the American people what think they of those men of the Senate capable of treating one of the gravest episodes of history in a manner at once so casual, personal and even jocular. They are making sport of the Nation's integrity, they are accomplishing the disintegration of the labors of Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and the others who have been carrying upon their shoulders the weight of the world, they are impairing the force of a treaty which speaks to the Germans a dictated peace—the very kind of dictated peace which these very Senators clamored for a year ago and professed to fear would not be imposed. They choose for their conduct an instant when the fate of the world trembles in the balance. It is not clear why party or personal politics can be so easily offered as an excuse for antics so hurtful in a crisis so stupendous. Were Mr. Wilson a Republican President and all the Senators now toying with history Democrats, they were deserving of the people's reprobation and scorn. Such conduct on the part of any United States Senator, whatever his party, is crime. It raises the query whether the turbulent Senators are lacking in patriotism or brains. There is no reason for doubting the patriotism of most of them.

Senator Knox advances a suggestion in his resolutions which should be buried deeply under the current of public opposition. He wishes the United States to pledge itself to regard as a menace to its own peace any threat against the peace of Europe by any Power or combination of Powers. He offers this in lieu of the League of Nations covenant, which commits this country to no such extreme policy. His policy would extend to Europe a doctrine which out-Monroes all the Monroes doctrines that ever Monroe, The Paris conference has at no time suggested so large a gulp of international military responsibility for this Government. Not because of its author—the personal identity of no actor in this supreme crisis is so important nor should be considered—but on its merits. Knox suggestion should make no headway. Committing this country to single-handed intervention, it would, indeed, involve us in European wars in a manner not comprehended by the charter of the League of Nations.

The Peace Treaty as drawn in Paris and as signed by Germany will be submitted in proper time to the Senate for ratification or rejection. It will be ratified as so drawn and signed. The Senate, the Quixotic minds of the Senate will arouse the people of America to a higher state of determination to that end. The Senate will itself feel the public demand and yield to it. The territorial settlements adjusted in Paris will not last without the League of Nations to act as an insurance policy. The war will not have been any practical result except to have sown new seed for territorial disputes and more of the League be rejected.

A big new discovery in cigarette blending

The big thing about Chesterfields is their unique blend. The Chesterfield blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos. It is a most important development in cigarette making.

As a result, Chesterfields deliver a new kind of cigarette enjoyment — just like a "ore" before bedtime when you're hungry — they SATISFY!

It took the finest selections of TURKISH and DOMESTIC tobaccos and no end of skill and patient experiment to get this blend right.

Was it worth it? Say — just smoke a Chesterfield fresh from the moisture-proof package. You'll say it was worth it, all right!

The boys of the trenches know this. Their parents know it. The recalcitrant Senators know it. They know further that the U. S. will not be yielding any sovereignty in joining the League of Nations. They will be but associating themselves with others with the aim of surrendering a right to precipitating war. National responsibility of a new and different kind came with our participation in this war. It cannot be evaded in the settlement of the war itself. And, similarly, the very settlement of the war can not of itself be avoided. The future is an inevitable heritage of the past, and the past records indelibly in the United States activity in a war which was fought on Europe's soil. The moving finger cannot erase a word of it nor conceal half a word.

The Chief Executive is on the scene of the negotiations. He has had the difficulties actually before him. Has had to meet them according to his best judgment as the perplexities arose. He has not on the other hand, been free to sit idly by, read the news papers and amuse himself criticizing the base of Republican government as to amount almost to dictating diversified views, jealousies and exactions. Talk is simple. Problems are not.

The Courier-Journal would deny to no citizen his right to criticize the President or any other public officer; that right is so clearly at the base of Republican government as to amount almost to dictating diversified views, jealousies and exactions. Talk is simple. Problems are not.

The Courier-Journal ventures the prophecy that President Wilson will judge the entire situation from a national viewpoint and will challenge the Senate to produce along the course which a clique of its members assume to outline.

This prophecy is based upon the fact that such procedure would be entirely sound. It is not to be conceived that the President would permit the labors of past months to be fruitless; that he would accept the indubitations of some of the Senators as indicative of the temper of the American people; that he would be

HYDROPHOBIA OR RABIES

What To Do In Case of a Bite By a Rabid Animal or One Suspected of Being So.

To the Editor of the Recorder:
We wish to avail ourselves of the privilege of using the columns of your valuable paper for the purpose of having a heart to heart talk with the citizens of Boone county and all others whom this paper may reach.

In the beginning, we wish to state in writing this article, we are not prompted by a spirit of envy or malice toward any person or persons, whatever, but as physicians, we feel that we would be guilty of a crime if we remained silent after the foregoing facts, which so recently happened in the Hebron neighborhood, and which have occurred in other parts of Boone county at intervals from ten years to ten years.

First, we wish to affirm that there is nothing in the so-called mad-stones but danger to the public, in that it causes a feeling of false security if they stick or do not stick. They do not possess one atom of curative power over Rabies or Hydrophobia, and no drug on earth. Mad-stones are simple connections found in the stomachs and intestines of all animals under certain conditions, especially in the deer, chamois, goat, porcupine, horse and even the human. They possess just as much power over Rabies as a stone, kidney-stone or a stone from the urinary bladder, having no mysterious or magical power whatever, and are often composed of the earth salts of lime, ammonium, and magnesium phosphate, and have been known for ages under the name of Bezoar stones. A description of these can be found in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, Dugliss's Medical Dictionary, or almost any Encyclopedia and dictionary gives a good description of them under both names. The U. S. Dispensary of 1854, after a short description of these stones, says: "The subject by saying: 'They have fallen into medical neglect.' The Standard Dictionary of English Language, published by Funk and Wagnalls, says: 'Mad-stones—A stone popularly supposed to cure hydrophobia. Such stones, usually of the size and shape of a walnut, are supposedly preserved as heirlooms in some parts of the United States because they are believed to absorb venom. Often composed of lime or magnesium phosphate, classed as Oriental, Occidental and Bezoar, but the Oriental are supposed to be more potent.'"

Old English Dispensary published in England by Wm. Lewis, M. B., F. R. S., in 1793, 120 years ago, closes the description with these words: "Many virtues have been formerly ascribed to the Bezoar, but it is now found to be merely an absorbent, and of very inferior value, and that it is never used for that purpose." "The Oriental Bezoar stones, found in Persia, are supposed to possess more power than the Occidental or the German, due to the fact that the Hindu fakirs and magicians of the Far East have skillfully exploited their power before an ignorant and very credulous public."

Witchcraft and the belief in it disappeared from Mass. more than 100 years ago, and if there be any in Boone county at this period of the 20th century, it is time we turn our backs on it in our direction and let it in a little more light. Any Chemical Laboratory could analyze one of these stones, ascertain its composition, and reproduce them by the wagon load. Does it not stand to reason that the U. S. Public Health Service, which is constantly fighting plagues and epidemics of all kinds, if there were any real virtue in these stones, would confiscate them, if necessary, analyze them, and induce enough like them to place one in every hamlet and village from the Atlantic to the Pacific? If, after reading this article, your faith in the Mad-stone is still unshaken after trying its power, which is no more than that of a piece of pumice stone, or, better still, a piece of thoroughly sterilized porous brick, go immediately to your family physician and he will give you full information and direct you as to the serum treatment for Hydrophobia. The period of incubation, or the period of development from the time of a bite until the first symptoms are noticed, ranges from two weeks to two years, with an average of from 30 to 60 days. This will explain why the serum treatment fails to give results in a very small number of cases, as the length of time required for the administration is 21 days, and the highest point of immunity is not reached until two weeks later. For this reason you can see the importance of beginning the administration of the serum as soon as possible, for if it is begun within six days of the bite, the results are almost invariably favorable. In the past few years this treatment has been perfected to such an extent it can be given in any hospital, by any physician or if you prefer, by any intelligent person in your own family. The cost of the serum is $25, but this can be financially met by this cost can have it furnished free of charge by the U. S. Public Health Service, the State Board of Health, or the county in which he lives. No fear need be entertained of bad results in non-hydrophobia cases as there are practically no danger, instead, it will often prevent false hydrophobia, lysophobia, by the relief it gives to the mind.

Be very careful about examining the mouth or throat of any animal that is acting in a suspicious manner. In the case of any animal where hydrophobia is suspected, secure the animal if it can be done, without risk to anyone, in some place where it can be kept under constant observation until it gets well, dies, or is killed. To kill do not beat upon the head, but shoot through the body or give three or four grains of strichnine, which will not affect the microscopical examination of the brain and spinal cord. Then chop thru the skull with a sharp instrument without mutilating the head, and if the weather be hot, pack the head in a bucket of ice and express to the State Chemical Laboratory at Bowling Green where it will be examined free of charge, or take it to the General Hospital in Cincinnati, where the cost will be about $10.

We wish to correct an error in the account in a recent issue of the Recorder. It stated that Mr. Beaz grew wet after the application of the mad-stone on Monday afternoon, June 9th. This was purely imagination on the part of someone, as his condition grew progressively worse from the beginning. This fact can be substantiated by the doctors and by the members of the immediate family.

Another case of hydrophobia under identical conditions with the one that so recently happened, occurring in Boone county within the next 100 years, will be just one too many.

Again we wish to state that this article was not written in a spirit of malice toward anyone, but with the kindest of motives toward all humanity. Any further questions that anyone wishes to ask will be gladly answered by F. L. SAYRE, M. D.

ARMY WORMS

Have Damaged Acres of Grain in Indiana.

Anderson, Ind., June 19.—Army worms destroyed or damaged 10,000 acres of grain in Madison county, H. S. Agster, county agricultural agent, said today. The loss, he said, would aggregate $200,000.

Where rye and timothy fields were attacked, the destruction was practically complete. Wheat is showing some loss, but the invasion and late corn is being ruined on many farms.

Vegetables, except beans, fall rapidly and are being ruined.

Starting in the black soil along streams, the worms have carried their attack into every part of the county. Farmers and townspeople are digging trenches around infested fields and filling with crude oil. Spraying crude oil was found to be insufficient.

It is thought the attack will have subsided by the middle of next week, but Agster said it may continue to July 1st.

Only Two Hats In.

Only two hats in the ring for Representative in the Legislature from this legislative district. Boone furnishes one of the candidates and Grant county the other. The Boone candidate stands solidly behind its candidate and the race will be a close one as there is very little difference in the strength of the Democratic party in these two counties. The leaders in the party in the two counties ought to get together and arrange for the office to rotate and avoid such extensive vacancies as will be necessary if such an arrangement is not made.

TAKES CUE FROM DOG

In Discovery of Heralded Cure For Influenza and Pneumonia.

New York, June 17.—Influenza and pneumonia are no more to be feared than a boil on the back of the neck, according to Doctor Charles H. Duncan, one of the founders of the volunteer hospital who, in an address today before the convention of the Allied Medical Association of America, described his method of combating Spanish influenza by means of "immunizing a patient to his disease."

Over 216 patients ill with pneumonia and influenza last winter, Dr. Duncan said, he had used the treatment "without a single fatality or any complications."

"Briefly," the physician said, "I take one drachm of mucus from the throat of a patient, sterilize it in one ounce of filtered water, where it remains several hours. One cubic centimeter of this mixture is injected subcutaneously, will affect a spontaneous cure of Spanish influenza, pneumonia, catarrh, or any similar infection of the throat. It is given in one or two doses, at intervals of 24 hours."

Dr. Duncan declared that his discovery was based upon his observation of a dog licking a patient's paw. He said the dog, by increasing germs of resistance at the place of infection brought about a natural healing, and the method he employed was similar in that it increased the leucocytes or white corpuscles of the blood and cleared out the system of poisons out of the humors.

The doctor said he had been using the method which he calls "auto-inoculation" for about ten years and that it now was accepted widely by allopaths, homeopaths and electric physicians, although it had not been endorsed by the American Medical Association. He said it had been successfully used on 5,000 horses in the New York street cleaning department.

Dr. George F. Laidlow, professor of the history of medicine and diagnosis at Flower Hospital, in discussing the doctor's method, said that the discoverer "has solved a problem that has been germinating in medicine for 3,000 years." The doctor's method, he said, was the conclusion of Pasteur, Koch and Wright, and is a decided step forward in the regular development of bacterial therapy.

MAMMOTH CAVE PARK.

Federal Government Institutes More Inviting Accommodations for Tourists.

Mammoth Cave is again placed in nomination for Federal honors. Representative Thomas, of the Kentucky delegation, rises gallantly to the occasion and maintains that the cave, "one of the greatest natural wonders of the world," should be "properly kept and preserved by the United States for the benefit of this and future generations." By all means!

The benefit of this and future generations, and in memory of Pilgrims of this and past generations the Federal Government would by charge and institute accommodations more ample and inviting than those of the past or present. That Mammoth Cave is a natural wonder much neglected by the public because the oral reports from those who visit it as to board and lodging do not encourage the public to make the trip is a truth which the United States for the benefit of this and future generations. By all means!

It is resolved that the roads and approaches to Mammoth Cave be taken in hand by the Federal Government and ironed out and provided with a crust of macadam or some other substance less yielding in wet weather than part of the road from Cave City has been historically. By all means and once again, let a national park be created at Mammoth Cave. Congressmen unable to understand that a national park need not be west of the Mississippi, and that in Edmondson park is a true and important to reserve and preserve a wilderness just as unmarred and as alluring to persons who like nature unmarred as any other area in the West where the timber stands and the streams flows as in 1492, and where the springs invite the woodchopper to seek from a chalice bordered with ferns.

Saw No Man's Land.

Wm. Bentler, of Erlanger, took a passenger to Rabbit Hash in his automobile, one day last week, and on his return left the road and drove into a field of strange roads and saw considerable new country before he regained his bearings and was headed in the proper course for Erlanger.

Frank Craig, of East Bend, was a caller at the office last Saturday last week, and reported the crops down there as very much in need of rain.

THE LADY OR THE TIGER.

Los Angeles Times.

Down in Texas a handsome and stylish lady tourist was under suspicion because she carried seven trunks with her. The baggage of the average Texan consist of a night shirt and a pocket comb, and so he can not comprehend the necessity of one trunk, much less seven. So a prying official investigated and discovered 600 bottles of champagne beneath a few layers of lingerie. The girl was turning the stuff on to some of the new fledged oil kings at $25 a quart, having a good time on the side. She figured on cleaning up about $10,000, which would at least keep her in dancing pumps thru the winter, but the law stepped in and confiscated the sunny juice. And all this after half a dozen courts have decided that the baggage of a traveler or hotel guest may not be ransacked for contraband goods. Must be a distinction between wholesale and retail.

VOICE IS MADE AS LOUD AS CANNON

No Trick at All to Magnify Sound Five Million Times—Wireless Expert Tells How.

San Francisco. A man's voice can be made as loud as the cannon's roar; it can be heard two or twenty miles. The ticking of a watch can be amplified until it sounds like breakers on an ocean cliff.

"It's no trick at all to magnify sounds four or five million times, or indefinitely," said Tom Lambert, a wireless telephone engineer. "All that is needed is to connect a number of vacuum tubes in multiple with a wireless receiving set, and the thing is done. At the first receiving contact a voice will be normal. Cut in one vacuum valve and it is raised seven times; thereafter it squares itself—seven times seven to forty-nine for the next vacuum valve, and the thing is done. At the first receiving contact a voice will be normal. Cut in one vacuum valve and it is raised seven times; thereafter it squares itself—seven times seven to forty-nine for the next, and so on."

Lambert explained the meaning of volume of sound, not power, in a transition. He explained that in a test recently a phonograph was connected with an amplifier at midnight, and we were given a watch, and gradually to supply a San Francisco with song and amusement, when the police urged us to desist.

In the stadium at Golden Gate park the singing of a watch and made audible all over the grand stand while an athletic meet was in progress. Capt. Robert W. A. Brown, who had been in the crowd off 2,000 feet and spoke quietly to his dog and the dog couldn't be heard. A wireless station which I am not permitted to mention recently received a telephone message from Europe, and through its amplifier started duck hunters in the next five miles away."

Mr. Lambert exhibited one of the vacuum valves. Its exterior resembled an ordinary 16-candle electric light bulb. Thru the glass housing could be seen a coiled winding that was dissimilar. Around a filament was wound convolutions of wire called a "grid." Above the grid was an encircling metallic plate. The current passed through each in the order described. The incoming wire less signals travel down the aerial and are picked up by the tuning set to the vacuum valve, which is a "detector" or receiver.

For practical purposes the vacuum valve has its use as in wireless ships, where the wireless telephone speaks its message through a horn to several officers instead of to one using a carrier. It can be availed of to address audiences.

The wireless telephone is wonderfully extending the front developed by the wireless telegraph. Any wireless telegraph receiving set is equally good for receiving telephone messages. The transmitting instruments, of course, are different.

Every airplane possessed by Uncle Sam and all U. S. warships are equipped with wireless telephone apparatus. These sets on warships are efficient at least 20 miles.

Enjoyed Fried Fish.

Edward Slayback and wife, of Florence neighborhood, and Mrs. B. R. Hume, of Burlington, were members of a party that enjoyed the benefit of the hospitality of the last week. They had an abundance of fine fish which they prepared for dinner. The only thing that marred the occasion was the excessive heat.

Marriage License Issued.

County Clerk Rogers has issued marriage licenses as follows this month:

H. Carrier, of Big Stone Gap, Virginia, and Mrs. Mattie Plim, of Burlington.

Wm. McFarland and Marie Blin-deau, both of Ohio.

Charles Samuel Pinnell and Sheba Rogers Fisher, both of Verona.

East Bend neighborhood was visited by a rain storm last Saturday afternoon that was very destructive to crops especially wheat. That part of the county was needed badly, but the storm did more damage to the crops than that of the dry weather of a few weeks.

FARMERS CHAUTAUQU.

Boone County People Should Arrange Right Now to Attend These Meetings.

Now that Boone county has a permanent and strong organization to handle the three days Farmers Community Meetings in July, people are beginning to ask questions about the meeting and the program. Two programs will be held each day, one at 3 p. m. and another at 8 p. m. This plan has been developed to enable the busy farmer and his energetic wife to take care of the day's work before coming to the meetings. The committee believes that the spirit of these meetings will be helped by the ample bringing of light luncheon with them so that between the afternoon and evening programs a picnic supper may be held on the ample grounds of the chautauqu. The business man and his families to chat with neighbors and friends, thus making these meetings real community affairs.

The meeting will be held in a big auditorium tent which will seat 700 people quite comfortably. That it will be lighted by electricity and small motion picture machine will be installed so that four or five reels of fine educational pictures may follow the evening talk.

The Department of Agriculture at Washington, the National Red Cross, the State Board of Health and the State Commissioner of Roads will furnish these films. Among these reels there will be those which will interest both children and adults. Two reels will tell the story of the boys and girls, who as state champions in club work, visited Washington for several days and took in the sights and inspected the work of the Agricultural Department. Another film shows the construction of a straw-briar cooperative in hog cholera; and others will deal with health and poultry raising, and growing and handling of straw-briar will also be shown in motion pictures.

The people in Boone county should take advantage of these meetings. Four speakers will be used each day in addition to the speakers who will be used on the first day. The program is not meant to be the social part of these meetings. The person attending the meetings will be able to see the work of the county and this in itself will help make the meetings thoroughly worth while. Let the program be plain luncheon and lots of sociability.

REFUSED TO RESIGN

Members of Textbook Board Deny Gov. Black's Request To Quit.

Members of the Stanley Textbook Commission, with a prompt refusal to resign, have indicated preconcerted intention to stand together, declined a cordial invitation from Gov. Black to resign, and have appointed a commission to investigate the matter of his own.

The Governor said he could find no authority to remove them, as they were appointed for four years, so the commission indicated preconcerted intention to stand together, declined a cordial invitation from Gov. Black to resign, and have appointed a commission to investigate the matter of his own.

Members of the commission confessed they had no idea what course the Governor intended to pursue, but they were all of one mind that they would not resign unless compelled to do so.

Each one in turn took the floor and told the Governor so. They all said they had performed a good piece of work conscientiously and to resign now would reflect on themselves.

The meeting took place in the State reception room, to which they repaired after assembling in the Governor's office.

Members of the commission were seated the 10 commissioners and spoke to them, reviewing events leading up to rejection of the adoption by the unanimous bench of the board of App. He said his action in calling for resignation was intended as a section on their individual conduct, but in deference to public opinion and since he had no voice in their appointment, in order to quiet suspicion and accusations and to have the approval of the public, he made the request.

Forty-seven war ships of the German fleet which surrendered to the Allies in November were sunk by German crews in Scapa Flow, the British Admiralty has officially announced. In addition, twenty-one ships were beached, including six destroyers and a dreadnought and four destroyers, at the pier. The pier, it was believed, was holding for a long time as it was carried out by the German precision. Some German boats from the sinking ships refused to halt, and were fired on, a small number of the crew were killed or wounded. The crews attacked the ships by opening machine guns.

An Enjoyable Affair.

The ice cream and strawberry supper given by the Ladies Aid Society of the Burlington Baptist church at Mrs. Eliza Walton's last Saturday evening was attended by a large crowd that enjoyed the splendid cake and the delicious berries and cream. The handsome lawn about the residence was illuminated with Chinese lanterns that made a beautiful scene while a Victrola furnished vocal and instrumental music for the occasion. During the evening Miss Mattie Kreych delighted the crowd with two or three recitations.

The Early Bird.

William Walton, lost a five dollar bill while adjusting some tire trouble out on the Florence pike last Saturday, and after spending a restless night because of his loss, he returned to where he was in trouble with his machine and there he found the money and he congratulated himself upon being the early bird.

KY. CROP CONDITION.

Wheat, Oats, Rye, Barley and Other Crops in Fair Condition.

Under date of June 12th Field Agent H. F. Bryant sends out the following crop report for Kentucky:

With numerous reports of short or poorly filled heads and some damage from rust and lodging, Kentucky's wheat crop promises 1,170,000 bushels compared to a prospect early in May for 1,257,000 bushels. Last year the final yield turned out 1,229,000 bushels while the five-year average, 1913-17 inclusive, was only 9,862,000 bushels. The heaviest damage has been, apparently, in Southern and Western Kentucky.

Oats did not do so well during the cold wet weather in May as might have been expected, but are now doing well except where too badly drowned out. The condition is now 96 per cent of normal and the acreage about 385,000 acres, three per cent less than in 1918, indicating a production of about 10,429,400 bushels.

Rye shows a condition of 92 per cent of normal with about 62,000 acres in the State to be harvested for grain. This indicates a production of approximately 10,429,400 bushels.

Barley acreage in Kentucky this year is about two per cent less than in 1918, or about 6,800 acres more than in 1917, but the tobacco acreage. Practically all the barley in Kentucky is grown in the Blue Grass counties. Condition of the barley is 98 per cent of normal, indicating a production of about 20,554 bushels.

Hay has made fine growth but much of the first cutting of alfalfa was damaged by a severe weather. Condition of clover is 96 per cent with the acreage about three per cent less than in 1918. Alfalfa condition is 96 per cent, because many farmers had to delay the first cutting until the second growth shoots from the roots. The hay is now being clipped by the mower. The acreage is about the same as in 1918.

Apples are irregular. Many orchards have practically all apples killed by the late freeze, but some orchards have a fair crop. The average is about 25 per cent of a crop. Peaches are about 33 per cent of a crop, while pears are only about 26 per cent.

Pasture excellent all over the State. Truck crops are growing fine, but melons were severely checked by the cold wet weather in May. Blackberries promise a bumper crop practically all over the State.

"In twenty years of service in the Senate I have known but one instrument whose terms have been so grossly misinterpreted and so grossly misrepresented as the covenant of the League of Nations. That some of it is vague, and some portions objectionable from a technical point of view, but that it discriminates against us, or is unfair in its treatment of our country, or that it imposes on us an obligation or burden that is not equally borne by every other nation, I most emphatically deny. It is regrettable that the might power of eloquence is used to defame and distort the true meaning of an instrument, the most important of which is the heart of the soul of man."

The above is an extract from a speech made in the U. S. Senate by Charles McNamara, Republican of North Dakota.

The high cost of pickers has made the price of strawberries high this year, but ere long the blackberries will turn about and become as inviting as strawberries. All that is required to procure blackberries is time, a tin bucket, disregard of gnats, patience with wood ticks, tolerance of chiggers, ability to stand up under a broiling sun and stick to the picking with bleeding fingers while the berries are in season. A berry is best and which farmer is least likely to set the dogs on you after you have reached the house at the end of the berry patch.—Courier Journal.

What has become of the oft-famous man who used to get up at four o'clock every morning? He don't live in Burlington.

Is The Senate a National Body?

Louisville Courier Journal.

Is the Senate dominated by men of national instincts or by a lot of gibbering and meddling old ladies? Were Messrs. Lodge, Borah, Reed and the like sent by their constituents to Washington to indulge in personal attacks or to apply certain elemental considerations of statesmanship to the country's problems?

These are not idle questions. The events of the past few days bring them to mind for the serious contemplation of persons who, having no interest in the petty quarrels of petty men, are devotedly concerned with the sober handling of national affairs.

Look at the facts. A moment. The President of the U. S. whose authority to act as a Peace Commissioner may not be debated, is at the head of the American delegation in Paris; it is immaterial to his task whether he be Democrat, Republican or Whig; his duty is itself national. He has no more to do with a political party's whims than has the work of the U. S. Supreme Court when it undertakes to determine a proceedings between it. It is as little to do with American party politics as the work of Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and the others, who are not members of any American political party and with whom President Wilson is laboring in the prodigious work of planning the minute specifics of a dictated and permanent peace. The treaty having been tentatively drawn, it has been served upon the German delegates, the Allied representatives having agreed that the delicacy of the proceedings make it necessary to withhold the actual text until it was in final form. It is not known definitely whether the Germans are to sign or reject the treaty. The belief that they will accept is not of itself, in such a serious circumstance, warrant for any participating nation to act without discretion or reserve.

At so critical a juncture certain members of the Senate — their party, too, is irrelevant in a matter whose whole nature is national — place this country in the position of breaking faith with its Allies on the subject of publicity for the treaty and, further, undertake to serve notice on the Germans and on Lloyd George and Clemenceau that the Senate will reject the work of the Paris conference. Senator Knox goes even so far as to urge a resolution committing this country to intervention should any Power or combination of Powers menace the peace of Europe.

The Courier-Journal is not concerned with the party politics which the entire spectacle assumes to present. It is interested at so momentous a period only in the spectacle's national aspects. And, from a national viewpoint, it asks the American people what think they of those men of the Senate capable of treating one of the gravest episodes of history in a manner at once so casual, personal and even jocular. They are making sport of the Nation's integrity, they are accomplishing the disintegration of the labors of Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and the others who have been carrying upon their shoulders the weight of the world, they are impairing the force of a treaty which speaks to the Germans a dictated peace—the very kind of dictated peace which these very Senators clamored for a year ago and professed to fear would not be imposed. They choose for their conduct an instant when the fate of the world trembles in the balance. It is not clear why party or personal politics can be so easily offered as an excuse for antics so hurtful in a crisis so stupendous. Were Mr. Wilson a Republican President and all the Senators now toying with history Democrats, they were deserving of the people's reprobation and scorn. Such conduct on the part of any United States Senator, whatever his party, is crime. It raises the query whether the ebullient Senators are lacking in patriotism or brains. There is no reason for doubting the patriotism of most of them.

Senator Knox advances a suggestion in his resolutions which should be buried deeply under a torrent of public opposition. He wishes the United States to pledge itself to regard as a menace to its own peace any threat against the peace of Europe by any Power or combination of Powers. He offers this in lieu of the League of Nations covenant, which commits this nation to no such extreme policy. His policy would extend to Europe a doctrine which out-Monroes all the Monroe doctrines that ever Monroe, The Paris conference has at no time suggested so large a gulp of international military responsibility for this Government. Not because of its own—the personal identity of no actor in this supreme crisis is important nor should be considered—but on its merits, the suggestion should make no headway. Committee-handled intervention, it would, indeed, involve us in European wars in a manner not comprehended by the charter of the League of Nations.

The Peace Treaty as drawn in Paris and as signed by Germany was submitted in proper time to the Senate for ratification or rejection. It will be ratified as so drawn and signed. The pranks of the Quixotic minds of the Senate will arouse the people of America to a higher state of determination to that end. The Senate will itself feel the public demand and yield to it. The treaty will be adjusted in Paris will last without the League of Nations to act as an insurance against the people of the American people. The war will not be a new need for terrorism and more war. The League be rejected.

in cigarette blending

The big thing about Chesterfields is their unique blend. The Chesterfield blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos. It is a most important development in cigarette making.

As a result, Chesterfields deliver a new kind of cigarette enjoyment — just like a "bite" before bedtime when you're hungry — they SATISFY!

It took the finest selections of TURKISH and DOMESTIC tobaccos and no end of skill and patient experiment to get this blend right.

Was it worth it? Say — just smoke a Chesterfield fresh from the moisture-proof package. You'll say it was worth it, all right!

The boys of the trenches know this. Their parents know it. The recalcitrant Senators know it. They know further that the U. S. will not be yielding any sovereignty in joining the League. It will be but associating itself with others with the aim of surrendering a right to precipitate any war. National responsibility of a new and different kind came with our participation in this war. It cannot be evaded in the settlement of the war itself. And, similarly, the very settlement of the war can not of itself be avoided. The future is an inevitable heritage of the past, and the past records indubitably in the United States' activity in a war which was fought on Europe's soil. The moving finger cannot erase a word of it nor conceal half a line.

The Chief Executive is on the scene of the negotiations. He has had the difficulties actually before him. He has had to meet them according to his best judgment as the perplexities arose. He has not on the other hand, been free to sit idly by, read the news papers and amuse himself criticizing carelessly figures struggling with the manifold task of reconciliation, and the attendant views, jealousies, and exactions. Talk is simple. Problems aren't.

The Courier-Journal would deny to no citizen his right to criticize the President or any other public officer; that right is so clearly at the base of Republican government as to amount almost to duty. Woodrow Wilson has no claim to immunity from public judgment. But criticism should be sincere and should be properly timed. Above all, it should be as broad in spirit as the nation itself.

The Courier-Journal ventures the prophecy that President Wilson will judge the entire situation from a national viewpoint and will challenge the Senate to proceed along the course which a clique of its members assume to outline.

frightened into throwing overboard the League of Nations, upon which all other items of the treaty depend, knowing that if the Paris conference should disperse and the sentiment of the world should die away the League would never be revived. Were the President a Republican, that is the course he ought to follow against a wordy of childish Democrats.

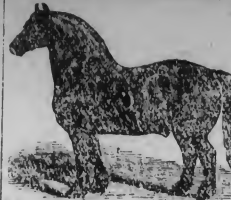

This is not less a time to think nationally than the war-time. The people will think nationally, too, despite the gyrations of the belateds of the Senate. What a tragedy for the country that at this juncture of national emergency the Senate looms as a zapping marmot of shrewish old ladies rather than a rational body!

Insure Your Tobacco.

Hail storms have visited several neighborhoods in this part of the State this month and would have destroyed considerable tobacco had it been of any size. Tobacco on tobacco occasioned by hail can now be avoided by insuring the crop, which has proven very helpful to several growers in this county the past few years. To insure your tobacco call on N. E. Riddell, of Burlington, who has the agency for a company that has made good on every policy it has held in this county, where there was any damage to the crop by hail.

William G. Glover, who for several years has owned the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, Press, one of the best country papers in Indiana, has sold it to D. P. Ziegler & Sons, of Hobbs, Tennessee, and they have taken possession. Mr. Glover owns a fine farm near Milan, Indiana, to which he will devote his entire attention.

HYDROPHOBIA OR RABIES

What To Do In Case of a Bite By a Rabid Animal or One Suspected of Being So.

To the Editor of the Recorder: We wish to avail ourselves of the privilege of using the columns of your valuable paper for the purpose of having a heart to heart talk with the citizens of Boone County and all others whom this paper may reach.

In the beginning, we wish to state in writing this article, we are not prompted by a spirit of malice or malice toward any person or persons, whatever, but, as physicians, we feel that we would be guilty of a crime if we remained silent after the horrible affair that so recently happened in the Hebron neighborhood, and which have occurred in other parts of Boone County at intervals from time to time.

First, we wish to affirm that there is nothing in the so-called mad-stones but danger to the public in that they cause a feeling of false security if they stick or do not stick. They do not possess one atom of curative power over Rabies or Hydrophobia, and no animal under certain conditions, especially in the deer, chamois, goat, porcupine, horse and even the human. They possess just as much power over Rabies as a gall stone, kidney-stone or a stone from the urinary bladder, having no mysterious or magical power whatever, and are often composed of the earth salts of lime, ammonium, and magnesium phosphate.

As known for ages under the name of Bezoar stones. A description of these can be found in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, Dugliss's Medical Dictionary, or almost any Encyclopedia and Dictionary giving a good description of them under both names. The U. S. Dispensary of 1854, after a short description of these stones, says: "They have fallen into medical neglect."

The Standard Dictionary of English Language, by Funk and Wagnalls, says: "Mad-stones—A stone popularly supposed to cure hydrophobia. Such stones, usually of the size and shape of large eggs, are superficially preserved as heirlooms in some parts of the United States because they are believed to absorb venom. Often composed of magnesium phosphate, classed as Oriental, Occidental and German, of which the Oriental are supposed to have the most power."

Old English Dispensary published in England by Wm. Lewis, M. B., F. R. S., in 1793, 120 years ago, shows the description of these words: "Many virtues have been formerly ascribed to the Bezoar, and it is now found to be merely an absorbent, and, of very inferior an order, that it is never used for that purpose."

"The Oriental Bezoar stones, found in Persia, are supposed to possess more power than the Occidental or the German, due to the fact that the Hindu fakirs and magicians of the Far East have skillfully exploited their power before an ignorant and very credulous public."

Witchcraft and the belief in it disappeared from Salem, more than 100 years ago, and if there be any in Boone County at this period of the 20th century, it is time to turn the light of our rays in our direction and let it shine more light. Any Chemical Laboratory could analyze one of these stones, ascertain its composition, and reproduce them on the wagon load. Does it not stand to reason that the U. S. Public Health Service, which is constantly fighting plague and epidemics of all kinds, if there were any real virtue in these stones, would confiscate them, if necessary, analyze them, and produce enough like them to place one in every hamlet and village from the Atlantic to the Pacific?

If, after reading this article, your faith in the Mad-stone is still unshaken after trying its power, which is no more than that of a piece of pumice stone, or, better still, a piece of thoroughly sterilized porous brick, go immediately to your family physician and he will give you full information and direct you as to the serum treatment for Hydrophobia. The period of incubation, or the period of development from the time of bite until the first symptoms are noticed, ranges from two weeks to two years, with an average of from 30 to 60 days. This explains why the serum treatment fails to give results in a very small number of cases, as the length of time required for the administration is 21 days, and the highest point of immunity is not reached until two weeks later. For this reason your physician, or the administration of the serum as soon as possible, for if it is begun within six days of the bite, the results are almost invariably favorable. In the past few years this treatment has been perfected to such an extent it can be given in any hospital, by any physician, or if you prefer, by any intelligent person in your own family. The cost of the serum is $25, but anyone financially unable to meet this cost can have it furnished him, free of charge by the U. S. Public Health Service, the State Board of Health, or the county in which he lives. No fear need be entertained of bad results in non-hydrophobia cases as there are practically no danger, indeed, will often prevent the mouth or throat of any animal that is bitten in a suspicious manner. In the case of any animal where hydrophobia is suspected, secure the animal, if it can be done, without risk to anyone, in some place where it can be kept under constant observation until it gets well, dies, or is killed. To do this, shoot through the head, but shoot through the body or give three or four grains of strichnine, which will not affect the microscopic examination of the brain and spinal cord. Then chop thru the neck with a sharp instrument without mutilating the head, and in the weather be hot, pack the head in a bucket of ice and express of the State Chemical Laboratory at Bowling Green where it will be examined free of charge, and take it to the General Hospital in Cincinnati, where the cost will be about $100.

We wish to correct an error in the account in a recent issue of the Recorder. It stated that Mr. Beal, who was the applicant for the mad-stone on Monday afternoon, June 8th. This was purely imagination on the part of someone, as his condition grew progressively worse from the beginning. This fact can be substantiated by the doctors and by the members of the immediate family.

Another case of hydrophobia under identical conditions with the one that so recently happened, occurring in Boone County within the next 100 years, will be just one too many.

Again we wish to state that these articles were not written in a spirit of malice toward anyone, but with the kindest of motives toward all humanity. Any further questioning anyone wishes to ask will be gladly answered by P. L. SAYRE, M. D., S. B. NUNNELLY, M. D., J. H. GRANT, M. D.

ARMY WORMS Have Damaged Acres of Grain in Indiana.

Anderson, Ind., June 19.—Army worms destroyed or damaged 100,000 acres of grain in Madison county, H. S. Agster, county agricultural agent, said today. The loss, he said, would aggregate $250,000.

Where rye and timothy fields were attacked, the destruction was practically complete. Wheat is showing the desiring of invasion and late corn is being ruined on many farms.

Vegetables, except beans, fall rapidly in the worst cases. Starting in the black soil along streams, the worms have carried their attack into every part of the county. Farmers and townspeople are digging for the pest in infested fields and filling with crude oil. Spraying crude oil was found to be insufficient.

It is thought the attack will have subsided by the middle of next week, but Agster said it may continue to July 1st.

Only Two Hats In.

Only two hats in the Legislature for this legislative district. Boone furnishes one of the candidates and Grant county the other. In each county the race will be a close one as there is very little difference in the strength of the Democratic party in these two counties. The leaders in the party in the two counties ought to get together and arrange for the office to rotate and avoid giving excessive canvasses as will be necessary if such an arrangement is not made.

TAKES CUE FROM DOG In Discovery of Heralded Cure For Influenza and Pneumonia.

New York, June 17.—Influenza and pneumonia are no more to be feared than a boil on the back of the neck, according to Doctor "Auto" Duncan, one of the founders of the volunteer hospital who, in an address today before the convention of the Allied Medical Association of America, described his method of combating Spanish influenza by means of "immunizing a patient to his own disease."

Upon 216 patients ill with pneumonia and influenza last winter, Dr. Duncan said, he had used the method of injecting a patient with a vaccine made from the bacteria of the disease, and the results were "astonishingly good." "Briefly," the physician said, "I take one drachm of mucus from the infected area and sterilize it in one ounce of filtered water, where it remains several hours. One cubic centimeter of this vaccine is injected subcutaneously, will affect a spontaneous cure of Spanish influenza, pneumonia, catarrh, or any similar disease of the respiratory tract, except tuberculosis, inside of 24 hours."

Dr. Duncan declared that his discovery was based upon his observation of a dog, which he named "Paw." He said the dog, by increasing germs of resistance at the place of infection brought about the cure. The method he employed was similar in that it increased the neutrophils or white corpuscles of the blood and the method of the human system.

The doctor said he had been using the method which he calls "auto-infection" for many years and that it now was accepted widely by allopaths, homeopaths and eclectic physicians, although it had not been endorsed by the American Medical Association. He said it had been successfully used on 5,000 horses in the New York street cleaning department.

Dr. George F. Laidlow, professor of the history of medicine and diagnosis at Flower Hospital, in New York, said the discoverer "has solved a problem that has been germinating in medicine for 3,000 years." He said the method was the conclusion of Pasteur, Koch and Wright, and is a decided step forward in the regular development of bacterial therapy.

MAMMOTH CAVE PARK.

Federal Government Invests More in Inviting Accommodations.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mammoth Cave is again placed in nomination for Federal honors. Representative Thomas, of the Kentucky delegation, rises gallantly to the occasion and maintains that the cave, "one of the greatest natural wonders of the world," should be "properly cared for and preserved by the United States for the benefit of this and future generations." By all means!

For the benefit of this and future generations, and in memory of Pilgrims of this and past generations the Federal Government should take charge and institute accommodations more ample and inviting than those of the past or present. That Mammoth Cave is a natural wonder much neglected by the public because the oral reports from those who visit it as to board and lodging do not encourage the public to make the trip is a true statement. The mere language in which the lies proposed are described make it plain that a handsome park would be carved from a terrain clothed with primeval forest and studded with vestiges of subordinate interest in the vicinity of the great natural wonder which underlies the woodland.

It is resolved that the roads and approaches to Mammoth Cave be taken in hand by the Federal Government and ironed out and provided with a crust of macadam or some other substance to be taken in hand by the Federal Government. It is also resolved that a national park be created at Mammoth Cave. Congress seems unable to understand that a national park need not be west of the Mississippi, and that in Edmondson county is an opportunity to reserve and preserve a wilderness as unmarred and as alluring to persons who like nature unmarred as any equivalent in the West where the timber stands and the streams flows as in 1492, and where the springs invite the woodchopper to begin from a chalice bordered with ferns.

Saw No Man's Land.

Wm. Bentler, of Erlanger, took a passenger to Rabbit Hash in his automobile, one day last week, and on his return trip he got lost in the woods and saw considerable new country before he regained his bearings and was headed for the proper course for Erlanger.

Frank Craig, of East Bend, was a caller at a local office and after a talk last week, and reported the crops down there as very much in need of rain.

THE LADY OR THE TIGER.

Los Angeles Times.

Down in Texas a handsome and stylish lady tourist was under suspicion because she carried seven trunks with her. The baggage of the average Texan consist of a night shirt and a pocket comb, and so he can not comprehend the necessity of one trunk, much less seven. So a prying official investigated and discovered 600 bottles of champagne beneath a few layers of lingerie. The girl was passing the stuff on to some of the new fledged oil kings at $25 a quart, having a good time on the side. She figured on cleaning up about $15,000, which would at least keep her in dancing pumps thru the winter, but the law stepped in and confiscated the sunny juice. And at this after half a dozen courts have decided that the baggage of a traveler or hotel guest may not be ransacked for contraband goods. Must be a distinction between wholesale and retail.

VOICE IS MADE AS LOUD AS CANNON

No Trick at All to Magnify Sound Five Million Times—Wireless Expert Tells How.

San Francisco.—A man's voice can be made as loud as a cannon's roar; it can be heard two or twenty miles. The ticking of a watch can be amplified until it sounds like breakers on an ocean cliff.

"It's no trick at all to magnify sounds four or five million times, or indefinitely," said Wm. Lambert, a wireless telephone engineer. "All that is needed is to connect a number of vacuum valves in multiple with a wireless receiving set, and the thing is done. At the first receiving contact a voice will be normal. Cut in one vacuum valve and it is raised seven times; thereafter it squares itself—seven times seven to forty-nine for the next vacuum valve, and on and on."

"I mean volume of sound, not power," he explained. "In a test recently a phonograph was connected with an amplifier at midnight, and we received a signal gradually to supply all San Francisco with song and amusement, when the police urged us to desist."

In the stadium at Golden Gate park, a tick of a watch was made audible all over the grand stand while an athletic meet was in progress. Capt. Robert W. A. Bess, chief of the station, took off 2,000 feet and spoke quietly to his dog and the dog couldn't be heard.

A wireless station which I do not permit to be seen recently received a telephone message from Europe, and through its amplifier started duck hunters in the mountains eight miles away."

Mr. Lambert exhibited one of the vacuum valves. Its exterior resembled an ordinary 16-candle electric light bulb. Thru the glass however, could be seen a winding that was dissimilar. Around a filament was wound convolutions of wire called a "grid." Above the grid was a wire to the tuning set, and then to the vacuum valve, which is a "detector" or receiver.

For private purposes the vacuum valve has its use, as in warships, where the wireless telephone speaks its message through a horn to several officers instead of to one using earphones. It can be availed of to address audiences.

The wireless telephone is wonderfully extending the field developed by the wireless telegraph. Any wireless telegraph receiving set is equally good for receiving telephone messages. The transmitting instrument, of course, are different.

Enjoyed Fried Fish.

Edward Slayback and wife, of Florence neighborhood, and Mrs. B. Hume, of Burlington, were members of a party that enjoyed fried fish at the hotel in Asheville last week. They had an abundance of fine fish which they prepared for dinner. The only thing to mar the occasion was the excessive heat.

Marriage License Issued.

FARMERS CHAUTAUQU.

Boone County People Should Arrange Right Now To Attend These Meetings.

Now that Boone County has a permanent and strong organization to handle the three days Farmers Community Meetings in July, people are beginning to ask questions about the meeting and the program. Two programs will be held each day, one at 3 p. m. and another at 7 p. m. This plan has been developed to enable the busy farmer and energetic wife to take care of the day's work before attending the meetings. The committee believes that the spirit of these meetings will be helped by the people bringing their children with them so that between the afternoon and evening programs a picnic supper may be held on the grounds. The meetings will be held at the farmer, the business man and their families to chat with neighbors and friends, thus making these meetings real community affairs.

The meeting will be held in a big auditorium tent which will seat 500 people quite comfortably. It will be lighted by electricity and will contain a picture machine will be installed so that four or five reels of fine educational pictures may follow the evening talk. The department of Agriculture at Washington, the National Red Cross, the State Board of Health and the State Commissioner of Roads will furnish these films. Among these reels there will be those which will interest both children and adults. Two of the reels will tell the story of the boys and girls, who as state club members, visited Washington.

They adjourned at 10 o'clock and the Agricultural Department. Another film shows the construction of a new silo; another gives the full story of the hog cholera; and others will deal with health and poultry raising. The growing and handling of strawberries comparatively in Warren county will also be shown in motion pictures.

The people in Boone County should make arrangements right now to be present at these meetings. Four speakers will be used each day in addition to the evening speaker. The program means least, will be the social part of these meetings. The person attending the meetings will be able to meet old friends and new friends from all over the county and this in itself will help make the meetings thorough and interesting. Let the program be plain luncheons and lots of sociability.

REFUSED TO RESIGN

Members of Textbook Board Deny Gov. Black's Request To Quit.

Members of the Stanley Textbook Commission, with a prompt refusal to resign, have indicated preconcerted intention to stand together, declined a cordial invitation from Gov. Black to resign and let him appoint a commission of his own.

The Governor said he could find no authority to remove them, as they were appointed for four years, and they were not to be removed until they had completed their mission of their own.

Members of the commission professed they had no idea what course the Governor intended to pursue, but they were all of one mind and they would resign unless compelled to do so.

Each one in turn took the floor and told the Governor so. They all said they had performed a good piece of work conscientiously and to resign now would reflect on themselves.

The meeting took place in the State reception room, which they repaired after assembling in the Governor's office. Soon as the commissioners were seated the Governor arose and spoke to them, reviewing events leading up to rejection of the adoption by the unanimous body of the Stanley Textbook. He said his action in calling for their resignation was intended as no reflection on their individual conduct, but in deference to public opinion and since he had no voice in their appointment, in order "to quiet suspicion and accusations and meet the approval of the public," he made the request.

Forty-seven war ships of the German fleet which surrendered to the Allies last November were sunk by German crews in Scapa Flow. The British Admiralty has officially announced. In addition, twenty-one ships were beached, leaving only five ships in Scapa Flow and four destroyers, afloat. The plot, it was believed, was hatching for a long time as it was carried out in a most precise manner. Some German boats from the sinking ships refused to haul, and were fired on, a small number of German mines killed or wounded. The crew scattered the ships by opening scuttles.

An Enjoyable Affair.

The ice cream and strawberry supper given by the Ladies Aid Society of the Burlington Baptist church at Mrs. Eliza Walton's last Saturday evening was attended by a large crowd that enjoyed the splendid cakes and the delicious berries and cream. The handsome lawn about the residence was illuminated with Chinese lanterns that made a beautiful scene while a Victrola furnished vocal and instrumental music for the occasion. During the evening Miss Mattie Kreylich delighted the crowd with two or three recitations.

The Early Bird.

William Walton lost a five dollar bill while adjusting some trouble out on the Florence Pike last Saturday, and after spending a restless night because of his loss, he returned to where he was in trouble with his machine and there he found the money and he congratulated himself upon being the early bird.

KY. CROP CONDITION.

Wheat, Oats, Rye, Barley and Other Crops in Fair Condition.

Under date of June 12th Field Agent H. F. Bryant sends out the following crop report for Kentucky:

With numerous reports of short or poorly filled heads and some damage from rust and lodging, Kentucky's wheat crop promises 11,700,000 bushels compared to a prospect early in May for 15,257,000 bushels. Last year the final crop was 12,129,000 bushels while the five-year average 1913-17 inclusive, was only 9,862,000 bushels. The heaviest damage has been, apparently, in Southern and Western Kentucky.

Oats did not so well during the cold wet weather in May as might have been expected but are now doing well except where too badly drowned out. The condition is now 96 per cent of normal and the acreage about 385,000 acres, three per cent less than in 1918, indicating a production of about 10,425,400 bushels.

Rye shows a condition of 98 per cent of normal, with about 62,000 acres in the State to be harvested for grain. This indicates a production of approximately 16 bushels.

Barley acreage in Kentucky this year is about two per cent less than in 1918, or about 6,800 acres. Due to increased turkey tobacco acreage, practically all the barley in Kentucky is grown in the Blue Grass counties. Condition of the crop is 96 per cent of normal, indicating a production of about 203,554 bushels.

Hay has made fine growth but much of the first cutting of alfalfa is not so long as last year. Condition of clover is 96 per cent with the acreage about three per cent less than in 1918. The condition is 96 per cent, because many farmers had to delay the first cutting until the second growth shoots from the clover. Not so long as last year, but clipped by the mow, the acreage is about the same as in 1918.

Apples are irregular. Many orchards have practically all apples killed by the late frost, but some orchards have a fair crop. The average is about 25 per cent of a crop. Peaches are about 33 per cent, having escaped the frost, but are only about 26 per cent.

Pasture excellent all over the State. Truck crops are growing fine, but melons are being checked by the cold wet weather in May. Blackberries promise a bumper crop practically all over the State.

"In twenty years of service in the Senate I have known but one instrument whose terms have been fully misinterpreted and so grossly misrepresented as the covenant of the League of Nations. That some of it is vague, and some portions objectionable, and some points, but that it discriminates against us, or is unfair in its treatment of our country, or that it imposes on us an obligation or burden that is not equally borne by every other nation, I most emphatically deny. It is regrettable that the might power of eloquence is used to defame and distort the true meaning of an instrument, the most important of which has been placed to the heart of the soul of man."

The above is an extract from a speech made in the U. S. Senate last week by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota.

The high cost of pickers has made the price of strawberries high this year, but ere long the blackberries will turn about and become the main crop. All that is required to produce blackberries is time, a tin bucket, disregard of gnats, patience with root ticks, tolerancy of chiggers, ability to stand up under a broiling sun and stick to the picking with bleeding fingers berrying in such a way where the berries are so close together it is best to use the hands to get the berries on you after you have reached the heart of the berry patch.—Courier Journal.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who used to get up at four o'clock every morning? He don't live in Burlington.

300,000 Maxwells; they grow better as their numbers multiply

LIKE an artist who paints a picture, or a man in business, the Maxwell improves with each day's output.

Gradual, almost invisible to the man at the forge or in the accounting office but certain as the rising of the sun, there's an improvement well nigh daily.

There have been five years of making this Maxwell better and better, and the basic design has never changed once in that time.

At one time the Maxwell was known only as a hill-climber. Again it gained attention through its work in rough country. Then it earned a reputation on economy. But gradually it became better and better spoken of for its enduring, everlasting reliability.

That kind of reliability that doesn't burn your pocketbook with repair bills, that knows no task too difficult, that never complains of old age, that gives you about as much trouble as a pair of shoes, that travels on a very small gas appetite.

300,000 of them are in use throughout the world.

In those sections of the world where few cars make good, there you will find the Maxwell—often the dominating car.

The 300,000th Maxwell is the same basic car as Maxwell No. 1. No changes in design—but many improvements.

There's no doubt it's a better car today. Nearly 300,000 of one model has its obvious effects.

LOYAL LEGION

Organized Last Saturday Night With Fifteen Charter Members.—Committee on Membership Appointed.

Boone Post of The American Legion was organized last Saturday night at the court house in Burlington with 15 charter members.

Edgar H. B. B. was chosen temporary commander and Ross Rasmussen, temporary agitator.

The committee on membership appointed by the meeting is composed of the fifteen charter members, and every Boone county select who is eligible to membership is expected to be enrolled in the next few weeks. Those eligible are the selects between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, except conscientious objectors and select who were dishonorably discharged from the service.

The object of the Legion is to perpetuate the comradeship of those who have followed the flag to the front or were in readiness to do their bit at the earliest possible moment.

Blank applications and instructions will be in the county clerk's office in every county in Kentucky by the first of July, and everybody is requested to boost the organization.

W. F. Bradford, Secretary of the Queen City Milk Producers' Association, in a recent letter gave out figures showing the value of co-operation in the prices paid for milk month by month last year. The highest price paid for milk the past year was during the months of last December and January when it was $4.10 per 100 pounds, 3 5/8 to 4 1/8 per cent milk.

PROPOSED STATE

HIGHWAY

Large Meeting Held at Carrollton to Discuss the Proposition.

County Judge Riddell, County Attorney Riley, and Esquires Tanner, of Florence, and Bedinger, of Walton, attended a big road meeting held at Carrollton last Monday to discuss a proposition to build a State Highway from Louisville to connect with the Dixie Highway at some point in this county. The meeting was attended by a considerable crowd, Henry Oldham, Trimble, Carl Gallati and Boone counties being represented.

If the Highway is built the Federal Government will pay half of the cost while the State and the counties through which it will pass will pay the other half.

It developed at the meeting that none of the counties have any funds available for the completion of the Highway and they will have to raise them by private subscription, which the representatives from the several counties were sanguine could be done.

In the matter of subscriptions for the Highway, Boone is in a better position than any of the other counties along the route, as the road or roads in this county that would become a part of the Highway are under contract for reconstruction.

The route for the Highway is yet to be designated.

SALVATION ARMY NEEDS

Annual Budget Shows Reasons for $13,000,000 Drive

Vast Activities Conducted by 1,000 Corps in United States—Future Plans.

New York—(Special)—The annual budget of the Salvation Army, containing a detailed and comprehensive statement of the cost of maintaining its varied activities throughout the United States, has been issued from National Headquarters, 122 West Fourteenth street. The statistics show why it is necessary for the Salvation Army to go before the American people in the week of May 19 to 26 and ask them to contribute $13,000,000 to its Home Service Fund.

There are 939 corps and outposts of the Salvation Army in the United States. The cost of maintaining these is $2,855,000. The maximum income which these corps may expect from collections in meetings, contributions of members and other outside contributions is $715,000, making the net total cost of supporting the corps $1,070,000.

The cost of maintaining divisional and provincial headquarters, which supervise the work of the local corps, will be, according to the budget, $530,000.

Besides the work of supervising the local headquarters, the provincial and divisional headquarters are in charge of several of the Salvation Army's largest activities, including the operation of fresh air camps for children, relief and employment bureaus and the provincial funds.

Under the heading of "national and territorial obligations" the Salvation Army includes the expenses of maintaining what are among its best known institutions those which may be grouped under the general name of "social work." For this purpose the Army wants $1,270,000.

The pension fund budget is $400,000. The Salvation Army has determined on the erection of many new buildings for social work in the future. The building program will require expenditures of $1,875,000.

The remainder of the amount sought for the Home Service Fund is for corps, divisional and provincial buildings and a small contingent fund.

Details of the Salvation Army's activities in the United States for the last year show how remarkable is the scope of the Army's endeavors and what vast numbers of people it serves. For instance, the Army maintains seventy-five hotels for men and women. Last year 1,656,528 persons found sleeping accommodations in these. Beds were supplied for 127,880 children in the Army's four children's homes in the same period, while 48,319 children were sheltered in the slum nurseries. In the industrial houses beds were supplied for 1,742,815. In the rescue homes and maternity hospitals 1,889 girls went under the care of the Army last year.

The Army has 2,918 officers and cadets in the United States. Last year they preached to over 21,000,000 persons.

Kidnaped Baby Recovered.

Paris, Ky., June 19.—Following the placing of a two-weeks-old baby on the steps of a family on High Street Tuesday night, with a note pinned to its clothing, asking that it be adopted, a sixteen-year-old girl, showing every evidence of refinement, called at the house and asked to see the baby.

Clasping it to her breast, she declared it was her child, and that it had been taken from her, without her knowledge by her uncle and aunt. The girl claimed to live in Richmond and said her mother was dead and that she was not living with her father. About 18 months ago, she said, she married, and a few days later her husband enlisted and was sent to Camp Zachary Taylor. Shortly afterward he contracted influenza, and died. May 31 of this year her baby was born.

As she was compelled to work to make a living, she found it impossible to do so, and at the same time care for her child, and decided to let someone adopt it. When the time came for parting with her baby she found she could not do so and decided to keep it. Away from home for a short period, she found upon her return that her baby was gone, and reading in the daily papers of one being left in Paris she felt that it was her child.

The women of Paris have decided to raise a fund to enable the young mother to employ someone to look after her child while she is employed.

Big Harvest Promised.

Washington, June 21.—The Department of Agriculture finds that Ohio has the best wheat prospect among all the states of the Union. The department rates the condition of Ohio wheat crop on June 1 at 106.

The department forecasts an Ohio wheat crop of 56,331,000 bushels this year, as against 59,265,000 bushels last year.

The wheat crops of states in the same region as Ohio are rated as follows: Indiana, 98 per cent; Illinois, 76 per cent; Michigan, 91 per cent; Kentucky, 85 per cent.

WILSON ENDORSES SALVATION ARMY.

President Wilson, burdened as he is, found time to cable his endorsement of the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign, for Kentucky outside of Louisville and Jefferson county, which will be conducted during the week of June 23-30. The telegram:

Commander Miss E. Booth, Personal, Salvation Army, 120 West Fourteenth street, New York:

I am very much interested to know that the Salvation Army is about to enter into a campaign for a sustaining fund. I feel that the Salvation Army needs no commendation from me. The love and gratitude it has elicited from the troops is a sufficient evidence of the work it has done, and I feel that I should not so much commend as to congratulate it. Cordially and sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON.

"OUT OF LOVE" CLUB UNIQUE ORGANIZATION

Members Are Girls Rescued by Salvation Army

The "Out of Love" Club is one of the important club organizations maintained by the Salvation Army in this country. In every large city where there is a Salvation Army corps girls who have been helped back into the normal pace of a workaday world are proud of the membership in this club. Disappointed, loveless girls who do not forget kindnesses shown them in their hour of greatest need give out of love to help other girls receive the same friendliness. In a simple, quiet way, this unique idea has been maintained for over 20 years.

In every large city in the country there are girls who have needed the ministrations of the Salvation Army. After they have been helped and sent on their way again they become life members of this club if they so desire. Only girls are admitted who have given a good account of themselves for at least one month in the positions found for them by the Salvation Army after their release from a hospital or home. These girls pledge themselves to keep alive the spirit of friendliness and home which the Salvation Army has spread among them. The girls are expected to dress in a plain, simple way, and avoid in any sense of the word gaudy or tawdry clothing. Tossing up or ruffling is tabooed. If members of the club transgress this rule they are liable to suspension for a month or longer. The "Out of Love Club" is one of the many activities that will benefit by the success of the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign for Kentucky June 23-30.

She Followed the Line We Sent Over the Rhine

The familiar figure in blue uniform and poke bonnet is back home to serve, after four years in khaki with the boys "Over There." Salvation Army lassies served old fashioned American doughnuts in the front line trenches, and now that the war is over they will be found again in the slums and dark places of our great cities, ready to give a helping hand to men, women and children who are on the down grade. The Salvation Army Home Service Campaign for Kentucky, outside of Louisville and Jefferson county, opens June 23, to last one week.

MISS BOOTH, IN RAGS, AIDED LONDON POOR

Salvation Army Commander, Disguised, Roamed Through Slums to Study Intimate Problems of East End Unfortunates

Miss Evangeline Booth, daughter of the late General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, has given her life to the service of the poor and the unfortunate. Few persons, if any, know she went about in the East End of London disguised in rags that she might help the unfortunate. When her father stood erect amid a storm of abuse and even physical violence she stood beside him.

She knows how the poor suffer because she has suffered with them. She knows there still remains in the wreck of a dissolute man a spark of manhood that will kindle a redeeming flame, because she has fanned many flickering sparks until her patient has regained his feet. She now heads the Salvation Army in the United States at the great moment of its career. The old-time stir and doubts have been banished. During the week of June 23-30 the Salvation Army will appeal to the people of Kentucky for funds to carry out its after-war program. Contribute to the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign. Remember, to the Salvation Army "A Man May Be Down, but He's Never Out."

SHOT BY SENTINEL.

Thos. Garrison Killed While On Outpost Duty in No Man's Land.

Charles Richards, who entered the service as a select from Walton precinct, was discharged at Camp Taylor last Monday. Young Richards belonged to the 51st Infantry and was a member of the company to which Thos. J. Garrison belonged, and he gives the following account of young Garrison's death: Thos. Garrison and several others were on outpost duty in No Man's Land, a hundred yards or so from the German trenches. During their absence the sentinel back at the barb wire entanglements was changed and the new guard was not aware of the squads return from No Man's Land. The night was dark and when it reached the barb wire entanglements a flare went up and the sentinel discovered the bunch, and, mistaking them for Germans, fired at them, wounding Thos. Garrison so severely that he survived only a few hours altho everything possible was done to save him. Richards says that the sentinel who did the shooting was not to blame as he thought he was firing into a squad of the enemy.

Card of Thanks.

The ladies of the Union Presbyterian church are delighted with the success of their ice cream and strawberry festival last Saturday night at which they took in $100. They request the Recorder to tender their thanks to each and everyone who in any way contributed to the success of the festival, and they feel especially to those out of the neighborhood who made contributions for the occasion. The Union ladies never do anything by halves.

A. T. Mulberry, an oversea man of Devon neighborhood, was a caller at this office last Monday. Mr. Mulberry did not get across in time to take part in any of the fighting. He enlisted with the Recorder army for a year.

John L. Jones, of Landing, purchased a five passenger Maxwell motor car of the Kirkpatrick last Saturday. Mr. Jones pulled a surprise on his wife by the purchase.

A good hat that was picked up out on the Florence pike last Monday afternoon was left at this office for identification by the gentleman to whom it belongs.

President Wilson expects to return from overseas and be in Washington by the first of July.

The fourth of July is to be celebrated in a safe and sane manner again this year.

Tim Sandford spent last Saturday in Lawrenceburg with his daughter.

Mont Slayback will run Dudley Blyth's truck for him.

Wheat has ripened very fast the last few days.

FEEDING THE COLT.

No matter what the breeding of the colt is, if we wish to develop it to the full extent of its inheritance we must feed it well during the first year. As soon as the foal will take grain, it should be fed in a separate box from the mare, a grain mixture of equal parts of whole shelled corn, barley and oats. The colt will enjoy the mixture of whole grain better than it will one of ground grains, and they are much more available on the average farm. He seems to enjoy munching on whole grains. If barley is not available, the following grain mixture may be used: Two parts shelled corn, two parts whole oats, and two parts bran. If linseed meal can be obtained it would be well to introduce it to the above mixture one part of the linseed meal for five parts of the grain mixture as cottonseed meal may be used, altho the linseed meal is better. If the cottonseed meal is used make the proportions as follows: One part cottonseed meal to 3 parts of either of the grain mixtures given above.

Keep bright clean soy bean cowpea or clover hay before the colt. See that they are fresh each day. Remove hay from his manger that has already been worked over and give to other horses on the farm. A little good grass hay once each day will add variety to the roughage ration of the young colt. However, the legume hays should be given once each day for it is from them that the colt will obtain lime and phosphorus for bone building. The ash of the bone consists of 80 per cent of lime and phosphorus. Legume hays are rich in these bone-making materials.

Do not allow the foal to follow the mare when she is put to work. The mare should be given a rest of four weeks after foaling and then gradually introduced gradually until she and the colt become accustomed to the change. A very good plan is to make a good small hay for the colt and take him to the field with the mare and then tie him somewhere in the shade while the mare is working, then bring the mare to the colt in the middle of each half day to nurse. It is criminal to allow the colt the range of the field while the mare is working, for the colt will follow the mare from one end of the field to the other until he is nearly tired out. Besides it is the poorest way to manage a colt that there is; for a colt cannot make good gains under such treatment. Again, there is no more pathetic sight than to see a colt that is required to follow his dam for long distances over dusty roads to market and then home. It is poor colt raising to do so. It would be better to borrow a horse to make up a team to go to town than to drag the colt over the roads until he is tired out.

Pasture is an important item in the rearing of any colt. Nothing can excel good blue grass pasture, and there should be enough of it reserved for the colt and his mother. If blue grass cannot be provided, a pasture of soybeans can be provided for August and September pasture with other pastures for the fall.

Keep up the grain feed for the colt throughout the first year. It is necessary for the full development of the colt.—C. A. Wilson, in Southern Agriculturist.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Howard Kelly Badly Hurt By a Fractious Colt He Was Assisting to Break.

Howard Kelly, who resides about two miles out on the Florence pike, was badly hurt last Monday between sunset and dark. Marjorie and Walter Hall, his neighbors, were breaking a colt to work, and it had acted ugly and got down on its hind legs. Kelly went to assist them with the colt, which in its struggling struck him on the back of the head and above the ear with one of its feet, the corks of the wheel coming in contact with Mr. Kelly's skull. The blow rendered him unconscious for many hours and for some time serious and as results were anticipated, but Tuesday morning he had regained consciousness and his condition generally was favorable. His speedy recovery is hoped for by his family as he is a worthy gentleman and a valuable citizen.

DEVONIAN The Story of a Well Man

Health—Little appreciated when we have it. Most desired of all earthly possessions when we have it not. Yet, for most of us, keeping well is a simple matter, and getting well again when we are sick, is often wholly within our power.

Doctors tell us that about nine out of ten of human ailments are the result of constipation. Thousands of persons are constipated without realizing how much harm and even danger may result. An appalling list of diseases have their start in this neglect of ourselves. High blood pressure, nervous breakdown, apoplexy, arterio sclerosis, rheumatism—these are but a few of the many that result chiefly from constipation.

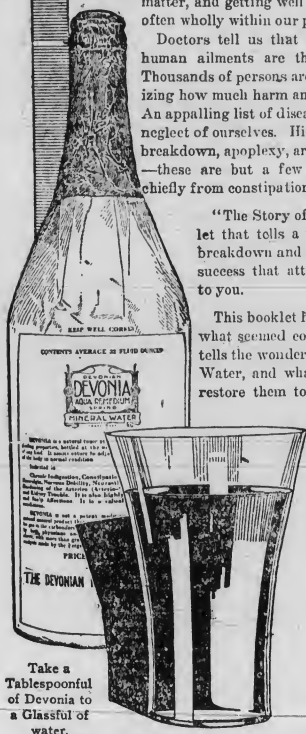

"The Story of a Well Man" is a helpful, entertaining booklet that tells a true story of a man suffering from nervous breakdown and high blood pressure in search of health. The success that attended his efforts has a personal application to you.

This booklet has been the means of helping thousands from what seemed confirmed invalidism to robust health. It also tells the wonderful story of Devonia, the American Medicinal Water, and what it has done for those who needed help to restore them to sound health.

In some way Devonia seems to get right at the root of physical troubles, and banishes their cause, thus restoring the bodily functions to normal activity and vigor. Devonia is prescribed and recommended by our most highly esteemed physicians.

If you are suffering from some ailment for which you have not been able to secure desired relief, try Devonia—a table-spoonful in a glass of water. We believe you will find the results most beneficial. Anyway, learn more about it by sending for "The Story of a Well Man." A copy will be sent you free.

Devonia is on sale at all drug stores.

Out in the State.

In Warren county pastures are extra good. Corn crop late and full of weeds. Acreage of tobacco large. Wheat injured some by rust.

Crops in Breckinridge county look fine, with tobacco crop about 25 per cent short. Wheat crop fine and the county expects to harvest the largest crop in its history. Clover and grass are in a good condition.

Montgomery county planted a comparatively small crop of corn but it is looking fine. A fine crop of wheat is being cut.

Wind and hail damaged crops in Woodford county, especially the wheat, oats and barley, and in some sections it is feared the wheat will be a complete loss.

Nicholas county is harvesting a fair crop of wheat. Oats are also very promising. Cut worms cut the young corn badly.

Wheat suffered some from wind and rain in Davies county, although the county expects to harvest the largest crop in its history. Clover and grass are in a good condition.

Bourbon county has a good crop of corn. A fine crop of wheat will be harvested. In the part of the county that has sufficient rains the potato crop is good. About all the tobacco crop was set the second week in this month.

In Clark county the wheat will make a better yield than last year although much of it was blown down. A bumper crop of corn is expected. Cut worms did considerable injury to the tobacco but plants were plentiful and the crop was reset and the damage by the worms will be overcome.

Fayette county corn fields are clean and the crop looks fine. The county is harvesting a fine crop of wheat. Oats suffered from hot, dry weather. As a whole crop prospects are mighty good in Fayette county.

Topping Tobacco.

As the objective point in the life of a plant is the production of seed for the perpetuation of the species, when these seed heads form and develop the nourishment is gradually transferred from the leaves and used for the formation and production of seed. In the tobacco plant, which is valued for its leaf, it is necessary to remove the top before any of the nutritive substance is wasted in the development of the seeds. When the bud is removed the plant throws out suckers at the junction of the leaves, and these must be removed before they take up any of the nutriment that should go towards the development of the leaves.

The height at which the plants are topped depends upon several conditions, that of the season, the quality of the soil and the time of the topping. On good, strong land, and in a favorable season, the top is at 18 to 20 leaves, which gives us a good quality and the top leaves are of good size and color.

How many of those forty-seven Senators who voted to violate the honor of this Nation by premature publication of the peace treaty have read the document now that they have spread it before themselves in the Congressional Record? Brave, able and patriotic representatives of the Nation which won the Great War spent five months in drafting the treaty; is there a single one of the Senators talking scolding and scolding about it day in and day out who has spent twenty-four hours reading and studying it?—Courier-Journal.

Cultivation and Soil Moisture.

A recent letter from a farmer says that a certain kind of cultivation is good cultivation because "it draws up the moisture from below." The same, or a similar idea, is often expressed.

Cultivation does not draw up the moisture. Cultivation is to stop the moisture from rising—to check it before it gets out of the ground and hold it where the plants can use it. That is why we make a dust mulch over the surface of our fields, and why the ground keeps moist beneath that mulch. The moisture would come up from below just as fast, or faster, if the mulch were not there, but—and this is the point—it would keep on going and pass off into the air by evaporation.

The moisture rises thru minute tubes in the soil known as capillaries. This capillary action is what causes the top of a lump of sugar to get wet when the bottom of it is dipped into a liquid. The finer the capillaries, the higher the moisture will rise in them. Capillarity is all the time tending to draw water from the soil in the ground to the top of the ground. Whenever the top of the ground is drier than that a little lower it is very active. As the moisture comes to the surface it is evaporated—pumped up into the air—by the sun and carried away. The drier the air, as compared with the soil, the higher the rate of evaporation. That is why a strong wind, as well as hot sunshines, dries out the ground so rapidly.

The capillaries in a hard, unbroken soil are very numerous and very small. Hence the rapid evaporation from such land, and its dry appearance all the way down.

When the top of the soil is made fine and loose—worked into a dust mulch—the capillaries of this mulch are very large, comparatively speaking, and the water does not rise in them so rapidly. The connection between the soil below and the air above is broken, so to speak. The water rises up to the blanket of loose earth and stops there, and the plants can use it.

If you wish to save moisture, fine the top of your ground. Make it just as fine and loose as possible, and leave it just as level. Ridges and clods in a field waste moisture because they present so much surface to the air.

Also, if you wish to save moisture, get rid of the weeds. Every plant is a veritable pump, drawing water into itself through its roots and going it out through its leaves. The water that is pumped through your growing corn and beans is utilized by them and helps to make the crop you are looking for. The water that is pumped up by weeds is wasted as fast as you are concerned, and your crops are robbed to the extent of the water that is wasted.

The two essentials of good cultivation, generally speaking, are to keep the weeds down, and to keep the top of the soil fine and loose. The former, especially, after the cultivated plants get the soil well filled with roots, is the more important thing to do. Every weed in the cornfield is a pump and is busily pumping possible ears of corn out into the air and scattering them to the winds. Kill the weeds.

A great many farmers who have large crops of wheat are depending on a neighbor to cut it with his binder. Heard an owner of a binder say one day the past week that if he cut all the wheat which he had been solicited to cut he could not get thru with the work before Christmas.

METHOD FOR TAGGING TREES

Linen Cloth, Coated With Paraffin, Has Advantages—Mud Easily Removed by Washing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

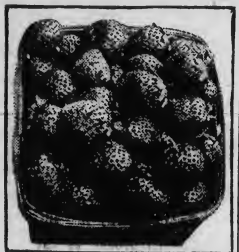

Linen cloth is now being used in some of the experimental work of the United States department of agriculture in tagging trees and has been found to be very successful. Writing on wooden tags, which were formerly used, soon becomes illegible, while copper tags are not only expensive but are not large enough for sufficient data. The linen tags are first soaked several days in water to remove the sizings and then dried and smoothed with a hot flat iron. Data is written with India ink, using a round-pointed pen. The ink soaks in but does not run. Such tags will last a year or longer. When they are to be used for longer periods or under conditions where the tags come in contact with the ground, they are coated with paraffin after labeling. One method is to dip them in a mixture of gasoline and paraffin (proportion one quart of gasoline to one-half pound paraffin). The gasoline evaporates, leaving a film of paraffin. If the tags become coated with mud they can easily be washed and the ink shows up clearly. Such tags may be used in a variety of ways, for when treated in this manner they last exceptionally well.

CLEAN UP STRAWBERRY BED

Plow Out Old Plants and Leave Vigorous Ones to Produce Fruit for Next Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Clean up the old strawberry bed for another year's fruiting, unless a new bed was planted last spring. If the rows have become wide and matted, run a cultivator with large-pointed shovel through the center of the rows to tear out the old plants, but leave the young plants at the edges of the row to make the new rows. If the matted rows are only moderately wide, run the cultivator or plow along one side, cutting down the row from one side only and leaving the young plants on the other side. Either pull out or hoe out the weak and surplus plants, leaving strong plants from 6 to 12 inches apart in the new rows. New plants will be produced by these to make new rows for next year's fruiting. Give the new bed thorough cultivation.

CORN COBS USED FOR MULCH

Spread Through Berry Patch in Late Fall or Winter; They Discourage Weed Growth.

In case there is a surplus of cobs following sheeling time—more than can be sold or used for fuel—some of them may be used to advantage as a mulch in the raspberry or blackberry patch. Spread through the patch in late fall or winter they will discourage effectively weed growth between the rows the following season. They produce clean, though somewhat uneven, underfooting and retard soil evaporation. One fruit grower adds a thin layer of fresh cobs each season. The ones on the bottom are constantly rotting. A certain fertilizing content is thus added to the soil for the use of the berry plants.

PICK OFF ROTTEN "MUMMIES"

Diseased Causes Peaches to Shrive Up and Hang Onto Tree Throughout Whole Year.

Even though the peach trees may have been sprayed, there may be some rotten "mummies" hanging on. This disease causes the peach to shrivel up and hang on to the trees throughout the year. The disease is scattered by these fruits, and they should be picked off and either burned or buried deeply. A little work along this line will result in the saving of a good many peaches of next year's crop.

SATISFY!

—what the deuce does that mean?

It means that NEW thing in a cigarette, that does for your smoke-hunger exactly what a drink of cold water does for your thirst!

To satisfy, a cigarette must do more than please the taste—it must "touch the smoke-spot."

That's what Chesterfields do. They let you know you are smoking—they SATISFY.

And here's why—Chesterfields have body. The finer, silkier leaves of TURKISH have been properly blended with several varieties of the best DOMESTIC tobaccos, famous for their full-bodied flavor.

SATISFY is something that no cigarette, except Chesterfields, can give you—regardless of price. Because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend.

A PARADOX OF FLYING.

A Fantastic Feature of the Transatlantic Adventure. New York Herald.

Captain Jack Alcock, speaking of the experiences of himself and his navigator, Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, in their nonstop flight from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Galway, told how the crew of the biplane were surprised to find that part of the time they had been going along upside down at a clip of 120 miles an hour.

This detail of new travel is almost as fantastic as the story of adventure, involving, anthropologists and men whose heads grow beneath their shoulders, that caught the fancy of one of Shakespeare's most interesting heroines.

It is an upside-down world that the airman works in. While he is aloft the aviator is in a little universe of his own, in which the law of gravitation, while not eliminated, is at least suspended, more or less.

The flyer through his machines may be pointing one wing straight at the ground, or while its tail or nose may be in that direction, or while he is looping the loop, always has the sensation of being on a level keel, as seafaring men would say. If he is able to see the ground spread below like a drawing by Mr. Nevins, he gets the impression that the good old solid earth is performing all sorts of tricks and altering its position toward him, now swinging to port or starboard and now actually getting above his head and looking down upon him in a perfectly ridiculous way.

Captain Alcock and his companion before hopping on land again must have sighted the Arran Islands in the way, where the inhabitants use the old coracle, a wicker boat covered with skin and dating from the dawn of history. Thus the machine up above and the cradle craft below the water illustrated the beginning and the last word of man's struggle with the elements.

Rains have not visited the farmers along the river this season and they are complaining of the neglect in that particular.

Bumper Wheat Crop.

Wheat harvest will begin next week and a few crops may be harvested in this county this week. Unless something happens to the crop between now and the harvest this county will probably harvest the biggest crop in her history. Not only is the acreage large but the yield per acre promises to be unusually heavy. Wheat has fallen pretty badly in some places. In a section of territory extending from Dry Ridge northward to below Sherman, and several miles in width, heavy local storms during the last week carried the grain to the ground, there being some fields in which it will be almost impossible to run a binder. Considering its thickness and its height it has stood up pretty well all over the county, however.—Grant Co. News.

WORK SPEEDSTERS.

A company of American engineers threw a bridge across the Rhine in 41 minutes. It was 1,500 feet in length and staunch enough for the passage of a fleet of motor trucks. This was in less than one-quarter of the time that the Germans were ever able to accomplish the same task. The more airholes they let in Russian efficiency the more films it becomes in order to make a complete clean-up the enterprising Americans made all sorts of wages on themselves and their time and gathered in about thirty thousand dollars in real money.

There are a great many good lands being sold in the market from this county this year. They are very high for this time of the season.

Crop Conditions in Scott.

Notwithstanding the heavy wind, hail, and rainstorms of the past week, about three-fourths of the tobacco crop in Scott county is set and corn planting is practically finished. The heavy storms damaged young corn and tobacco that had just been set out, and in some cases damaged the wheat.

The dry weather has not been very beneficial to recently transplanted tobacco, and a good, steady rain is needed. Corn is doing fairly well, and a good crop is expected. Cut worms, did not get started before the hot weather and have done little damage in Scott. About half of the crop of bluegrass is stripped. It is thought, and wheat harvesting will begin before the end of the week. The labor situation is not hardly so bad as it was this time last year, but farm hands are demanding high wages.—Georgetown Times.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Phillips, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days... I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go... I suffered with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle... I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. 2178

IMMIGRATION COURSE CHANGING GRADUALLY

It may be that the time of immigration from the United States to the great agricultural sections of British North America will be checked, if not entirely stopped, through the realization of those who would cultivate farms in regions where the summers are brief and the winters long and very bleak that in our own far northwest virgin soil in abundance can be found, and only awaits development and possibly better transportation. For already reports are reaching New York that a movement is under way in the far northwest which promises to greatly and rapidly increase as to justify the use of the term formerly familiar in the agricultural sections as a "land boom." Certainly such a movement under such conditions is a movement under which the citizens have taken heed of it and are rejoyed, but little notice of it has occurred elsewhere. More and more eagerly those who are seeking new lands are penetrating South Dakota in the hope of securing some.

Demand has begun, and that has been followed by the inevitable increase in price. Nevertheless, the price has not been so high that those who are anxious to buy land, and all the indications point to a considerable, perhaps very great, enlargement of the agricultural industry in that state which is of great area and also rich in natural resources. Two or three years ago had it been reported that land in Central South Dakota had been sold for $100 an acre or even more that fact would have been spoken of as reflecting a brief and incident under speculation. Now reports which have come from that state tell of sales of land in Central South Dakota for as much as $200 an acre, and in some cases even more. Much of this land is virgin soil, although some of it has been improved. The movement points to a large development of the land market, probably consequent upon readjustments which are now everywhere in the United States, particularly in the South, in progress.

Utters Thanks for War's End.

Paris, June 28.—While the whistles were blowing and the cheering ringing here this morning, announcing the signing of the Peace Treaty and the end of the war, Mrs. Melinda McKinley, an aged negro woman, dropped to her knees in front of the First National Bank, in the center of Main street, and for 15 minutes indulged in prayer. She was dressed in the old-fashioned Methodist kind. She imparted to the Lord the fact that her boy was in Germany with the U. S. soldiers, and she begged Him for ending the war so that he could come home again to his old mammy. Although street traffic was blocked in each direction, the police refrained from interfering with her, and she finished her prayer. Hundreds of persons in the crowd stood with bowed heads, and tears were in many eyes as the old woman completed her prayer of thanks.

Iceless Coolers for Porkers

Put the hogs in the "cooler" during the hot days—not as punishment but to keep the heat from reducing daily gains in pork. Home demonstration agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State colleges have been demonstrating the iceless refrigerator, and these handy coolers are becoming very popular. The swine extension man in Mississippi, who is working in co-operation with the Federal department, is planning to put into practice the same principle used in the iceless refrigerator to keep hogs cool in summer. The iceless refrigerator is made by inclosing a frame in canvas, flannel, burlap, or duck. A pan of water is placed on top and wicks extended from the water over the sides of the pan and down the sides of the frame. The evaporation of the moisture in the wicks keeps the refrigerator cool. In applying this principle in the hog of a frame will be built to provide shade for the hogs and large burlap wicks will extend down the sides from containers which are placed on top and are filled with water. It is expected that the evaporation of the water will keep the hogs cool and thus enable them to make more economical gains during the summer months.

For many years in the past Boone county has not had enough wheat enough to bread her population but this year she will go away over the top in that particular, the finest crop in the county and the largest as to area in many years now being harvested. The yield is estimated at from 15 to 25 bushels per acre and the threshing machines expect to begin operations next week.

There are some very nice pieces of tobacco but in many fields the plants are of uneven growth and set out at the same time. The acreage intended has not been ploughed, but enough was planted to give the county at least an average crop this year, and the growers are expecting as good or better price than that received for their 1918 crop.

Good Time to Build Good Roads

Any time is a good time to make good roads where good roads are lacking. The improvement of highways is one of the most profitable business a community or a state can engage in, and it is a very unusual time indeed when such business is not in order.

This present time, however, is an unusually good time for road building. Rather let us say that right now there is more than the usual number of reasons for every state and every county setting earnestly to work to improve its roads.

For one thing, the war taught us the value, the necessity of good public roads in times of peace. The railroad is not sufficient to meet the country's transportation needs. They have not been developed as rapidly as the country's business has developed, and just now, while business and transportation demands promise a rapid development at a rapid rate, the roads are not sufficient to meet the country's transportation needs. They have not been developed as rapidly as the country's business has developed, and just now, while business and transportation demands promise a rapid development at a rapid rate, the roads are not sufficient to meet the country's transportation needs.

The increasing number of farm automobiles is another reason for the improvement of good roads. It has been cheaper all along for the man who drives a wagon or a buggy over the roads to pay his part of the necessary cost of making these roads good than to put up with bad roads and take the loss of time and the wear and tear on teams and vehicles that bad roads impose. Because the course of a few years motor trucks will be almost as common as passenger cars are now. Roads made for these trucks to run on.

Because the course of a few years motor trucks will be almost as common as passenger cars are now. Roads made for these trucks to run on.

Neither do bad roads and any kind of the things that make country life more difficult. Better schools, better churches, a finer community and social life, a broader interest in public affairs, a wider interest in the welfare of the community and the people in it. This is a time of radical change in country life. Country life is being transformed, and the direction of change is toward the better. To take a more important part in the management of world affairs. He is getting ready to secure a larger share of the world's production of goods and better means of transportation, easier communication with his fellow men, will make it easier for him to do all these things.

Lastly, this is a good time to build roads because it is a time of industrial uncertainty. Personally, I do not believe in the view of the hard-times prophets who tell us that the war is bound to be followed by a period of business stagnation and unemployment. I am expecting, instead, to see the business world kept so briskly busy as to make the lowering of prices and wages a very slow process. We have for the first time realized something of the tremendous strength of the nation in its possession of the wonderful things it can do when it sets itself wholeheartedly to any task. I cannot think that it will be so foolish as not to get ourselves to the tasks of peace in the same manner that we set ourselves to the tasks of war. The miracles of destruction wrought in Europe should be a belief, will be matched by miracles of constructive effort, of development, of improvement. We know now that it is in the power of men to make this world almost any sort of place they wish it to be, and it will be surprising indeed if they do not set themselves to the changing of a hundred undesirable conditions too long endured. Of course these changes will not be made in a day, but they will be made, and the effort and call for even larger expenditures of money and labor.

Reckless Autoists Should be Punished

The reckless driver has been getting in his way of smashing automobiles and crippling people over on the Dixie Highway between Erlanger and Covington the past week. It is time that drastic measures be taken to protect people and their property against the automobile driver who disregards the traffic laws, and especially on thoroughfares where there is not a minute's pause that he is not liable to cause a serious accident. The existing laws are enforced they are sufficient to protect persons and property against the hazard that is repeatedly encountered when traveling the Dixie Highway which is developing into a speed way, where no conveyance is safe. The farm accidents are increasing. The farmer who is afraid to go upon that road with his team and conveyance fearing he will be run down by some reckless driver of a motor car. A few healthy fines will help matters very materially.

Compulsory School Law

The following is a digest of the compulsory school law:

Every parent, guardian, or other person residing within the boundary of a county school district, and having the custody, control, or supervision of any child or children between the ages of 7 and 14 years inclusive, shall see that such child or children be sent to school for the entire term of school. This means regular attendance not a day or two in the week, but regularly. The only excuse for a child not from school is a written statement signed by the family physician that said child is ill and cannot attend school.

Should any child not have books or clothes, the same should be reported to the county nurse, and clothes will be provided. School books, if needed, the same should be reported to the county Superintendent and they will be provided free.

Failure to attend to school has a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars for each offense. This law requires that each week a statement shall be sent to the County Superintendent, concerning the children out of school.

Off on a Cruise

Edwin R. Duncan, son of Dr. E. W. Duncan, is off on a long cruise, having started on the 9th inst., and will not return before the 24th of August. He is on his way to Cuba, and then to Panama and visit quite a number of points on the isthmus. It is just such a trip Edwin will enjoy and one that will be worth a great deal to him as nothing of interest will escape him, and he will be able to make an interesting narrative of his experiences while on the voyage. The doctor's other son, Wm., is somewhere on the high seas. He knows not where as he has not heard from him for several months.

Toll of Snakes in India

The American consul, M. M. Haywood, stationed at Calcutta, India, states in a government report that more than 25,000 persons lost their lives in the country last year because of snakes and wild animals—the snakes claiming by far the larger number of victims. To be exact, the consul says that 23,000 persons died in India last year as a result of snake bite, and that 2,174 persons were killed by wild animals. This is an increase of 300 over the previous year's totals, and an increase of 100 as regards the number killed by animals.

Making Poor Land Pay for Itself

My wife and I were both born and reared up on Cumberland Mountain in Kenton county. We married in 1895. I hunted furs at night to get money to pay for my license. I had to marry on credit; could not pay the justice for marrying me until I made a corn crop. Then paid him a bushel of corn. I then leased a home on my father's farm and built a log house and barn. I stayed there 19 years and then decided I was not doing any good. I then sold my little property in January, 1906, and went to the southern part of Missouri; made one crop there and then, on account of my wife's health, came back to Tennessee. When I was then broken up again, so I went and got a job digging coal. Stayed there two years and saved up a little to pay on my farm and from five to eight years ago I bought a little home and paid $1,200 for it; $400 down and two years' time on the balance. Then in 1911 I came to Kenton county and bought a little home. Paid $1,200 for it; $400 down and two years' time on the balance. Then in 1911 I came to Kenton county and bought a little home. Place Ice Cars With Hogs

I desire to call your attention to the suggestion from Mr. O. E. Livingston of Madisonville, Kentucky, to place ice cars with the hogs to reduce shrinkage on hogs when shipping during hot weather. He stated: "Three times during the summer term of this summer, my car load lots I have reduced the shrinkage at least fifty per cent by the simple expedient of placing ice cars with the hogs, three 100 pound cases of ice, upon the floor of the car at equal intervals. This ice costs 50c per 100 pounds and $10 or $50 per car can be saved by its use in preventing shrinkage in the weight of hogs."

Automobiles in Collision

A large automobile driven by Harry Doppes, of Price Hill, collided with the auto of Christopher Beck, who resides on the Geo. E. Rouse farm east of the Florence pike. The accident occurred on the Dixie Highway at Ft. Mitchell. Alonso Doppes and Mrs. Clem Kempall were passengers in the Beck machine. Both machines were badly wrecked but none of the passengers were killed, which is surprising as the two machines came together with great force. The Doppes machine was traveling at a rate of speed while the Beck machine was proceeding south. Doppes was having for reckless driving. He was arrested, so answer the charge of reckless driving Doppes has been made defendant in three law suits as the result of the collision. Alonso Doppes is seeking to recover $2,000 damages while his wife answers for $2,500, and Christopher Beck for $2,500 or damages to his machine. The suits were filed in the Kenton circuit court.

Boone County to be Asked to Assist

A delegation of citizens from the northwestern part of the county appeared before the fiscal court Monday and asked the court to appropriate money for bridge to span Bullock Pen creek at the crossing of the Crittenden-Vernon pike. The creek is the boundary line between Boone and Grant counties. The proposed bridge would be a considerable benefit to the people of that part of Grant county, as well as to Boone county adjacent thereto. Grant County News.

MET IN INTEREST OF NEW HIGHWAY

Warsaw Independent.

The meeting held at Carrollton Monday in the interest of the proposed new highway between Cincinnati and Louisville, which will come directly thru Warsaw and connect with the Dixie Highway at Richwood, was well attended and plenty of enthusiasm for the new highway was in evidence. Every county that will be traversed by the new road was represented and Gallatin county had five or six representative citizens on hand at the meeting. One particular feature of the meeting Monday was that which concerns the Fiscal Court of each county along the proposed route relative to each participation. At the meeting it was agreed that the county judge of each county through which the highway will pass was to call the fiscal court of each county together in special session and work out plans for the right of way, financial support and so on.

Rush Made for Whisky.

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—John Barleycorn went out in bottles, jugs and barrels today, traveling north and south on the dry lands radiating from Lexington. He went by train, by motor and by mule teams. He went into the stomachs and pockets of the country who by thousands flocked to Lexington from early morning, constituting probably the largest number of visitors the city has known in a single day.

It was the day of biggest trade known to liquor dealers. They have bare shelves tonight, but the whisky is still in the morning, and Monday's bank clearings will be a record-breaker for June 30th.

John Johnson, who has the reputation of being a hard-boiled bottle dealer than any other man today, discarded his cash register early and substituted a basket for bills and his bank for coins. Both were filled and emptied into a barrel before the night passed.

Frank Hudson and Louis Kay, two of the large liquor dealers, sold out their stocks completely. The firm of Minihan & King sold out yesterday. An airplane alighted near the city this morning and took its departure this afternoon. After it had gone a taxicab driver claimed that he had delivered the machine to five cases of whisky. A man from the mountains said he had paid $40 for a dozen bottles of 8-year-old whisky at Colby Lancaster's. "Well, good-by boys, expect the next time I see you fellows you'll be up our way trying to buy some of our liquor, and you'll have to pay more for it than I'm paying for this red liquor."

Death Toll of Carelessness

Ohio State Journal.

During the 19 months of the war 56,000 American soldiers were killed in France, and during the same time 225,000 people were killed by accidents in the United States. These startling figures given out by the National Safety Council, reveal the waste of human life through carelessness. It is the greater number of these fatalities the accident was easily preventable, the life could have been saved had some of the carelessness been avoided. Figures compiled by the same source show that 16 out of every 100 children under 15 years of age are killed annually.

Still greater importance could be given these statements if they included the number of accidents from which the injured recover, showing that the loss of earning power, the impairment of the injured individual for life and the consequent economic loss and waste. The National Safety Council seeks to educate people in the walks of life in the exercise of more caution, more common sense, with regard to the safety of themselves and others. It is for Boone and Kenton counties, which have been highly developed in many of the industrial plants of Ohio. It is, in a large way, a movement toward the conservation of human life, therefore is of the utmost importance. Industrial warfare ought not exceed a world war in its toll.

Schanker Selling Chandeliers

S. O. Schanker, who has been associated with his father's business at Erlanger for the past seven years, has taken the agency for the Chandler automobile for Boone and Kenton counties. Mr. Schanker has looked over the field very carefully and he believes the Chandler is a car that will prove very popular in his territory.

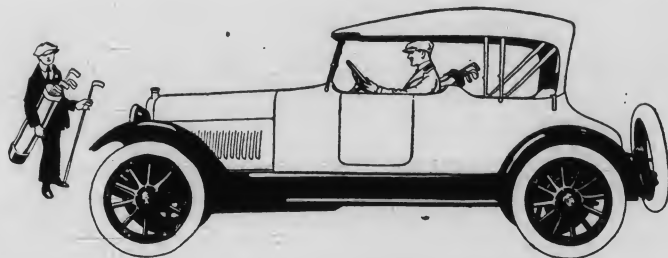

Buying Dairy Cows

C. L. Craven, of Erlanger, canvassed this neighborhood, one day last week in search of good cows to purchase for his dairy. He wanted ten and expects to want that many more about the first of September as he is increasing the size of his herd. He made it compare with any in his locality.

The Consolidated Telephone Co. will extend its line from Bellevue up the river to Boone Rogers' and expects to build a line from Burlington to Rabbit Hash at an early date as quite a number of subscribers in that neighborhood have been obtained and are anxious to have the Consolidated service.

Announcing The New CHANDLER SIX

We wish to announce that we have taken the agency for the famous CHANDLER Automobiles for Boone and Kenton Counties. After investigating the merits of the medium-priced light six cars The Chandler was shown to give more for the money than any other car selling at the same price or within 300 to $500 more.

That is Why We are Going to Sell The Chandler.

The mistake most people make is in thinking that a cheap car is the cheapest to run whereas they usually cost more for upkeep not alone counting the inconvenience caused by being in the repair shop most of the time. THE CHANDLER WILL FREE YOU FROM THESE TROUBLES.

The Chandler Six is economical in cost of operation, the motor is powerful and instantly responsive, and 14 to 16 miles per gallon of gasoline is the common report from owners. Six thousand to eight thousand miles per set of tires is the usual tire service rendered Chandler owners. And with these reasonable economies the Chandler owner has a REAL CAR—a car of extraordinary performance under all road conditions, a car distinguished for ease of riding and comfort, a dependable car of similar worth for less; and the Chandler is closely priced—you cannot buy any other car of similar worth for less, and for other cars which may be compared with the Chandler you are asked to pay much more . . . these are facts, provable facts; you can prove them yourself.

Mrs. J. M. Stamler, Mrs. D. B. Wallace and Bruce Wallace spent Monday in Cincinnati, motoring through.

Miss Mary Ransler left Tuesday for Stone, Pike county, on a visit to her sister Mrs. Clifford Rouse and husband.

Two shares of Equitable Bank stock sold at public sale here to D. B. Wallace last Saturday for $208 per share.

Walton Masonic lodge will have a meeting Friday night, July 12th, to arrange for work in the Fellow Craft degree.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Readnour of Cincinnati, spent last Sunday here with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Joa. Readnour.

Friday being the "Glorious Fourth" a general holiday will be observed in Walton by the banks and business houses.

Rev. Geo. W. Bain, of Lexington, entertained a large audience with a fine lecture at Walton Baptist church Monday night.

John A. Downard of Covington, and Miss Emily Hughes of Richmond, were visitors to Judge J. G. Tomlin and family Sunday.

Alan Gaines who has been in the service in France the past year, arrived home here Saturday, having received his discharge from the army.

Mrs. Julia A. Rouse and daughter Georgia left last Tuesday for Washington, D. C., where Mrs. Rouse has a nice position in one of the government departments.

C. Milton Richey, recently located in business at Bloomington, Indiana, spent the week here packing up his household goods for the purpose of moving to Bloomington.

Fred Miller spent the past week at Mishawaka and Bloomington, Indiana, and attended the annual picnic of the Ball Band salesmen at Edgewater Club, St. Joseph, Michigan.

H. H. Huston who has given such excellent service as station agent of the L. & N. Railroad Co. at Walton, has been promoted to the position of traveling auditor of the road in Kentucky territory.

Mrs. T. F. Culey, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. Lula Hudson, Mrs. Pearl Bedinger and Rev. W. H. Whittaker attended the Methodist Centenary at Columbus, Ohio, the past week, and enjoyed the wonders of the exhibits and work there.

Claude L. Carlton and Robert E. Garvey of Glenoe, were here Saturday, enroute home from Cincinnati, and in going toward Beaver Lick the machine they were driving collided with one in which Joseph Cleek was riding badly injuring both cars, but fortunately not hurting the occupants.

Elmer B. Stansifer, county clerk at Independence, was a visitor here Saturday, guest of his son B. F. Stansifer. Mr. Stansifer is one of the best county clerks in the State and besides is one of the most public spirited, liberal citizens, and his influence for the upbuilding of this section has been wonderfully productive of good results.

Thos. Huey and son Robert of Union, were here Saturday, and returning home their automobile was run into by an automobile driven by William Levell and Sherman Warner, two colored men, of Warsaw, damaging Mr. Huey's machine, amounting to about thirty-five dollars, which the colored men were required to make good by leaving their machine here until the bill was paid.

Walton Loose Leaf Watch Co., is arranging to have a large head-sale of tobacco to the manufacturers agents at a date some time next month as there is quite a stock of tobacco on hand at the warehouse. Several farmers who have good sized crops of tobacco on hand have arranged with the warehouse to handle and price their crops and have the tobacco put on the sale.

Jno. L. Vest spent last Thursday in Cincinnati relative to the position tendered him as secretary of a large manufacturing concern with a salary of $5,000, and after mature deliberation at the urgent solicitation of his friends in this quarter, he declined the place. Mr. Vest has a nice law practice on which he has given much hard work, and many of his clients would dislike very much to see him leave this field, and considering all of the features connected with the proposed change he concluded to yield to the wishes of his friends and remain at Walton.

Walton Odd-Fellows lodge elected officers for the ensuing term at the meeting last Saturday as follows: Noble Grand, J. M. Bollington; Vice Grand, Albert S. Pennington; Secretary, D. E. Wallace; Treasurer, W. T. Dudgeon; Host, Wm. C. Moxley; Warden, N. T. Welsh; Conductor, W. O. Richey; Right Supporter Noble Grand Henry C. Diercy; Left Supporter Noble Grand, C. Edwards; Inside Guardian, Arthur H. Smith; Outside Guardian, Jno. H. Friend; Sitting Past Grand, B. C. Moore.

Stanley D. Stephenson, who came to the Bedinger farm near Richwood in the spring with the hope of recuperating his failing health, died there Monday afternoon. He was born and reared in Powhatan county, Va., and after his marriage to Miss Hattie Bedinger they went to Brooklyn, New York, where he was quite successful in business until his health became impaired, tuberculosis of the bone developing. He was 64 years old, and a polished gentleman of most pleasing personality. He leaves besides his wife, two sisters, Mrs. George Hanson, of Richwood, and Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, of Richmond, Virginia. The funeral took place Wednesday from Richwood Presbyterian church, the services being conducted by Rev. S. T. Hill and Rev. D. E. Bedinger.

School Notes.

We attended the K. E. A. at Louisville last week, and admit that the general sessions were rather tame than thrilling. There seemed to be a lack of co-operation and enthusiasm. The program was "out ahead of time." Some speakers who were announced on the program, and these were the most noted (for holding high positions) did not appear nor did they send a substitute, but a telegram. So we were to be instructed and enlightened on the spur of the moment by someone substituted and more than likely his address would be on some subject wholly foreign to the one on the program. We would not be unduly to say the meeting was a failure. Some speakers were very good and well worth while. The departmental meetings were to our way of thinking, much more interesting, in that there was a closer touch and sympathy among the persons concerned.

The meeting was too late in the summer for a large attendance; too many teachers "were otherwise engaged."

The main spirit was increased salaries, schools for Democracy, consolidation, school books and the button-holing of the members as to the action of the School Book Commission and preference for candidates for State offices.

The attendance was scarcely one-half what it usually is, but since it is over let us hope more interest will be found in the next meeting.

Don't forget the Institute will commence August 4th.

Next Monday is county court day.

Mrs. J. L. Riley, of Ludlow, is the guest of her brother George Kreylich and wife.

Everything is in readiness for the big athletic doings on the fourth at Petersburg.

Tomorrow is Friday and is the fourth of July and the banks in the county will be closed to observe the holiday.

H. W. Shearer and wife, of Newport, are spending a few days with Mrs. Shearer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall.

Timothy Westbay and wife and three lady friends, of Covington, were guests at Mrs. Laura Martin's last Saturday evening.

Mrs. William Allen, of Bakersfield, Cal., is visiting friends and relatives in Boone and Kenton counties, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kreylich.

W. A. Gaines and son, Bernard, were in the city last Monday looking after the sale of a lot of lambs and hogs. They got 22 cents a pound for their hogs.

Miss Emma Wilson and her nephew, James Harrison, both of Constance, were transacting business in Burlington last Monday and while in town made the Recorder a pleasant call.

The signing of bells and the blowing of whistles all over the country followed the announcement at 11:20 last Saturday that the Germans had signed the treaty of peace. Now if the Germans will be good.

County Clerk W. R. Rogers appeared on the street early last Saturday morning carrying a cradle-mind you it was a grain cradle, and his friends became uneasy fearing he was going to break into some farmer's wheat field, but he was guilty of no such rash act, but, on the contrary, put in a hard day's work in his sanctum.

Last Sunday was a fine day for harvesting and considerable wheat was cut that day. The wheat was getting very ripe and many of those who had binders were in a hurry to get their crops saved that they might cut wheat for their neighbors who have no machines. Several parties who expected to purchase machines were unable to get them, the factories being unable to meet the demand.

Germany's "Reservations."

Boston Transcript.

In history there is no precedent for the situation which now exists between Germany and the Allied and Associated Powers. Germany will sign the treaty of peace, but she accompanies the act with the distinct and specific statement that she "does not cover Articles 227 to 230 by her signature" and she gives this warning "in order to meet inadvisance any accusation of untruthfulness that may now or later be made against Germany." In other words Germany assumes to give notice to the world that she accepts the terms under duress, and will at the first opportunity void the contract. This proceeding is comparable to the case of a man who, in order to obviate the seizure of his goods for a liability incurred, should sign a note promising payment of the obligation, but in so doing should give formal notice that he did not intend to pay the note. What would the creditor do in such a case as that? He would undoubtedly do what M. Clemenceau has done in behalf of the allies in this case, he would say in effect "Sign the note, and we will see whether you pay it or not." He would rely on the strong arm of the law to enforce the payment of the note at the time and in the manner specified, quite regardless of the debtor's mental or moral reservations. This indeed is M. Clemenceau's actual reply: "After the signature the Allied and Associated Powers must hold Germany responsible for the execution of every stipulation of the treaty." This is a sufficient answer to Germany's "reservations." The strong arm of the law in this case will be the armed force of the Allied and Associated Powers, or such and so many of them as are fully committed to the treaty through its ratification in due form by their parliaments or such other bodies or agencies as possess the function of ratification.

The German nation, it is apparent, is lacking in this Latin sense of dignity in adversity. It cannot admit, in its ungainly and swollen mind, the commission of any error or any wrong. It is inflexible—it is still abler alle! The plain facts of the present situation say a thing which is quite otherwise than this. They say that Germany is wrong, is broken, is defeated, is in the dust. The German Schwarmerl, the German insolence of racial infallibility, says otherwise, and though in the dust, Germany assumes superiority to all law, all necessity, all agreement.

All of which proves that the German nation must go further down before it begins to rise again.

American Farmer Movement in Canada

Minneapolis Tribune.

To lay the ground for a denial, the United States Department of Agriculture says, "the statement had been made and reiterated that not less than a million of the best farmers in the United States have gone to the cheap lands of Canada within the past 10 years." Considering that the entire population of the Dominion has risen, we believe, to 8,000,000 souls, the yarn about emigrating American farmers is so absurd on its face that it would seem beneath the dignity of official refutation from any of our government departments. However, the department of Agriculture, in its denial, brings out the interesting information that not as many as 60,000 farmers have left the U. S. for all the countries of the world, Canada included in the last decade.

The department believes that as many farmers have come from Canada to this country as have gone the other way. The movement back and forth is not unlike that from State to State in this country. In 1911 the high water mark of American emigration to Canada was 49,375. This movement included all classes. In that year only 11,560 farmers left this country for all other countries on the globe. Many of these were fillers of the soil, returning to Sweden, Italy and other lands.

Canadian figures show that 64,134 Americans took up homesteads in Canada between 1906 and 1914, but many of them had never been farmers in the United States. As to general immigration, "the total movement of all persons from this country into Canada in the 11 years from 1908 to 1918, inclusive, is given as 314,090. In the five fiscal years from 1914 to 1918, inclusive, the immigration into the U. S. from Canada was 34,083.

It remains, however, that the United States has something to learn from Canada in the way of aggressiveness to encourage settlements upon farm lands. It can learn something worth while about what is going on right now if it will.

Politicians in Washington predict that the debates on the League of nations which will be started when President Wilson returns from Europe, will be the most memorable since the debates over the slavery question. There will be flood of oratory in the Senate chamber and the whole country will hear both sides of the question discussed. President Wilson will make a nation-wide campaign and opponents of the League will trail him. In addition adherents of the League will attack in sections which President Wilson does not visit.

No organs of the human body are so important to health and long life as the kidneys. When they slow up and commence to lag in their duties, look out! Find out what the trouble is—without delay. Whenever you feel nervous, weak, dizzy, suffer from sleeplessness, or have pains in the back—wake up once. Your kidneys need help. These are signs to warn you that your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Pieces having now adjusted themselves some on Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubbe Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set; Cooper's for less, the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the tire all the time, therefore, causing the tire to break through the tire and slip off. My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel-tired wheel without dishing and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hubbell, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me where you will get first-class work, all old paint removed and $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN D. CARROLL

Democratic Candidate For GOVERNOR

He Can Win in November.

The Salvation Army Drive.

The people of Boone county are asked to give support to the Salvation Army at their drive for $13,000.00 for general relief work in the United States.

This appeal is based on the splendid work done by this organization overseas. The following testimonials let the people know the worthiness of the army for support:

L. T. Uiz, of Florence, a Boone county select says: "I have had the opportunity of seeing and experiencing some of the work of the Salvation Army on four different fronts and can say that their work has not been over estimated. They deserve the support of every American citizen, and I am sure they are backed by every former member of the A. E. F. Their policy of doing much and saying little should now receive its reward."

Select J. Allie Grant, says: "I heartily recommend the Salvation Army as a competent worker who earnestly applies itself to the wants and needs in times of distress."

Select Charles J. Akin, says: "On the fronts in France where I was the Salvation Army did splendid relief and assistance service to us boys."

Boone county's apportionment is $2200. Any citizen who is willing to express appreciation of the work of this organization is requested to send contributions to REV. DAVID BLYTH, Chairman for Boone county, who will give proper credit and receipt.

"Meats in Storage"

Every working day of the year 75,000,000 pounds of meat are required to supply home and export needs—and only 10 per cent of this is exported.

These facts must be kept in mind when considering the U. S. Bureau of Markets report that on June 1, 1919, there were 1,348,000,000 pounds of meats in cold storage. If the meat in storage was placed on the market it would only be 20 days' supply.

This meat is not actually withheld from trade channels to maintain or advance prices.

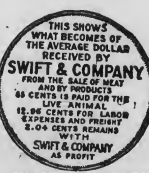

Meats in storage consist of—

- 65 per cent (approximate) hams, bacon, etc., in process of curing. It takes 30 to 90 days in pickle or salt to complete the process.
- 10 per cent is frozen pork that is to be cured later in the year.
- 6 per cent is lard. This is only four-fifths of a pound per capita, and much of it will have to go to supply European needs.
- 19 per cent is frozen beef and lamb, part of which is owned by the Government and was intended chiefly for over-seas shipment. If this were all diverted to domestic trade channels, it would be only 1 1/2 lbs. per capita—a 3 days' supply.
- 100%

From this it will be seen that "meats in storage" represent merely unfinished goods in process of curing and the working supply necessary to assure the consumer a steady flow of finished product.

The purchase of a Tinsell steam engine for use by the county was confirmed by the court. Price of engine, $2,373.

The court recommended the roads from South Fork to Beaver to Richwood as the route through this county for the proposed State Highway from Louisville to Covington.

The court agreed to pay one-half of the cost of constructing one-fourth of a mile of pike on the Verona and Crittenden road, private subscription to be raised to pay the other one-half.

The court declared in favor of a bridge on the Verona and Crittenden road where it crosses Bullock Pen creek. Another location had been proposed and a lively discussion ensued before the court made a selection.

Helmets Worn by German War Lords on Exhibit at Methodist Centenary Celebration

THREE helmets, absolutely guaranteed to have been worn by the former Kaiser William of Germany, Von Bethmann-Hollweg and General Ludendorff, will be on exhibition in Columbus, O., as a part of the Methodist Centenary Celebration, June 20 to July 13. They were brought out of Germany during the revolution by Lowell Thomas, world traveler and explorer, whose travelogues will be given in Columbus as a feature of the celebration.

Thomas entered Germany at this most critical period, without passports or authority of any kind. To do this he was forced to hide out for days on the border. He was turned back twice, but on his third attempt succeeded in getting past a Swiss guard. He made some wonderful pictures in Berlin, showing street riots and the general chaos of the city at that time.

In addition to these views and incidental lectures, Mr. Thomas will show pictures taken in Palestine at the time of General Allenby's occupation. Thomas accompanied the British troops on this expedition.

Leading Lady in 'The Wayfarer' at Methodist Centenary Celebration

MISS BLANCHE YURKA creates the role of Understanding, leading female part in "The Wayfarer" pageant, which will be presented at the Methodist Centenary celebration in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13. Henry Herbert, English Shakespearean interpreter, will have the other leading role.

Nearly 1,000 costumed characters will appear in the majestic religious pageant which will be presented every evening during the celebration in the Coliseum at the exposition grounds. The Coliseum boasts of the largest stage in America and seats 8,000 persons. A seated chorus of 1,000 trained voices will augment the effectiveness of the pageant.

Soloist in 'The Wayfarer' at Methodist Celebration

MISS HELEN NEWITT, dramatic soprano, will be the soloist in "The Wayfarer," the great religious pageant which will be presented as a part of the Methodist Centenary celebration in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13. Henry Herbert, English Shakespearean interpreter, and Miss Blanche Yurka, will have the leading speaking parts. Viola Ellis, contralto, will be a soloist.

The pageant will be presented on the largest stage in America, in the Coliseum of the exposition grounds, which seats 8,000 persons. Nearly 1,000 costumed characters and a seated chorus of 1,000-trained voices will appear in the pageant.

METHODISTS SHOULD GATHER NEW ZEAL

Centenary an Inspiration Says Dr. Fisher.

Dr. Fred Fisher of New York, who has been assistant executive secretary of the Methodist Centenary drive, has turned his entire organization to the job of mobilizing Methodism in Columbus, June 20 to July 13.

In outlining the campaign he has placed before 78,000 committeemen of the Methodist Church, he says: "We must stress four things. First, this must be a big Victory Celebration. The Methodists of the United States have lived more in the past year than in any 10 previous years of their existence. Now is the time for them to get together and celebrate their victory."

"In the second place, this is an opportunity for Methodists to have visualized the scenes and activities of which they have been talking for the past year, but of which they have no personal knowledge. Of these 78,000 men, only a negligible per cent has ever had the opportunity of going abroad. At the celebration they can get the trip around the world at their convenience."

"Third, this is the time to finish the job, to gather inspiration and information to enable the organized workers in the church to carry out the program which has been mapped out for the next four years."

"Fourth, and most important of all, if the celebration realizes the ideals which those who are back of it hold, it must be the inspiration for planning work for the next century. As we look upon the marvels that have been accomplished we should gather new faith and new zeal for enterprises that can be measured only in terms of another century. We must, in a word, weld ourselves together in a great spiritual purpose to strike the bull's eye."

Dr. Fisher indicated that 150 trained executives, in addition to the 78,000 volunteer workers, will stimulate interest in the Centenary Celebration during the next six weeks.

JULY 7 NEGRO DAY

Trips Planned For Visitors to Methodist Centenary.

Negro Methodists, in Columbus as Centenary Celebration visitors, will make a pilgrimage to Upper Sandusky, birthplace of the Home Missionary movement, to honor the memory of its founder, John Stewart, a man of their own race. The trip is scheduled for Saturday July 5.

Other trips planned include a visit to the grave of Ben Hanby, author of "Nellie Gray," in Otterbein cemetery; to Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware; perhaps in smaller numbers to Wilberforce, and possible to Oberlin, where so many found, by underground route, safe haven in Civil war days. Monday, July 7, has been designated officially as "Negro Day," and will be observed at the Centenary Celebration grounds with an elaborate program of pageantry, addresses, special music and parades. For this occasion, Dr. W. E. Dubois, editor of The Crisis, published in New York, has written a pageant, "The Star of Ethiopia," which will be produced in the Coliseum by colored participants. The theme of the pageant is the evolution of the race traced through progressive stages of achievement to the present day. A chorus of 500 voices, all Negroes, will present the pageant music.

Accomplishing "the impossible" in a cigarette!

It is years back since smokers have heard of any NEW quality in a cigarette.

But here, at last, is a cigarette that does what smokers would never have believed a cigarette could do.

Here's a cigarette that satisfies—Chesterfields.

Chesterfields touch the "smoke-spot." Chesterfields let you know you're smoking. Chesterfields—and Chesterfields only—SATISFY!

It's all in the blend—a blend of the finest selections of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos. And the formula for this blend is the manufacturer's secret. Unlike a patent, it cannot be copied or even closely imitated.

Light up a Chesterfield, some time today, and see how promptly your smoke-sense will put the O. K. on "satisfy."

Out in the State.

In Jessamine county the corn crop is not so large as last year. A fine crop of wheat is being harvested.

Corn and tobacco look fine in Scott county.

Garrard county complains of some rust in wheat, but the yield is expected to be larger than the average.

Hickman county pastures and clover are good. Wheat somewhat damaged by rain and rust.

In some fields in Harrison county the wheat was laid flat by the rains and will result in a loss of several thousand dollars.

Carroll county is harvesting the largest crop of wheat ever grown in the county. Corn is late and backward. Tobacco looks well.

Early corn looks well in Adair county. Oats will make a hundred per cent crop and wheat will be 80 per cent.

Bourbon county is cutting a 30,000 acre crop of wheat that will make 15 to 16 bushels to the acre.

Wheat in Woodford county damaged some by rain and the intense heat and hail injured tobacco.

Trimble county's wheat crop will make a big yield, and a large acreage is being harvested but about one eighth of the acreage was blown down. The county is short on hogs.

Tobacco crop has made a fine start in Fayette county, but a considerable acreage was set late.

The air in Berlin is charged with the spirit of revolt and nobody there would be surprised at a repetition of events of January and March on a much larger scale. Socialist papers are urging restraint, but minor leaders of independents, Spartacists and Communists are fostering the spirit of revolt and inciting lawless elements to audacious crimes. Insecurity has reached an incredible degree.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Theodore's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Theodore's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit. If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result. Theodore's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Theodore's, the original and genuine. B 78

MAKING TEETH GOOD SERVANTS.

Between the doctors and the dentists the teeth of the people appear to be having a hard time of it. This is a layman's conclusion drawn from what members of the two professions find to say to and against one another at a meeting in Chicago. The dentists indicted the doctors for making too many erroneous diagnoses of the ill of the flesh in which the teeth were held to be the chief inciters of trouble, says Minneapolis Tribune. The doctors said the dentists were too ready with their forceps in yanking out molars, cuspids, bicuspidals and incisors, and the dentists retorted that they acted for the most part on orders brought to them by patients from doctors. On one thing both professions unite—that good, sound teeth are a vitally important part of the human anatomy. They put it up to the owner and operator of teeth to take good care of his molars, and they hold out the promise to him that if he will do that much for himself he will spare himself much discomfort, save money and time, and carry a very good line of insurance of his general health.

A good many people have felt that wireless telegraphy is the greatest of all the wonders of modern invention and scientific discovery. They do not, of course, fully understand the transmission of messages by telegraph or by the voice by telephone, because no one, not even scientists, understands electricity; but at least there is a natural connection between the sender and the receiver of the communication and it is to explain something of the mystery to the normal mind, whether it really does or not. It is at all events something tangible to cling to. But messages that are sent out into space and go wandering over the earth to be picked out of the air by any chance operator of a wireless instrument who may catch and interpret it, or even, in these latest days, draw a spoken message out of the ether—these things have an uneasy suggestiveness, as of something occult, says Indianapolis Star. They hint at telepathy, for if thoughts may be propelled by electricity through the atmosphere for thousands of miles, why not transmission of wireless messages by the battery of mind?

We can see the line along which war must eventually disappear, even without any active human interference. Its two causes are already dying. The excessive birth rate is falling, and necessarily falls with every rise in culture. Excessive individualism has likewise passed its climax; there is no more world left to fight for; and with the diminution of industrial and commercial activities, of the whole material side of life, the economic cause of war falls away and every energy thus released is free for sublimation into other and possibly more exalted forms of human activity.

Experience and tests of the great war have proved the American pistol of .45 caliber to be the most effective small weapon in the world, according to an exhaustive report to the army authorities. This is approved the verdict of our pioneers of the plains and frontiers. The old-fashioned "forty-five" played a large part in civilizing the West and Southwest and bringing culture and sweetness and light to benighted would-be autocrats of the wild.

Convict work on highways is legal, henceforth. Prisoners may work in the open air, and keep their health, regardless of the sensibilities of philanthropists who hate to look on them. Incidentally the deterrence of the punishment will be markedly increased.

GREAT SUCCESS

Was The Athletic Field Day at Petersburg, July 4th— List Prize Winners.

The athletic field day at Petersburg was considered by almost everyone present, a great success. It was given under the auspices of the Petersburg C. S. S. Athletic League, and the proceeds will go in the fund for the new base ball uniforms which were to have been a feature of the day's program, but were, however, conspicuous by their absence.

Many of those present had never before witnessed a truck and field meet conducted by a competent official, but they, more than anyone else, enjoyed the day.

One disappointment, however, was the failure of the entrants from Dry Ridge to put in their appearance.

Prof. Carter, who was the promoter of the day's events left not a stone unturned for the successful and fair completion of the various events, and he was wise did he provide for the comfort of those present; as well as could possibly have been done.

The field was properly marked and lined for the various sprints and runs and a stand was erected on the grounds where sandwiches, pies, ice cream and soft drinks were sold for the benefit of those who came from out of town.

The failure of home-building enterprise to meet this situation tends to force up the cost of living for the workers, forms a basis for a demand for higher wages to meet higher rents, and higher carrying charges for home owners, and withal, tends to drive the city hundreds of families who otherwise would remain here, patronizing local trade and paying local taxes.

Herman Konig Gave Bond

Herman Konig, of Erlanger, who several Sundays ago, was lodged in the jail at Burlington, charged with entering Marshall Hall's box office shed and taking therefrom a horse blanket, was bailed out of prison last Saturday, Mrs. Mary Switzenberger, of Newport, signing his bond for $500. At the time Konig was placed in jail he was suspected of having information as to the cause of so many mysterious deaths among horses and cattle in Boone and Kenton counties, but if he knew anything he never divulged it in a manner that rendered it sufficient to warrant any action being taken.

THE DEFICIT OF HOMES.

"Building Boom" Does Not Cover Two Years of Idleness.

June records in the Bureau of Building Inspection are said to have been over the top to the extent of two million dollars as compared with the highest figures of previous years, and the six months period shows a total of 7,000 operations, which is said to be unprecedented.

Nevertheless, the aggregate of home building inaugurated or in prospect in this city is utterly inadequate to fill the present demand which will come in the fall. During the month of June permits were granted for two story operations and for 89 three-story dwellings.

The same number was authorized in May, but the shortage of homes in this city has been estimated at 5,000, and these figures must be raised to measure the probable situation 3 months hence, when the city shall have revived, and the thousands shall have returned from the shore.

COMMUNITY MEETINGS

To Be Held in Burlington July 11-13.

The Farmers Community meeting or chautauqua will be held in Burlington, beginning on the afternoon of the 13th of August and continuing three days. This will be a very interesting meeting and one that should interest all to others who can attend. It will be held in a large tent and there will be afternoon and evening sessions. Don't forget the dates.

Our New Brand of Quiet Patriotism

Only one death was reported in the United States as a result of the last Fourth of July celebration. This unprecedented and even unapproached record is significant. The world is not alone growing better, but is becoming a safer place for expression.

In all probability this Independence Day was celebrated with more real fervor and true thanks giving than any similar occasion in many decades, but the people of this country, including energetic and sometimes irrepresable Young America, have learned that it is no longer necessary to explode giant firecrackers to the honor of the brave soldiers of George Washington and the quiet, sane-minded men who framed the Declaration of Independence.

Time was—and not so long ago—when the Fourth of July casualty lists rivalled in length as well as in serious consequences some of the minor engagements of the great war. Happily for all, the era of patriotism depending upon noisy and dangerous explosions for expression has passed.

Many will attribute the quiet which prevailed to prohibition. All will readily agree that, what for the cause, the results of this sane, safe and satisfactory form of celebration marked a great and important step in keeping with the self-sacrificing brand of American patriotism which has made this nation the world power she is today.—Enquirer.

Owen Smith sold a 6-weeks old veal calf one day last week that weighed 135 pounds and he got 1 1/2 cents a pound for it.

YIELD FALLING SHORT

Boone County's Crop of Wheat Very Large But Not Up To Expectations.

A large acreage of wheat has been harvested in this county the yield of which will not come up to expectations according to reports from the several neighborhoods, although in quite a number of fields the yield will be considerably above an average, going as high probably as 25 bushels per acre or more. From the appearance of the shocks as they stand in the field one is bound to conclude that the straw will be very inferior in quality, owing to the wheat becoming over ripe before it was cut. The crop ripened in a very short time after it began to turn and the lack of machinery to harvest it brought the harvest allowed an over ripening. Some attribute the haste with which wheat ripened to use of the fertilizer, a generous supply of which was put in the ground when the grain was sown last fall. One thing is certain, however, that the crop of wheat this year than will be required to bread her people for the next twelve months, something that has not been accomplished by her farmers for many years in the past, it having been generally conceded that the land was fast losing its fertility, and it was necessary to the production of wheat.

WE CALL UPON JUDGE CARROLL TO EXPLAIN

Elizabethtown Mirror.

It has been openly charged that one Eli H. Brown, Jr., is financing the campaign of Judge John D. Carroll in his race for judicial nomination for Governor, and that he has been able to learn that charge has never been denied although Gov. Black has challenged a denial thereof in his public address. If there is no causal forthcoming, it is of course must be accepted as true. What then can prompt Eli H. Brown, Jr., to bear the heavy expense of a campaign for Governor and from whence does he expect to be repaid?

It is the same Eli H. Brown, Jr., who held an office under the State Insurance Board and which upon investigation by committee from the State General Assembly was found to be absolutely devoid of duties to be performed, although he was relieving the State of the sum of $3,000 per annum for his services.

If we are correctly informed he is the same Eli H. Brown, Jr., who represented the great corporation of Armour & Co., who are interested in obtaining contracts with the State to furnish its penal and charitable institutions with meat and meat products, and we wonder if there could be any connection between these facts and the payment of Judge Carroll's campaign expenses? And if not, where does the money come from?

Since high officials are judged to be above the law, and the lawless and associates, this matter is one of the gravest concern to the democracy of this state; why then, if the law is to be maintained, should we permit to pay these campaign expenses and yet have no place in the personnel of Judge Carroll's announced managers? It is true that he is indirectly linked to the management of Judge Carroll's campaign, owing to the fact that he is the law partner of Mr. M. Logan, who is the campaign manager, who is making a strenuous effort to compromise and settle the Bingham inheritance Tax Case, or sum less than is claimed to be justly due the State, but we fail to see wherein this would warrant his payment of Judge Carroll's campaign bills.

It has been said that "By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them" and if this is the case, the people of Kentucky should look well to the associations which have been mentioned. We await with unabated interest for a statement from Judge Carroll about this matter.—Adv.

It was in the afternoon of the fourth of July, some six months ago, that Jack and Jess met to settle the question as to which is the better man, and Jack, raised mightily in his own estimation, and in his maintenance with such rapidity that in the third round the sponge was sponged in Jack's favor. Jack was proclaimed the victor, and the next day the cry of "Jack" was heard throughout the land, but little did Jess care as he had his share of the water. $100,000 securely tucked away in his "jamas".

WILHELM'S CASE.

New Hour in Progress Will Be Struck When He's Tried.

New York Times.
War for conquest is a crime but though the conscience of mankind has long declared it is to be such, there has never been an official recognition of it by the nations such as is the basis of Article 237 of the peace treaty, which proposes to bring the German ex-Emperor to trial for causing such a war. This is progress. Officially the nations propose to bring a man to trial on the charge of initiating a war of conquest. The world has never seen such a thing. Even in the days of the ecstatic dream of universal peace in the early fifteenth century, a dream shattered by the Crimean War, it was not even supposed that "the imperial Guy Pawkes," as Theodore Parker called the Emperor, could or should be brought before a tribunal and punished. Those who are skeptical about the dawn of a new age must think again.

The demand of the allies for the trial of a man who brought on a war marks a step forward in the progress of the human race. It is all the better that they do not rest their demand on technicalities, but admit that law is not a mere tool for the purpose of setting a precedent; that "the ex-Emperor is arraigned as a matter of international policy, not that for the technical violation of any statute, for a supreme offense against international morality, the sanctity of treaties and the essential rules of justice." A new hour has struck.

Mrs. W. O. Rouse Dead

The remains of Mrs. W. O. Rouse who died on the 3rd inst. at her home in St. Petersburg, Fla., were brought to Hebron last Saturday and the funeral was conducted from the Lutheran church at that place last Sunday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Royer, pastor of the church, in the presence of a very large congregation of friends and relatives. Mrs. Rouse had been in bad health for several years; but the announcement of her death was a shock to her many friends in this county where she was born and raised. She is survived by her husband, Doctor W. O. Rouse, and one daughter, Rachel, who is about four years of age, and they have the sympathy of an extensive circle of relatives and friends in their bereavement. Mrs. Rouse is a daughter of T. C. and Mary Emma Rouse Crigler, was born March 26th, 1875, at Hebron. She was united in marriage to Dr. W. O. Rouse July 21, 1899. To them was born one child, a daughter, Katherine Mary. At the time of her death Mrs. Rouse was a member Southern Christian church at St. Petersburg, Florida, having transferred her membership from the Lutheran church at Hebron. She and her husband took up their residence in Burlington, where they made their home for ten years, when they moved to St. Petersburg. Here they have resided for the past ten years.

Everything possible had been done during the past several years to prolong her life, but relief was only temporary and about seven weeks ago she took her last illness and died peacefully in her home. She had been treated by the best specialists in the country but her disease was beyond their control.

The floral offerings that accompanied the body from the Florida home were mute but beautiful tributes to the memory in which the departed was held at her home in the South, while the large congregation of friends at the funeral testified to the love the people at her old home bore for her.

The bereaved husband requested the Recorder to express his heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors for the numerous kindnesses extended them by the people both here at their old home and their present home in Florida, and assure them that under such circumstances the true worth of friendship is realized.

BOONE COUNTY BOYS

Who Saw Service Overseas and Were Badly Wounded Returned Home.

Robert Robbins, son of Stephen Robbins, returned home from Camp Taylor, last Thursday, having been honorably discharged. His wounds have healed and he is in fine condition.

Howard Aylor, who saw considerable service overseas and was wounded in battle, was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Edward Rice the first of the week. He is not so heavy as he was when he broke the service May 15th, 1918, his greatest trouble being broken arches in his feet, they having given away while he was in France. He and Robert Robbins were wounded the same day, Robbins being wounded first and not being able to hear from his comrade concluded that he was killed. Robbins and Aylor were in the same regiment and saw each other daily until they were wounded and taken to different hospitals for treatment.

TREATY TO BRING NEW ORDER.

Washington, June 28.—President Wilson, in an address to the American people on the occasion of the signing of the peace treaty, made a plan for the acceptance of the treaty and the covenant of the League of Nations without change or reservation.

His message, given out here by Secretary Tumulty, said: "My Fellow Countrymen: The treaty of peace has been signed. It is ratified and acted upon in full and sincere execution of its terms it will furnish the charter for a new order of affairs in the world."

"It is a severe treaty in the duties and penalties it imposes upon Germany, but it is signed only because great wrongs done by Germany are to be righted and repaired; it imposes nothing that Germany cannot do; and she can regain her rightful standing in the world by the prompt and honorable fulfillment of its terms."

"And it is much more than a treaty of peace. It liberates great peoples who never before have been able to find the way to liberty. It ends, once for all, an old and cruel era under which small groups of selfish men could use the peoples of great empires to serve their own power and interests. It associates the free Governments of the world in a permanent league, in which they are pledged to use their united strength to maintain peace by maintaining right and justice. It makes international law a reality supported by imperative sanctions."

"It does away with the right of conquest and rejects the policy of annexation and substitutes a new order under which backward nations—populations which have not yet come to political consciousness, and peoples who are ready for independence, but yet quite prepared to dispense with protections and guidance—shall no more be subjected to the domination and exploitation of a stronger nation, but shall be put under the friendly direction and afforded the helpful assistance of governments which undertake to be responsible to the opinion of mankind in the execution of their task by accepting the direction of the League of Nations."

"It recognizes the inalienable rights of nationalities, the rights of minorities and the sanctity of religious belief and practice. It lays the basis for conventions which, shall free the commercial intercourse of the world from unjust and vexatious restrictions and every sort of artificial barrier to co-operation that will serve to cleanse the life of the world and facilitate its common action in a beneficent action of every kind."

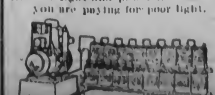

"It furnishes guarantees such as never were given or even contemplated for the fair treatment of all who labor at the daily tasks of the world."

"It is for this reason that I have spoken of it as a great achievement for a new order of affairs. There is ground here for deep satisfaction, universal reassurance, and confident hope."

Some members of Congress and others who are watching the Irish question were attracted particularly to that portion of the President's address which he referred to "peoples who are ready for independence, but not yet quite prepared to dispense with protections and guidance" and that the treaty "recognized the inalienable rights of nationalities."

One who ventured to interpret what was in the President's mind when he wrote those passages, but they were acamed with much interest.

A very large crowd assembled at the Harvest Home grounds last Saturday afternoon to enjoy the first plenty of the season, and so delightful was the occasion everyone was glad of being present. The Burley Tobacco Co. sold their tobacco factory at Louisville to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. last week for over a million dollars, and will turn over the property at once. This was the tobacco factory bought from Strader Bros. With the sale of this property the Burley Co. has only the tobacco warehouses left, and if these were disposed of a general distribution among the stockholders could be had. Most of the stock is held by farmers all over the burley belt. John E. Williams, who buys for the Reynolds Company, and lives near Walton, was offered the position of manager of the factory at Louisville but declined the position.

There is considerable tobacco left over from last year in the hands of the growers and the Walton Loose Leaf House has over 100,000 of nice tobacco that was purchased the latter part of the season. Several dealers have raised purchases on hand, and the managers of the Walton Loose Warehouse Co. are arranging to make a sale of this tobacco to the manufacturers agents at a private sale by sample. The tobacco will all be in the hoghead and the samples show the contents. The Walton Warehouse has been busy prizing this tobacco preparing for this sale which will be announced in a few weeks, and growers who would like to offer their tobacco in this sale should see the warehouse company or D. B. Wallace, Secretary and have their tobacco handled and prized by the warehouse company as soon as convenient. The prospect is for a very satisfactory sale as the warehouse people are making an excellent arrangement about the matter, and will be pleased to give the growers with tobacco any information.

Friday, July 10th, a reunion of the Sleet family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Sleet, near Beaver Lick. Some members of the family were not present, but those who were together with their friends spent a most enjoyable day. At the noon hour an excellent picnic lunch was spread in the yard. The afternoon was spent in pleasant social conversation until about four o'clock, when all assembled on the lawn, and an appropriate religious service was held, Rev. Criswell reading the 9th Psalm and offering prayer, after which Rev. R. E. Shirley gave an excellent talk in which he urged preparation for the future meeting in the greater world beyond. He was followed by Chas. C. Sleet, who in a brief talk, emphasized the importance of choosing the right road through life. The service was dismissed by George W. Sleet, after following were present: G. W. Sleet, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sleet, Miss Kate Sleet, J. W. Sleet, Mr. and E. W. Franks, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. THE JOHNSON REUNION.

The 12th annual reunion of the heirs of T. A. and Rebecca Johnson was held Sunday, July 6th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Florence, this answering also for the celebration of the 59th birthday of Mrs. Florence.

By a remarkable dispensation of Providence, the nine sisters of this family, ranging in age from 62 to 79 are all living, calling forth thanksgiving and rejoicing at each renewed gathering.

As usual there was a large attendance, and many friends besides the immediate family, dropping in to offer congratulations.

A bountiful dinner, representing the hearty homes, was served at the noon hour.

Music, singing, and social intercourse, was engaged in until time for separation; all looking forward, entertaining in their hearts a wish for many more unbroken reunions.

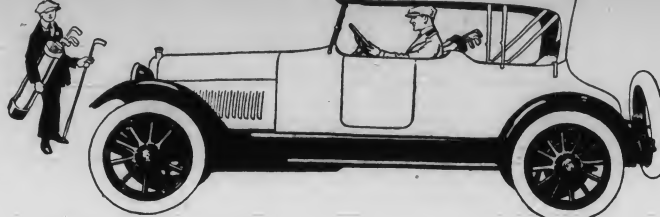

Providence permitting, the next annual reunion will be held at the home of Mrs. Belle Taylor, Walton.

The Most Closely Priced Fine Car

"Competitive" Cars Will Not Interest You

The Chandler is the most closely priced fine car in the American market. A determined Chandler policy, pursued now for nearly six years, has made it so

When you really know the Chandler Six, no "competitive" car will interest you. Cars for which you are asked to pay more will not interest you.

No other car, in the whole medium-priced field, offers you such a motor; no other offers you such features of essential, high grade design and equip-features of essential equipment: Bosch magneto for sure ignition, silent chain drive for motor shafts—three chains running in constant spray of oil, solid cast aluminum motor base extending from frame to frame, annular ball bearings to carry the power back to the rear wheels with the minimum loss thru friction.

Six handsome bodies are mounted on the one famous Chandler chassis. The Chandler leads today just as distinctly as in the years past. And the price is only $1795. Asking you to pay more wouldn't give more. To mark the price doesn't make a car better. The Chandler is sold at a closer price than any other fine car.

You can prove this by your own comparisons.

Improved Design For Popular Roadster

The Chandler Four-Passenger Roadster which has enjoyed such wide popularity is continued for 1919, with changes in body design which make it still more attractive than in the past.

HOWARD KELLY.

John Bradford, of Georgetown, attended court in Burlington last Monday his first visit here in many years. The bluegrass section has evidently agreed with him, and while his hair has whitened his avoirdupois has increased considerably and he is a very fine youthful looking man although considerably advanced in the sixties. His old acquaintances were glad to strike hands with him again.

The meeting gear on an automobile driven by Supl. J. C. Gordon, went out of commission last Saturday as he crossed the bridge just east of town on the Florence pike and he was unable to follow the curve in the road at that point and the machine ran into the fence. As Mr. Gordon is one who never drives at high speed while the machine was damaged of speed he escaped injury considerably.

Geo. W. Gaines, one of the oldest citizens of the Bullittsville neighborhood, met with a serious accident one day the past week. He was out in the yard and started to the house, and while he reached the porch he stumbled and fell, his head striking one of the columns, rendering him unconscious, in which condition he has remained most of the time since. Owing to his advanced age, considerably over eighty years, it is feared he will not recover.

CORRECTING DATSES OF CHAUTAUQUA

On the first page of this issue is what was intended for an announcement of the Farmers' Chautauqua to be held in Burlington next month, although there is a conflict between the headline and the body of the item. While the item was being printed Mr. B. C. Gaines, County Chair man, received a telegram from the Chautauqua people in Louisville saying that it would be held in Burlington on August 7th, 8th and 9th, the dates first selected and afterwards changed. Now do not forget the dates which are very satisfactory to the local people who were considerably disappointed when they were notified several days since that the dates had been changed to August 11, 12 and 13. Remember the date—August 7, 8 and 9.

BLACK IS A WINNER

It is generally conceded that Governor James D. Black will be an easy winner of the democratic nomination for Governor in the August Primary.

The people are for him.

He is the logical candidate. His great service to the ticket in 1915 should not go unrewarded.

He is 10000 votes stronger than any other candidate.

In 1915 he reduced the republican majority in 35 counties in Eastern Kentucky, nearly 5000 votes.

His majority over his opponent was 2,000 to 8000 more than the majority of the other members of the ticket over their respective opponents.

He is the best campaigner, the best debator, the most pleasing speaker, by far, of any candidate offering for Governor on the democratic ticket.

In him, Democracy has an invincible champion.

He's a Winner—Vote For Him and Democratic Success In November!

ON BIOGRAPHY.
Philip Brooks once told the boys at Exeter that in reading biography there was one thing in close intimacy—the subject of the biography, the author, and the reader. Of the three, the most interesting is, of course, the man about whom the book is written. The most privileged is the reader, who is thus allowed to live familiarly with an eminent man. Least regarded of the three is the author. It is his part to introduce the others and to develop between them an acquaintance, perhaps friendship, while he withdraws into the background. Of all the forms of literature perhaps no one has greater vitality than biography, as the name implies, the writing of the life of a great person. In all ages, in all nations there have been great men, but there have been few great biographers and yet there have been a number of men of influence accorded to few works of any other class of literature. The reason for this is not far to seek. We are all interested in the deeds of men, says Shakespeare. We wish to know not only what they did but also why they thought and said and what difficulties confronted them as they lived and did their work. The lives of great men are the inspiration of the race and it is in the reading of biography that successive generations come to know about their heroes.

France has presented Vimy Ridge to Canada. The great battle ground will be turned into a memorial for those who fought and died and those who fought and lived—an hallowed shrine to be preserved forever by the government of men who struggled as only freemen can, against the horrors who sought to enslave a world. The crest of the ridge above Somme, can never again be reclaimed for agricultural purposes. Fitted with shells, great craters made by mines, sown in every way, it cannot again be made to produce food for people. So the Canadian government proposes to turn it into a sort of park, to plant upon it maples from Canada—for the maple leaf was the badge of the Canadians, says Columbus Delphic. No expense will be spared beautifying the surroundings, but the scars will be left in the earth—while the splendid trees will shelter the earth with their shade in the years to come.

A sidelight upon the martyrdom of Edith Cavell is thrown by the following taken from Brand Whitlock's new book, "Belgium." "A sad passage was that in the letter which she wrote to her nurses, when she speaks of the danger of gossip: 'Not only were my happiness and reputation destroyed by ill-timed, but life itself.' She wrote on her copy of the 'Imitation of Christ.' It is no small privilege to keep silence in an evil time. It was a restrained admission, hardly even a reproach, that careless tongues had helped to betray her."

The Tennessee mountain blacksmith soldier who in one afternoon's work killed 25 enemies, captured 122 and a couple of dozen machine guns, said when asked about his exploit, that he had been told to go on and fight and that he knew how. A simple modesty like that was the admiration of his fellows, but its understanding of duty certainly struck terror to the souls of his foe.

The Salvation Army well deserves the public rally to its aid. It has the remarkable record of having no criticism made of its work in France during the war even of individual delicacies. The members worked with the discipline of a trained force and one with its heart in its work.

The "13" superstition has been shattered so thoroughly that others may as well go along. Nobody, however credulous, will, in this enlightened day, seriously contend that the wing on the seventeen-year locust stands for "war."

Parents should impress upon their children not to fondle strange dogs and not to tease any. Many attacks of dogs upon children are provoked, and the latter should be taught not to bring this danger upon themselves.

A safe and sane Fourth of July will not prevent the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Monroe doctrine from being mentioned frequently this summer and with great enthusiasm.

Stock exchange seats are now up to $85,000 apiece. The record price is $95,000. If anybody thinks speculation is permanently checked in the United States he is gravely mistaken.

A French chaplain says that France has 700,000 girls who will never get a chance to marry. Are we bringing our troops home too soon?

Flying machines will never displace the old-fashioned three-ringed bird. It is impossible to collect an admission fee to flying circuses.

POULTRY

MOST PRODUCTIVE HEN TYPE

Poultry Keepers Aim to Combine Economy and Efficiency—More Eggs From Fewer Hens.

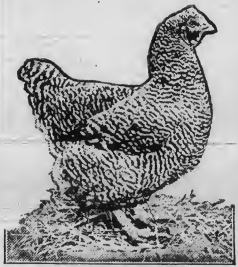

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

American poultry keepers as a class have always aimed to combine economy and efficiency in poultry production. In war-time patriotism impels them to extraordinary efforts in this direction, moving them to do everything, and to leave nothing undone that will help to quickly increase the nation's supplies of poultry and eggs. It is not the high cost of feed alone, since America entered the war, that has led to more careful attention to the routine work in poultry keeping, and to greater judgment and skill in feeding. The saving of money has been an incentive, but above and beyond that, every poultry keeper realizes that getting better production from less feed is doing double duty in conservation and production—saving feed and at the same time increasing food.

That American poultry keepers are, on the whole, more efficient in egg production seems to be plainly indicated by the fact that, as compared with the period before the war, market receipts of eggs increased more than receipts of poultry. Reports from persons in touch with production in many localities agree that more eggs are being produced from the usual numbers of hens kept, and in many instances from smaller numbers. It may well be presumed that such efficiency in one line of production extends to others closely co-ordinated with it, and that poultry keepers are being given more economical, though no common statistics indicate it, and it is not so readily observed in common practice.

Among professional breeders of standard poultry the first result of war-time conditions was to emphasize stress, and more effectively than ever, the benefits of rigid selection of breeding stock and severe culling of the young stock while growing. The high cost of feed has this class of poultry keepers hardest because, even under normal conditions, a considerable part of their stock must be carried for quite a long time after coming to maturity before it is sold. The concentration of interest and industry upon things immediately relating to the conduct of the war and the production of food tended to decrease the demand for their stock.

So, with stock actually costing a great deal more than in normal times, they had to face the problem of either reduced sales or lower prices on good grades of stock to attract trade. Some chose one alternative, some the other; but all adopted the policy of using only breeders of the very best type, and so reducing to the lowest practical point the waste of feeding inferior young stock.

Professional breeders were compelled to do this, because no other plan of economizing comparable to it in efficiency was open to them. Good feed in abundance had to be used, whatever the cost, or their birds would not attain full development and command profitable prices.

Their methods generally are so well adapted to their work that no considerable saving of time and labor is possible. The only solution of their problem was the exclusive production of poultry of the quality that would bring profitable prices, for in feed and care birds of high quality cost no more to produce than those of greatly inferior quality.

For the professional breeder this exact adaptation of the stock to the end for which it is designed is a necessity. In the matter of producing eggs and meat there is not the same absolute necessity. The volume of production can be maintained, and even greatly increased, by the continuance and extension of those better practices which have made possible so much of the increase which has already been attained. But if the producers of eggs and poultry for the table are to do their utmost to increase the supplies of those products, the easiest, the shortest and the surest way is through general use of the most productive types; that is, by the use on the part of every poultry keeper of the most productive types in his stock. It is not meant that there should be wholesale replacement of ordinary stocks by stock of strains celebrated for extreme high production. That may be done to advantage in many instances. But with the great majority of poultry keepers immediate gain in production must be made by good use of such stock as they have.

Horticultural Advice

WHIP GRAFTING IS FAVORED

Method Has Advantage of Being Adapted to Small Plants—Can Be Done During Winter.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Whip grafting is the one almost universally used in root grafting. It has the advantage of being well adapted to small plants only one or two years of age, as well as the other great consideration that it can be done indoors during the winter. The graft is made by cutting the stock off diagonally—one long, smooth cut with a sharp knife, leaving about three-fourths of an inch of cut surface. Place the knife about one-third of the distance from the end of the cut surface, at right angles to the cut, and split the stock in the direction of its long axis. Cut the lower end of the scion in like manner, and when the two parts are forced together the cut surfaces will fit neatly together and will nearly cover the other if scion and stock are of the same size. A difference in diameter of the two parts to be united may be disregarded unless it be too great. After the scion and stock have been locked together they should be wrapped with five or six turns of waxed cotton to hold the parts firmly together.

Whip Grafting: a, the Stock; b, the Scion; c, Stock and Scion United.

The roots are dug and the scions are cut in the fall and stored. The work of grafting may be done during the winter months. When the operation has been performed, the grafts are packed away in moss, sawdust or sand in a cool cellar to remain until spring. It is important that the place of storage should be cool, else the grafts may start into growth and be ruined, or heating and rotting may occur.

If the temperature is kept low—not above 40 degrees F.—there will be no growth except callusing and the knitting together of stock and scion. In ordinary propagation by means of whip grafts, the scion is cut with about three buds, and the stock is nearly as long as the scion. The graft is so planted as to bring the union of stock and scion not very far below the surface of the ground; but where the trees are required to be especially hardy in order to stand severe winters, and the roots used are not known to be so hardy as the plants from which the scions have been cut, a different plan is adopted. The scions are cut much longer and the roots may be cut shorter, and the graft is planted so deep as to cause roots to issue from the lower end of the scion. When taken up to be set in the orchard, the original root may be removed entirely, leaving nothing but the scion and the roots which have been put forth from it. This is a common practice in preparing nursery stock for planting in the northern part of the Mississippi valley.

ATTENTION TO FRUIT TREES
Make Careful Inspection and Remove All Branches Broken by Storms or Heavy Crop.
Inspect carefully all fruit trees and remove any branches that have been broken by summer storms or a heavy crop of fruit. If only slightly broken they may be propped up in such a way as to grow back together. If not remove by sawing off right up close to the main body of the tree or other branch from which it comes.

CAREFULLY PICK ALL APPLES

Each Specimen Should Be Placed in Basket, Box or Barrel So as Not to Bruise It.

In picking apples and other fruit, use great care in placing each specimen carefully in the baskets and boxes or barrels so as not to bruise it. See that picking baskets and field boxes are free from splinters and nails.

Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves some on Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubber Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set; Cooper's Peerless, the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the Tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the Tire all the time, therefore, causing the tire to break through the Tire and stuff off.

My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel-tired wheel without dishing and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub left, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me where you will get first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

These prices took effect May 1, 1919, and will remain in effect until further notice.

TRAPPING HARMFUL LITTLE PINE MICE

Rodents Usually Follow Moles in Their Burrowing.

Considerable Damage Done to Vegetables Stored in Ground in Eastern States—Pests Can Be Destroyed By Trapping.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Pine mice, which usually follow moles in their tunneling and burrowing through the soil, have inflicted considerable damage recently in Virginia, Maryland and other eastern states, especially to vegetables stored in the ground and to early sown garden seed. The mole often gets the blame for the damage which is wrought by the field mouse. Moles live chiefly on worms and insects and do not destroy seeds.

Guillotine Trap Made Entirely of Metal, of vegetables, while field mice gain a living from stealing seed and root crops.

These pests can be destroyed by trapping small areas where the infestation is not extensive and where it is undesirable to put out poison. Twelve to 20 traps are here may be used. The tunnels of the pine mouse should be excavated sufficiently to admit the trap on a level with the bottom, a garden trowel being used for digging.

Where mice are abundant on large areas poisoned bait should be distributed in teaspoonful quantities in the mouse runs and at the entrance of burrows. A mixture containing one ounce of powdered strychnine, one ounce of powdered bicarbonate of soda, and one-eighth ounce of sucrose should be sifted from a perforated tin box over 50 pounds of crushed wheat or 40 pounds of crushed oats, mixing the grain constantly so that the poison will be uniformly distributed. This dry mixture may be kept indefinitely without danger of fermentation.

Where it is necessary to use whole oats, the poison must penetrate the kernels, because mice hull the oats before eating them. Hence it is essential to dissolve one ounce of strychnine sulphate in two quarts of boiling water.

LITTLE DAMAGE DONE BEES

No Particular Harm Will Result in Spraying Apple Trees With Lime-Sulphur Solution.

According to Prof. H. A. Surface, Pennsylvania zoologist, little damage will result to bees in spraying apple trees with lime-sulphur when the blossoms are open. It has been found that bees do not like to feed upon flowers covered with lime-sulphur. Observation then would indicate that there is little danger to bees from such spraying.

APPLYING A SUMMER SPRAY

Work Should Be Performed With Nozzle Giving Good Mist With the Pressure Used.

The summer spray should be applied with a nozzle giving a good mist with the pressure used. At the time of application of the petal-fall spray, the calyx stands with the open part up, and the spray must be delivered from above. The object of the petal-fall spray is to fill the calyx cup full of poison.

STAPLE ARTICLES OF FOOD

City People Will Buy Beef, Pork and Mutton So Long as Prices Are Reasonable.

Beef, pork and mutton doubtless will continue to be staple articles of food for city people so long as they can buy these foods at any reasonable price. It would seem that farmers who raise a few calves, lambs, and pigs for the local market would have a good chance to market their feed to advantage.

TROUBLE WITH YOUNG LAMBS

White Scours Is Caused by Digestive Disorders—Milk of Magnesia Will Help Cure.

While scours in lambs is caused by digestive disorders, lambs with this trouble should be taken away from their mothers and allowed only a little milk. A tablespoonful of milk of magnesia will help cure the trouble. Milk the udder out before letting a lamb nurse.

White & Myers Chautauqua System

Kansas City, Mo., opens an engagement at

WALTON, KENTUCKY

6 Days--Beginning July 16th--6 Days

The members of the Local Chautauqua Committee who are working so hard to make a success of the coming Chautauqua, cannot agree on one point—and that is, which part of the program is more attractive—the lectures or the entertainment.

Those who hold out in favor of the lectures point to the great interest commanded by such brilliant orators and distinguished men and women as Robert Goldsmith, Marie Van Gastel, Dr. James S. Montgomery, E. E. Violette, D. W. Wassam, John A. Gray and Elizabeth Hunt.

Others call attention to the exceptional entertainment features and say that they are every bit as instructive and beneficial as the lectures themselves.

They point, for instance, to the Davies Light Opera Company of vocal artists which presents the world-famous light opera, Pinafore, with complete cast, music and scenery. An extraordinary production in every way.

They point, too, to the enjoyable features of such a program as that offered by the Emily Waterman Company on the Second Day. This group of winsome ladies has been captivating people all over the circuit, with vocal and instrumental numbers. They give their solos, duets, and trios, brilliantly. Emily Waterman, Reader, is a leading Chautauqua entertainer and fun-maker. She has been at the top of her profession for years.

The Opening Day features Carmeliny's Old Colonial Band of versatile Italian Musicians. Carmeliny, the Director, is a celebrated cornet soloist.

On the Third Day folks hereabouts will have the supreme pleasure of hearing two fine concerts by real artists the Metropolitan Symphony Club, headed by Don C. Abbott, eminent flute virtuoso—in standard selections, classical masterpieces, patriotic numbers, popular airs and a little jazz by way of novelty.

Baldy Strang and Company, in music, impersonations, song, and fun, are here on the Fifth Day. This is called "The best four-person Company in the business." Baldy Strang sings the favorite Scotch Songs, tells quaint and rollicking stories, and his impersonations are a "scream." With him are three fine artists in music, and fun, who run Baldy a mighty close race for honors.

And at the end of the week on the Sixth Day, comes a whole day of such band music and male choral singing as you have seldom heard, Dunbar's White Hussars. These have scored hits in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and all our great cities during seven years of transcontinental tours, holding forth then in all their glory. As a singing band of young men—all Americans—a male chorus, a company of entertainers and comedians, it is the most talked of musical attraction in the country.

The White Hussars' program runs the gamut of music from jazz to Grand Opera and back again, and their many specialty numbers, solos, duets, quartets, ensemble effects, and unusual combinations of instruments, and voices, make their program the musical climax of the week.

Season tickets are $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for children, not including War Tax. Six days—twelve sessions.

By Special Arrangement, the Streets of Walton Will Not be Blocked During the Chautauqua.

DEVONIAN

Serious Trifles

Constipation. You thought at first it did not amount to much. You regarded it as just a "trifle"—paid no attention to it. But one day you woke up to the fact that the "trifle" had become "serious."

Perhaps you had a nervous breakdown, or narrowly escaped one. Or the doctors found High Blood Pressure, maybe Hardening of the Arteries (Arterio Sclerosis). Quite likely, Rheumatic attacks. Whatever it was, more than likely, the one cause back of it all was Constipation.

Constipation is a Serious Trifle. Because it is so easy to neglect it, and the consequences are so serious.

Devonia, the American Medicinal Mineral Water, is "first aid" to bringing the bowels back to natural action.

It is not habit-forming. The bowels do not come to depend upon it, as they do with pills, castor oil, oils, and the like. It loosens the retained food waste which has poisoned your system and removes it gently but thoroughly from the bowels. It gives a healthful stimulus to affected organs and assists them to perform their natural functions. In these ways, it restores health and prolongs life.

Devonia comes to you just as Mother Nature made it in her wonderful laboratory a thousand feet under ground. It is not condensed, added to, or changed in any way. So potent are its virtues that a table-spoonful in a glass of water is usually a sufficient amount to take at one time.

One reason why Devonia is approved by physicians is that it is not a drastic cathartic.

It is to be had at almost every drug store.

SUGGESTION: You who are suffering from Constipation, even in a chronic form, should drink Devonia. If you want to know more about it, and why Constipation is so serious, send for our booklet "Serious Trifles." It tells you what physicians say about Constipation and its serious consequences. It is free.

Take a Table-spoonful of Devonia to a Glassful of water.

Interested in Film Productions to Be Made at Methodist Celebration at Columbus, O.

DR. JAMES E. CROWTHER AND D. W. GRIFFITH.

The support of the motion picture world as represented by D. W. Griffith, well known film producer, was assured the Methodist Centenary Celebration at a conference in Columbus, the celebration being represented by Dr. S. Earl Taylor of New York, Dr. J. E. Crowther of Seattle, Dr. Fred Fisher of New York and Dr. C. F. Reimer of New York.

Mr. Griffith, in addition to promising to make a film of all important features of the Centenary Celebration, strongly urged the use of motion pictures in the advancement of religious work. He spoke strongly of the possibilities of the motion pictures under proper supervision being made to carry a religious message further than any known form of communication.

Dr. S. Earl Taylor, director general of the Centenary Celebration, made the statement that "we want pictures that talk the universal language. I believe the message of peace and good will should be preached to the world through pictures."

"I am glad to know they are going to give motion pictures a practical demonstration at the Centenary Celebration," said Mr. Griffith. "The celebration will give the people in towns and villages a wonderful opportunity to visit the entire world by going no further than Columbus. There will be an extraordinary impression produced by seeing these villages of China, Japan and India, not peopled by amateurish actors, but inhabited by real natives from foreign lands."

"I have been astounded beyond measure at the breadth, extent and scope of the entire scheme as it has been revealed to me by Dr. Taylor, Dr. Crowther, Dr. Reimer and others. I understand the Methodist Church has $140,000,000 and is going to celebrate its success with something more nearly resembling a world fair than anything else to which it can be compared. One would think that a great nation at least is behind the movement. Doubtless, something greater than the greatest nation is behind it—a reawakened ideal and faith inspired to bind up the wounds of a torn and outraged world."

Columbus Can Well Accommodate All Who Attend Methodist Celebration, Officials Say

NO CROWD which has been proposed for the Methodist Centenary Celebration will swamp Columbus, according to Mayor George J. Karb, who has received some inquiries from distant points regarding the ability of the Capital City to take care of the hundreds of thousands of Methodists coming from all over the United States for the Centenary Celebration, June 20 to July 13.

Mayor Karb says: "Columbus has always been equal to any situation. We are not going to fail the exposition crowds, no matter how many thousand there are. Tell them to come to Columbus town. We are ready with open hearts and open doors. Columbus can do it."

James T. Daniels, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, says: "We can easily and satisfactorily accommodate three hundred thousand visitors." Organizing Secretary H. B. Dickson says: "Three hundred thousand my minimum estimate of attendance. Confident Columbus can take care of twice that number."

Collection of Indian Curios at the Methodist Centenary Celebration

WHAT has been pronounced the greatest private collection of Indian curios in America has been loaned to the Methodist Centenary Celebration at Columbus, O., by M.

W. Palm, an Indian trader of Origenville, Minnesota. Mr. Palm is here shown with some of his interesting relics.

Indian exhibitions will have a considerable place in the Celebration. Pueblos will unconcernedly mold pottery before throngs of curious spectators, just as their grandfathers did before the white man invaded their lands. Navajos will weave rugs and St. Regis make basketry—all actually living in their native homes, be they pueblos or wigwags.

NO SEATS RESERVED

First Come, First Served, at Coliseum at Methodist Centenary

At a conference of Director General S. Earl Taylor, Dr. Fred B. Fisher, H. B. Dickson and other members of the Centenary Exposition staff, it was decided that there will be no seats reserved in the Coliseum for "The Wayfarer" pageant presentations at the Methodist Centenary Celebration, Columbus, O., June 20-July 13.

All seats will be available to spectators as soon as the doors of the Coliseum are opened each evening. "It will be a case of 'first come, first served,'" says Mr. Dickson. Season tickets to the exposition grounds admit the bearer once to the pageant in the Coliseum. Single admission fees at the gate require an additional fifty cents for the Coliseum evening feature.

"They do more than please your taste — they satisfy!"

Chesterfields "let you in" on an entirely new kind of cigarette enjoyment.

They not only please your taste, but they do something else besides.

Know what a big, juicy beefsteak does for your hunger?

Well, Chesterfields do exactly the same thing for your smoking. They touch the "smoke-spot." They let you know you're smoking. THEY SATISFY!

The blend does it. And the blend is the manufacturer's secret. Unlike a patent, it cannot be copied or even closely imitated.

If you want a smoke that really "satisfies" — ask for "Chesterfields."

CAUGHT A BIG FISH.
Mrs. Elsie Switzer, of Brooklyn, was fishing in Kentucky river last Friday when he got a nibble that felt as if she had caught a whale. SOME FINE CLOVER.
County Attorney John A. Moore, besides knowing how to get after evildoers in an effective way, is not behind the times when it comes to farming. He brought to this office Tuesday a stalk of sweet clover, ten feet in length and of herculean size. John intimated that he had some clover even bigger than that out on his farm near town.—Crittenden Record Press.

FREAK OF NATURE.
James Wilmoth, of near Stephentown, has a mare which gave birth recently to twin colts, one being a mule and the other a horse colt. This report is vouched for by C. E. Dutchke, of Cecilia, who saw the twins and by Deputy Tax Commissioner Samuel Spices, of Howe Valley. Dr. C. L. Smith, the veterinary of this city, informs us that there are a number of similar births on record in veterinary surgery.—Elizabethtown Mirror.

President Wilson is without power to lift the war-time prohibition law, without action by Congress, according to a statement issued by the White House, but he promises to declare the law inoperative as soon as demobilization of the army has been completed, which probably will be within six or eight weeks. The decision was made on advice of Attorney General Palmer that the signing of the treaty of peace does not render the law ineffective and that the President must wait until all soldiers called out by the war emergency are mustered out.

Why you should use Cardui, the woman's tonic, for your troubles, have been shown in thousands of letters from actual users of this medicine, who speak from personal experience. If the results obtained by other women for so many years have been so uniformly good, why not give Cardui a trial?

MOST BEAUTIFUL FINE CAR OFFERING OF THE SEASON

The Chandler of the past has had splendid bodies, but the new Chandler Touring Car even surpasses its immediate forerunner in beauty of line, in bigness, in comfort of its cushioning in the nicety of its custom-like workmanship and in its lustrous finish. The new Chandler Touring Car is a big car. Its high hood and radiator, its broad cowl, its wide and deep doors give it distinctive appearance.

And It RIDES—It Rides Like A Dream

Nothing has been cut out to permit the delivery of this fine big touring car at the Chandler price. Indeed, many little details of nicety are added. The back curtain window is beveled plate glass. The clear-vision side curtains fit snugly and open with the doors. There are detachable rear quarter-bow curtains. There are outside door handles.

Features which have been standard Chandler qualities in the past are continued. The cushions are upholstered in genuine hand-buffed plaited leather. The front compartment floor boards are covered with heavy gray linoleum, aluminum-bound. The two comfortable auxiliary chairs fold away, entirely concealed when not in use.

Carrying This Handsome Body is the Famous Chandler Chassis

You will choose the new Chandler Touring for its bigness and its comfort and its handsome dignity. But you will choose it, too, for its mechanical excellence. Fifty thousand Chandler owners know, better than we can tell you, what a good car the Chandler is. The famous Chandler motor and the sturdy excellence of the whole chassis make the Chandler notable among fine cars.

Must Be Sold at The Old Price.

Frankfort, July 14.—Book dealers must dispose of readopted books in their hands at the old price, the Department of Education has ruled. Under the contract made for textbooks in 1914 dealers received 15 per cent commission, which was added to the net contract price in retailing them. Under the Act of 1918 they are to receive 20 per cent. Thousands of books were left in the dealers' hands on account of the influenza epidemic last fall, and more than half were readopted for another five years by the Textbook Commission. These books have the retail price stamped on the cover.

It was a question whether they should be sent back to the publishers or sold at the higher price regardless of the stamp, and it was decided the dealers must be content with 15 per cent. on their present stock, unless the publishers allow them more; but the books in the possession must be stamped with the new price before being sent out.

Resolutions of Respect.

Resolutions of Gunpowder Baptist church on the death of our beloved brother, Robert William Ryle, who ceased to walk this life April—1919.

Whereas, death in a mysterious manner has called from birth on high, therefore be it

Resolved, That this church holds in loving remembrance his father, his church and to his Lord and Master.

Resolved, That in his death this church has lost a good and faithful member; his parents a kind and devoted son; the community, a good citizen.

Resolved, That while we must bow in submission, we keenly feel our loss, seeing he was accompanied with such cheerfulness and sweet temper, which can only be had by serving the Lord, and pray that God will raise up some one to fill his place in our church which he loved so well.

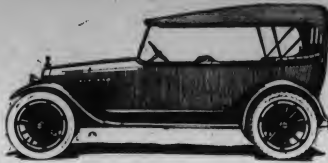

Resolved, That we tender heart felt sympathy to his parents and brother, praying God's blessing upon them.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this church, a copy be presented to the family, and a copy be sent to each the Boone County Recorder and the Western Recorder for publication.

ELIJAH STEPHENS.

You are missing something when you do not take time to investigate the Chalmers.

For years the Chalmers five-passenger touring has been one of America's most popular cars. Season after season, beginning with the famous Chalmers "30" this standard Touring Car has increased its circle of friends.

A careful inspection of this will show the reason for its popularity. You will find all the qualities which go to make a modern touring car, and when you look under the hood, you will see the first motor to make high power out of low-grade gasoline.

Upward and Onward at Once.

With the coming of the huge dirigible, the R-34, from across the ocean comes also direction to Congress to provide the United States with an air navy which will be second to none in the world. The young-wise economist who now proposes to reduce the appropriations for the aviation department is a distant menace to the national defense and an obstruction to progress in the science whose foundations were laid here in Ohio.

The commander of the Llvathan of the upper deep told admiring visitors that at home in England a much larger and more powerful craft was being built, rendering the succeeding voyages safer, swifter and more certain. From Germany comes the request from the nephew of the famous Count Zeppelin for permission to bring across the latest balloon built by that authority before his death.

One with even less than the ordinary insight must perceive a revolution is going forward in the domain of air transportation and that, unless our inventors, and what is more important, our government, is kept in stride and apace with the rapidly forming improvements, this country will be left at a disadvantage instead of maintaining a deserved lead.

History records the foolish words of the booby who fought the introduction of the steam railroad. Let not a new chapter be written of the expressions and deeds of modern numbskulls seeking the bubble reputation of watchdogs of the Treasury. Not long and wearying discussions, but only airships, is the slogan of the hour.

Looking for a Game of ball

Some of the Big Bone base ball boys were in Burlington last Sunday evening trying to get dates with a Burlington team for a game. The Big Bone team has taken the scalps of all comers this season with ease and believe they can keep up their winning streak with any aggregation in the county. I was suggested that they call on Petersburg for a game as the team there has been going fine this year and has cleaned up on every team it has tackled.

PRODUCTIVE OIL WELL.

Lexington, July 11.—The Swiss Oil Corporation, which has offices in this city, and of which J. Fred Miles is General Manager, has brought in the most productive oil well in the county on the Jake Moulder farm in Warren county, on the Barren River, 20 miles from Bowling Green. The well is estimated by persons who have seen it flowing into an earthen tank and overflowing that into a dammed up ravine, to be good for more than 4,000 barrels per day. The property was purchased last month by the company from Ohio and Indiana parties.

NEGRO SHOOTS OFFICER.

Marion, July 11.—Deputy sheriff George Manly was shot and probably fatally injured early today by Buck Markey, a negro. Markey was accused of having cut George Yates. When a number of officials went to Markey's house to arrest him the negro opened fire before the officials could enter the house.

School Notes.

These notes, although short, are the most important and vital to our schools for this school year. Any successful business is well planned before the execution of the same. Now is the planning time for the pupils, patrons, trustees, teachers and Superintendent. Our greatest plan is to make up this session what was lost during last session by reason of the "flu," consequently we are to have an eight months term throughout the county, and we should like to have the schools in districts where roads and streams are had to commence as soon as possible so the pupils may get an excellent start before bad weather, roads and streams prevent their attending.

Our Institute will speak of the assembly as "ours" and speak advisedly. We will bear the expense, receive the pain or pleasure it affords, and what we want it to be it will be. It will be a pleasure and a benefit to each one who determines to make it such. We have secured one of the best instructors to be had—a man who took his degree for History and Education course from Oxford, England. It will be a treat to be associated with this scholar and high classed gentleman for a week.

The Institute will be held at Burlington, beginning August 4th and will be the same week as the Burlington Chautauqua. So persons may attend both without any additional expense since the Chautauqua's expenses are met by donations.

We designate Wednesday as Community Day, and invite all citizens to spend this day or part of same with us. The Common School Commencement will be held on the afternoon of this day, viz., Wednesday, August 6th. All persons who are directly or indirectly interested in this program will make their arrangements to be on hand and have their duties well performed by 2 p. m., August 6th.

I shall be very glad to have any graduate who is willing to take any part in the program to spend this day or part of it with me of the part he or she may have and we will arrange the program accordingly. I ask the teachers to assist their respective pupils in making arrangements.

We are arranging some special numbers on the program of the Institute. We do not care to announce them until they are arranged. Wait until a later date.

J. C. GORDON,
Superintendent.

Tributes of Respect.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our brother Jas. Harvey Walton, who departed this life May 26th, 1919, therefore be it resolved,

That in the death of Bro. Walton, the church at Point Pleasant has lost a faithful member, one who endeavored to walk in the paths of righteousness and the steps of his master; the community, also, as well as his family and friends have suffered a great loss.

That we the members of Point Pleasant Christian church, extend our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved sons and brother, and commend them to Him who never forsakes them, who put their trust in Him.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Boone Co. Recorder for publication and one be spread upon the records of Pt. Pleasant Christian ch. Ch.

Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves some on Rubber Tires and Tire Wires, I am glad to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubbe Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set; Cooper's Peerless, the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the tire all the time, therefore, causing the wire to break through the tire and sluff off.

My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel and tire without without disking and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wage on maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker and devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me where you will get first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

Prices low effect May 1, 1919, and will remain in effect until further notice.

EASY TO COMBAT GARDEN INSECTS

Gardener Must Adopt Remedies
Designed to Control Annual Horde of Pests.

CONTROL COLORADO BEETLE

It Feeds Readily on Poisoned Foliage and Well Known Treatments of Spraying Should Be Known to Potato Growers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

From the time the earliest seed is put into the ground to the harvesting of the last crop, every home vegetable garden may be expected to suffer from the attacks of the army of insects pests which annually creep from their winter quarters, hungry from their long fast, to fatten on the carefully nurtured seedlings, riddle the grown plants, and multiply to countless thousands during the days of mid-summer. The careful and far-sighted gardener may most readily demonstrate his skill through the adoption and correct application of the remedies best designed to control this horde.

Colorado Potato Beetle.

Wherever a small plot of potatoes is grown, the Colorado potato beetle is likely to be found. The mature or "hard-shed" beetles which have spent the winter safely buried in the ground, begin to come out about the time when the plants are a few inches high. First they hungrily devour a part of the young and tender foliage, after which they begin to deposit, on the undersides of the leaves, their clusters of orange-colored eggs, of which a thousand or more may be laid by a single female. Effective work may be done at this time by hand-picking the beetles from the plants into a can of water, with a little kerosene over the surface. The eggs may be crushed between the thumb and finger.

Care at this stage will prevent the appearance of the fat, shiny red larvae or "slugs," which are much more destructive than the beetles, frequently stripping the plant entirely if left without attention. When first hatched, these feed in groups, but as they grow larger, they spread over the plant. When growth is completed, they descend to the ground, into which they burrow to a depth of sixeral inches. When in the course of a few days they again emerge, they have taken the form of parent beetles.

Means of Control.

The Colorado potato beetle is one of the pests most easily controlled. It feeds readily on poisoned foliage, and the well-known treatments of spraying or dusting with arsenate of lead or paris green should be familiar to every grower. The spray mixture may be prepared in small quantities by mixing two-thirds of an ounce, or ten level teaspoonfuls of powdered arsenate of lead with a gallon of water. This should be applied with a sprayer capable of throwing a fine, misty spray. A good time will do effective work on a small scale, at a cost of a dollar or less. The upper surfaces of the leaves should be well covered by the spray. A simple method of dusting is to mix thoroughly the same quantity of powdered arsenate of lead or a heaping teaspoonful of paris green with a quart of air-slaked lime or lime plaster. Dust this over the plants by shaking through a cheesecloth bag.

RIGHT PLACE FOR MATERIAL

Not Advisable to Keep All Sizes of Bolts and Screws in Single Receptacle.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Tools and materials should be kept in their proper places. Do not keep all sizes of bolts or screws mixed together in a single receptacle, but fit up suitable boxes or bins, so that the supplies may be accessible on short notice.

Hay While Moon Shines.

Making hay while the moon shines is a sensible policy on days when it is too hot for such strenuous work as hay-making. Taking for granted, of course, that there is a moon.

LIVE STOCK

SELECT HOGS FOR BREEDING

Mis mating Will Not Only Give Unsatisfactory Results, but Likely to Discourage Beginner.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Influence of the sow upon the offspring is just as great as that of the male. Mis mating or a poor sow will not only give unsatisfactory results in breeding, but it will likely discourage the beginning breeder. This latter fact would be especially true of a youth carrying on a home project with swine. If possible, secure a pure-bred animal of good strain. The forehead should be broad, the throat clean and trim, the neck moderately thick, the shoulders smooth and deep, the back wide and straight, the chest wide and deep, sides straight and deep, the body long and euphonic, pelvic region broad and well developed, legs straight and moderately short, and a generally refined appearance; yet over refinement may indicate a delicate constitution.

If a number of brood sows are to be used they should be uniform in type. This is necessary to secure a uniformity of pigs. It is very unsatisfactory and unprofitable in breeding to have litters of pigs varying in appearance and lacking uniformity. To insure a uniform result it is advisable to select from a well-established strain of hogs.

As was indicated in the case of the sow, both parents have practically the same influence on the quality of the offspring; however, the male has the greater influence on the entire herd. Since every pig is sired by the male, whereas all pigs do not have the same dam.

While too much stress cannot be placed on the importance of the sow, if possible the male should be superior to the sow. Regardless of the type of the sow, a poor male should never be used.

Secure a pure-bred animal of a good strain. The masculine characteristics should be strongly developed, especially in the head and neck; the back should be broad, straight and deeply fleshed; sides deep and long; quarters well developed; legs straight and strong. The animal should stand well on all four feet.

Overfed sows should be mated to rithing masculine males, and coarse sows should be mated to males of high quality indicated by fine bone, skin and hair.

IS HOG WALLOW DANGEROUS?

If Concrete Structures Are Built and Kept Clean, They Have Advantages.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some farmers favor hog wallows; others are strongly opposed to them. Filthy hog wallows are a source of danger. Hogs wallowing in or drinking contaminated water are likely to contract disease. However, there are many advantages to be derived from wallows. A cool bath is very cooling to a hog during the hot weather. It cleans the scurf from the skin and protects the hogs from flies. Crude petroleum, sufficient to form a thin layer on top of the water, may be poured into the wallow about every ten days. This will tend to keep the hogs free from lice and other skin parasites. If the skin becomes irritated from the oil, its use should be discontinued. Small quantities of canker dip are sometimes added to the water in hog wallows, but there is an element of danger in this practice, as poisoning may result from the absorption of phenol by hogs which lie in the wallow more or less continually.

On some of the larger hog farms wallows are becoming popular. The cement hog wallow should be located in a shady place and made so as to dip into it from a height of ten feet or more. A two-inch drain pipe, as recommended for the dipping vat, should be placed in the bottom of the wallow to permit its being cleaned out.

In many cases a farmer is not financially able to build a hog wallow or a dipping vat. If this be the case, a dip, properly diluted, can be applied with a spray pump or sprinkling can, or else rubbed on every part of the body by means of a brush or a swab of cotton waste.

Another method of controlling lice is to use gummy sacks or similar coarse cloths around a post at a proper height, so that the hogs may rub against them, and saturate the sacks frequently with crude petroleum.

FARM ANIMALS

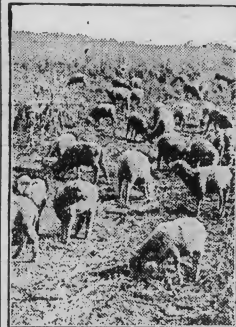

FEED SHEEP IN CORNFIELDS

Practice Has Proved Satisfactory in Saving Considerable Labor in Many States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ordinarily the management of the farm flock of sheep calls for comparatively small demands upon farm labor. The labor cost per dollar's worth of wool or lamb is lower than for any other farm animal product. Yet, while sheep raising does not necessitate expensive equipment or heavy labor, it does require study and continuous attention. However, the effects of the reduced supply of available farm labor, brought about by the drain upon it by the army and war industries, may be counteracted in part by the adoption, where possible, of one or more of the following suggestions:

Some labor can be saved on the stock farm by a more general adoption of the practice of feeding sheep in cornfields. This practice has proved very satisfactory in many states. It, of course, necessitates purchases in the fall and marketing in December or January, and is, therefore, adaptable on a large scale only to such farms or sections as are in a position to make a practice of speculative feeding of live stock, as few farms at present raise a sufficient number of lambs to harvest the grain from a large acreage of corn.

A larger use of forage crops for fattening meat stock can be adopted with a saving of labor. This plan permits the putting on of large gains with crops which are harvested entirely by the animals themselves.

In many sections fall-sown wheat and rye can be grazed by sheep, thereby making a great saving in winter feed as well as in the labor of feeding. In sections such as Tennessee this practice has become very general, and is found to work exceedingly well in the production of winter wheat.

Self-feeders for the feeding of hay to fatten sheep and lambs can be used to good advantage. Although their use in the feeding of grain to sheep and lambs.

In range sections considerable winter labor can be economized and greater safety secured by the distribution of supplies of feed to strategic points on the winter range. Corn, cottonseed cake, or velvet beans can be stored in metal granaries at points which will permit of their ready distribution to the stock in case of storms, which commonly make it impossible to get feed to the stock from the nearest railroad points. In the event of a very open winter this feed may deteriorate during the following summer. In most sections, however, the waste is sufficiently small to allow it to remain in storage for use in good condition during the second winter.

In the past, injury has been done by advocating sheep raising on lands where little or no labor or attention is needed and farms are thereby cleaned of weeds. So far as their appetite for weeds is concerned, sheep may be regarded to some extent as scavengers. They will eat most weeds and on any farm will reduce greatly the amount of land labor needed to hold weeds in check on the areas of pasture and grain crops. It is a mistake, however, to advocate the raising of sheep where the main interest is in weed control.

While the labor required for sheep production is continuous, it is not heavy, and if properly supervised can well be performed by boys or aged men incapable of other kinds of farm labor, and by girls and women. Sheep management can be learned and understood and the labor performed by anyone who is willing to observe carefully and think and attend to the details as attention is required.

It must be understood, however, that sheep raising should not be engaged in with an idea that little attention is required. The wants of sheep are numerous and varied, and frequent attention is required to forestall conditions that will result in ill health or lack of thrift. At lambing time frequent attendance day and night is necessary to avoid losses of ewes and young lambs.

Kentucky Crops.

In Garrard county tobacco looks fine but the wheat crop was a great disappointment.

Metcalfe county has a very fine crop of corn and a large acreage of tobacco has been planted.

In Montgomery county the wheat crop was damaged badly by the rains at harvest time. The heads are not filled well.

In Ohio county wheat will make over an average yield. An average crop of tobacco has been set and it looks fine.

Jessamine county had a fairly good crop of wheat but the heads were not filled as they should have been. Corn looks well but the acreage is not so large as last year.

In Woodford county farmers are on the look out for hogs to eat their damaged wheat out of which they expect to make good money.

Todd county wheat is not yielding as expected. The tobacco crop is especially fine.

The yield and quality of wheat in Bourbon county is poor, the yield being from ten to 15 bushels per acre. The million bushel yield expected is reduced about 50 percent in yield and 80 percent in quality.

The prospect for a fine crop of corn was never as fine as now in Fayette county, where wheat was damaged considerably by unfavorable weather the last three months before harvest.

Residence Struck by Lightning

A keen clap of thunder disturbed the slumbers of A. C. Porter during the storm on the night of the 9th inst., and he hurried out of bed to see if his barn had been hit by lightning, and he was surprised upon entering a room to find his residence on fire. The fire was burning. The blaze was in its incipient stage and was soon extinguished. Mr. Porter did not do any more sleeping that night.

But few people realize the great decline there has been in orchards within the past few years. Yet this may be readily noted when we see the two and one-half million barrels short, and unless new orchards are put out in larger areas in the future, than have been in the recent past, the people of the nation will suffer from scarcity of fruit. Each and every farmer should plant a young orchard and put out a supply of vines and small fruit trees.

Overdoing War Investigation.

Criticism of the conduct of the war is to be expected. Lack of it would be contrary to good government. Much is done during the stress and strain of hostilities that is censurable, and it is the opportunity for the rogue and the rascal to reap illicit rewards.

It is, however, asking too much of the credulity of the American people to accuse the chairman of the Congressional Committee on the U. S. was governed by a secret cabal or junta during the period of the war. The seven citizens whom he names were in effect conspirators against constitutional government, the chief offender over them all being the President of the United States.

If it is the purpose of the Congress, which happens to be the Chairman of the Special Investigating Committee of the House of Representatives, to paint a hideous picture of maladministration, he will, perhaps, pardon the suggestion that a spreading of rumors is too thickly and without tempering them. Nothing may be expected from this process but a series of false alarms, clapped on without coherent thought and with the design only to create a painful impression.—Enquirer.

Hog Lice Common Pests

Lice are common pests among hogs and the farmer should frequently examine his hogs about the ears, flanks and inside of the legs to see if they are infested and if there is evidence of them vigorous and persistent treatment is required to eradicate them. They may be readily seen traveling along the bristles, particularly in the parts just mentioned. You will find small, white oval bodies attached to the hog, these are the eggs of "nits," and "dipping" does not as a rule destroy the vitality of these eggs, and so hogs should be dipped frequently to destroy the lice that hatch out of these eggs after the previous dipping and not allow them to lay eggs.

Lice are blood-sucking parasites, and by biting the hog and sucking the blood they cause a great deal of skin irritation. Furthermore, they act as a drain on the vitality of the hog, through the loss of blood, which they extract. When lousy the hog is usually rest less and rubs on posts and other convenient objects. The coat is rough and harsh. This pest is transmitted from one animal to another by direct contact with infected bedding quarters.

WOMEN IN MEN'S PLACES.

To a degree far greater than was ever found necessary in this country, Great Britain depended upon the labor of women in the prosecution of the war. In raising its army it was forced to draw so heavily upon its man-power that only by recruiting female workers was it capable of meeting the national emergency. With the signing of the armistice and the pressing need of returning to a peace basis, in this huge body of women war workers the government has on its hands a problem that enormously increases its difficulties. Many women naturally will drop out of the wage-earner class, now that the crisis is past, and resume their former status. But there are hundreds of thousands of women who, after receiving good pay in munitions plants and other establishments, are neither ready nor willing to surrender the economic advantages they have gained. In the labor situation in Great Britain, as all over Europe, there enters an important new factor. The war has cost the country the lives of nearly 700,000 soldiers—men from every trade, calling and station in life. Hundreds of thousands more have been incapacitated by wounds or undermined in health. In any circumstances, out of the war there must follow a new and far-reaching redistribution of the opportunities to work and gain a livelihood.

There is no ship in the United States navy for which the people of the country feel a livelier affection than the old battleship Oregon. And in offering this famous craft to the state for which it was named, "to be preserved for historical purposes, without expense to the navy," the government only partly meets the wishes of the nation. Would it not have been better for the government itself to have provided for the preservation of the fine old relic, rather than to have left this responsibility to a single state? The Oregon belongs to the country, and the country would have been glad to pay the costs of her preservation.

The flight to the Azores makes secondary all further problems in establishing transoceanic air navigation. The work now resolves itself into the execution of details on proved lines. Columbus was followed quickly by scores of navigators who had no difficulty in reaching the West Indies as soon as he had swept the fear of death from the path. So there will be transoceanic flights without much delay, now that intrepid Americans have shown the way. There is reason to expect more or less regular transportation by the aerial route on account of the great saving of time.

A league of women voters of the country is to be organized at St. Louis, which league is to be non-partisan, unsectarian and nonmilitant. This league can make itself felt as a power in politics, as it will work for its special ends in urging, protecting and advancing the political and social advantages of women generally, regardless of parties, men or measures. The women composing the league will have their minds made up, and everybody knows what the old proverb says about a woman's will.

The European brides are arriving, some thousand or more having come already. And they can cook and sew, and they do not waste their time. It looks very much as if they are married to stay married. The home-making girl will not be permitted to make a getaway by any man who has sense enough to come in out of the rain.

The cleering prospect that a man is not likely to be imprisoned for forty years for non-peeling of potatoes or shot for lingering at the bedside of a sick child is apt to help considerably in the building of a real American army, with no use for Hun principles.

The straw which broke the camel's back takes on a novel and highly humorous aspect in the plea of a woman for divorce because her husband won't give her car fare to and from the work by which she supports him and the family.

The fact that air travel promises to be placed on a practical commercial footing in the near future does not prevent a strong interest in the work of keeping the old-fashioned locomotive in active and reliable service.

All those transatlantic flyers had to fear was falling into the ocean, but when Christopher Columbus sailed his crew had to suffer the fear that they might fall off the earth.

The old-time man who used to give as much as he possibly could for a nickel now has a son in business who gives as little as he possibly can for a dollar.

"Russia would like to have an understanding," says a headline, and heaven knows there's nothing Russia needs so badly.

BLUBBER A DELICIOUS VIANDT

Said to Be of Immensely Pleasant Taste, When Eaten Raw From the Seal.

It has always been a mystery to me why the word "blubber" should carry such a disagreeable connotation to millions of people, though not one in a million has ever tasted it, writes Vilhjalmur Stefansson in Harper's.

I am often asked what seal meat tastes like and am driven to saying that it tastes like seal meat, for it does not resemble any commonly known type of meat. But neither does mutton resemble any meat known to me, and still mutton is good eating, and so is seal. But the fat is much easier to describe. When the blubber is eaten raw, as we commonly eat it by preference, it has a flavor very similar to that of fresh cow's cream, but when boiled it closely resembles the fat of mutton. For that reason Mr. Wilkins, who came from the sheep district of Australia, was the member of our whole expedition who most readily fell into the eating of the seal fat.

In general most men refrain from "tasting" blubber because it is named blubber, until they become so fond of trying it, and when they try it, to their surprise they invariably find it so delicious that, if not restrained, they overeat and, as is well known, overeating any form of fat causes nausea and other distressing symptoms. After one or two experiences of this sort I am now careful never to allow a man to eat all the blubber he wants the first time he tries it, for if he gets sick he is almost certain to blame the seal and not his own gluttony.

NEED NOT TRANSFER GERMS

Disease Will Not Be Transmitted If Soiled Hands Are Kept Away From Mouth.

It is glaringly obvious that the biting of finger nails, the moistening of fingers in turning the pages of a book, and similar half-conscious acts greatly increase the opportunities for planting undesirable germs where they can multiply," says the Journal of the American Medical Association. "On the fingers they may be harmless; transferred to the mouth they have a wide field for development.

"The soiling of the hands is impossible to avoid altogether, but the swallowing of germs from one's own soiled hands is largely under individual control.

"It may fairly be assumed that the most useful safeguards against this form of disease transmission are to be found in such practices as hand washing and in refraining from using the tongue or the lips as a moistening pad, rather than in hysterical attempts at avoidance of all hand contamination. Children are best protected through the inculcation of similar desirable habits at an early age. In a word, some degree of hand-contamination is unavoidable; but the transference of the contaminating germs to the mouth is largely under individual control and is subject to the powerful influence of early-formed habit."

First in the Field.

The mild surprise which one occasionally notes the name of a foreign city on a penny box of matches purchased in the United States may before long include boxes of matches bearing the far-away name of Dalren, Manchuria. The world's appetite for matches is apparently insatiable. An American company has been studying Manchuria and Siberia from the manufacturing point of view, but so has a large Japanese concern, and this concern, it now seems, will be first in the field at Dalren, the chief Manchurian port. But then if Japan were not first in the field in Manchuria, where would she be first in the field?

"Everything went wrong," grumbled Blank.

"Did she protest against hurting the fish?"

"No. She said she was sure they were perfectly happy, because they were all wagging their tails."—London Tit-Bits.

We attended a country wedding and at the conclusion of the ceremony were astonished to see the bride start up the honeymoon alone. When asked the reason the bridegroom explained that both couldn't be away at the same time as there would be no one to feed the stock and he would take his trip down the river shooting ducks while the bride came back.—Chicago Tribune.

MAKING SUCCESS IN HOME GARDEN

Much Depends Upon Interest of Gardener Being Maintained Throughout Season.

WAGE FIGHT AGAINST PESTS

Man Must Make Continuous Fight From Start, Never Shirking Duty and Keeping Everlastingly on Job—Easy to Kill Weeds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The ultimate success of a home garden depends largely upon the interest of the gardener being maintained throughout the season. Many persons have gotten the idea that when the garden is planted and cultivated two or three times the work has ended, and as a result the garden soon goes to weeds or is destroyed by insects and diseases. The successful gardener, declares the specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is the one who wages a continuous fight against the enemies of the garden from the very start, never shirking his duty and being everlastingly on the job.

A crop of weeds can be destroyed in a few moments by means of a steel rake or a hoe, if it is used when the weeds are just coming through the ground. If allowed to remain, the weeds become firmly rooted and a thorough renovation of the garden is necessary to rid it of them.

Seem Innocent, but They're Not. A few old-fashioned hardshell potato bugs may not appear to do any great harm, but the crop of soft-shelled beetles they produce will eat the leaves from the potato vines almost before you know they are present. A few spores of some mildew, or other disease may not do any great amount of damage, but if the weather is favorable for the spread of the disease, it will soon cause the loss of the entire crop.

The old adage of "A stitch in time saves nine" applies with double force to the care of the garden. Keep up interest in the garden and make successive plantings of various crops, so that a continuous supply of vegetables may be provided for the table. There is nothing gained by having the land lie idle, and it is easier to keep it clean if there is a paying crop upon it.

"Seedy" Gardens Show Neglect. Too often gardens with a "seedy" appearance are seen in the middle of the summer. The brush on which the peas were grown or the wire trellis on which the vines were trained is left on the remains of the crop upon it, and general unsightliness rules the entire plot. It is a little more trouble to keep things neat and attractive, but it pays in the long run; and if you as a gardener want to maintain a reputation for a good garden, the necessary attention will have to be given to its neatness and general appearance.

In sections where the weather becomes extremely hot in summer and it is not possible to keep garden crops growing, the land should be cleaned, replowed and left stirred from time to time until conditions are suitable for the planting of fall vegetables. Under ordinary conditions it is best to have some crop growing on the soil, and if the period between the early spring vegetables and the fall vegetables is sufficient, a crop of cowpeas will be grown upon the garden land. This will shade the soil and prevent the sun burning the organic matter out of it, and at the same time will actually add fertility to the soil.

PARTIAL SHADE FOR BERRIES

This Sometimes Can Be Provided by Planting Between Fruit Trees in Orchard.

Currants and gooseberries commonly do better, especially in the southern limits of their range, if grown where there is partial shade. This sometimes can be provided by planting them between fruit trees. Raspberries and blackberries are sometimes planted between trees; but the practice is not advisable unless the soil is naturally moist and fertile.

Three Reasons Why We Oppose the Nomination of Judge Carroll for Governor

(An Editorial from The Elizabethtown Mirror.)

First. In the dearest fight ever waged on a Democratic candidate for Governor in Kentucky, Judge Carroll, it is alleged, scratched the ticket and refused to vote for William Goebel in that election.

Goebel was the author of the Anti-Lottery Law; of the Franchise Tax Law, whereby the great corporations were compelled to contribute in a just and equitable manner to the support of the State; he began the movement that finally resulted in the creation of the State Railroad Commission with power to regulate freight rates, etc.; he advocated the passage of the Fellow Servant Law and the Employers Liability Law, and was the pioneer in school book legislation.

And it was William Goebel, the implacable foe of corporate greed and the untiring friend of popular rights, that Judge Carroll refused to support for Governor.

Second. In his refusal to sit in the recent School Book case—the most important litigation of recent years before the Court of Appeals, and in which every child and school patron in Kentucky had a direct interest—Judge Carroll openly shirked the duties of his office as Chief Justice, thereby permitting a "hung jury" in the Court and delaying the opening of the schools, while drawing his salary as a Judge and "pussyfooting" over the State in a futile effort to win the gubernatorial nomination.

On the other hand, Governor Carroll, in his own campaign, stayed on the job at Frankfort, and prevented a re-election, by the Stanley Book Commission, of the objectionable school books, and gave to fair-minded Kentuckians evidence of the conscientious discharge of his official duties.

Is Carroll a conscientious Judge or merely an expedient candidate?

Third. The gratuitous monetary aid which Eli H. Brown, Jr., is lending Judge Carroll in meeting the latter's campaign expenses, is one of the alarming exposures of the last few days. Eli H. Brown, Jr., has been a prominent figure in some unsavory transactions in Kentucky political history, only recently having been "probed out" of a lucrative position by the Kentucky Legislature in a "house cleaning" crusade, because his $3,000 job carried with it no duties except that of holding out an itching palm for the pay envelope. Eli H. Brown, Jr., received several thousand dollars from the compromise of the Kentucky Inheritance Tax suit, and which settlement, it is charged, in a suit recently instituted to open said case, fraudulently deprived Kentucky of several hundred thousand dollars. Eli H. Brown, Jr., is the reputed law partner of M. M. Logan, Judge Carroll's campaign manager, and the latter only recently, we are informed, made a strenuous effort to have the Lexington Inheritance Tax case compromised for a sum claimed to be many hundred thousands of dollars less than the amount due the State. It was during the incumbency of M. M. Logan as Attorney General that the Harkness case was settled as infamous.

With Judge Carroll's candidacy having the support of Eli H. Brown, Jr., Henry Hines, Billy Klair and others of their kind, it seems to us that if there is any house cleaning needed in Kentucky, it ought to start in the Carroll campaign headquarters.

There are still other reasons why we oppose the nomination of Judge Carroll, among which is the fact, HE CAN NOT WIN IN NOVEMBER.

Our vote shall be for BLACK AND DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS IN NOVEMBER.

People passing thru the court-house yard early Tuesday morning were astonished to find a most little monument and a grave with many flowers on it. An inspection showed that it was sacred to the memory of John Barclay, who died June 30th, 1918. It was the work of C. A. Mitchem, a monument artist of this city, and the humor of the thing caught the people who passed by. A few of the "old boys" who were well acquainted with the deceased dropped a few tears on the grave, and if there are any fresh flowers there in the morning they will come from old John's friends. —Elizabethtown News.

Miss Alice Hawkins, who lives in the Millville neighborhood in Woodford county, is a successful bee keeper and gathered quite a crop of honey this season. Having disposed of the major portion, she placed about a hundred pounds in a room upon the end of the back porch of her home, locking the door and securing the windows. Noticing a lot of bees collected about the door of the room a few days later she went to investigate and found they had carried off nearly all the honey. Being curious to know how they had effected an entrance, she watched and discovered them creeping through the keyhole in the door. —Frankfort State Journal.

Mr. Upton is a living example of the fact that an honorable living can be made from any honest calling if followed with industry and intelligence, and is the owner of a comfortable little home which he paid for almost entirely with money secured from the sale of frogs. —Franklin Favorite.

Walton streets are in a very disagreeable state owing to the tearing up of the concrete for the laying of the concrete. The work is expected to be started this week and then matters will be hurried to a conclusion as a large force of hands will be put on the work, and the concrete work will be under the management of Benj. Vantine of Covington, who has the reputation of doing things quick and well, and here is a great opportunity to give a much desired demonstration, for the people have become worried by the long and trying condition of the street improvement, which the Contractor C. E. Harris could not well avoid as he has had his troubles in getting material and proper labor.

Revival services began at the Walton Baptist church last Sunday and will continue until August 3rd. Services are held every afternoon at 8:30 and each evening at 8:30. Rev. R. L. did soloist. He will be assisted by Mrs. Hughes, who is also a gifted musician. Large congregations are anticipated at the meetings. Rev. Shirley is well known in Grant county where he was formerly the pastor of the churches at Dry Ridge and Crittenden. He is popular as a pastor evangelist, and has already received ten invitations for meetings this year.

The promoters of the Walton Tobacco Warehouse Co., met in Walton a few days since at the Walton Bank & Trust Co., building and awarded the contract for the construction of a 190x200 foot building to J. N. Robbins, of Dayton, this State. There were four other bidders.

The stipulation is that the contractor will have the building completed to receive its interior equipment and ready for the sale of tobacco at the opening of the season. The building will be electric lighted, have computing scales, all modern equipment and hydraulic presses. It will be located just south of the Walton Lumber Co. and a spur of the L. & N. railroad track will be built alongside the warehouse to facilitate shipping. The management promises the growers all the conveniences of an up-to-date warehouse and anticipate doing a big business the coming season.

The following is a list of its officials: R. C. Green, president; J. F. Cleek, vice-president; A. R. Johnson, secretary-treasurer; J. R. Conrad, manager, and C. W. Ransler, assistant manager and cashier.

There was a big meeting of delegates at Walton last Wednesday, from the counties of Jefferson, Oldham, Trimble, Carroll and Gallatin, through which the proposed Federal Highway is to pass if the measure is carried to a successful issue, the meeting being held to arrange for the raising of funds sufficient and to determine the route of the highway. The roadway is to be made one of the best that can be built, starting from Louisville and passing thru the beautiful river bottoms of the counties above mentioned, and intersecting the Dixie Highway at Richwood, thus directly connecting the two great cities of Louisville and Cincinnati. The state of Kentucky is to put up one half of the cost and the U. S. Government agrees to put up one fourth of the cost if the citizens along the Federal Highway proposed and in the counties thru which it is to pass, will pay the other one half. One engineer estimated that the part to be raised by the people will approximate $7,000 per mile. The delegates held a session of several hours and formulated plans to be put into practical shape at a meeting to be held at Bedford, Trimble county, Wednesday, July 23rd. There is some contest in Boone county over the route through the county, one faction wanting it to come over the South Fork hill to Beaver Lick and to Richwood, while the other desires it to come via Concord in Gallatin-co., and pass through Verona, and from there to Walton, intersecting the Dixie Highway.

It appears that a vast amount of blackberries are bound to go to waste this year, and it is a great pity that the poor people who need them so badly can not secure them. Depredations in the past by berry pickers and hunters have caused the farmers to place the ban on all nonresident pickers, and the parties who would be perfectly harmless on a farmers premises are classed with those who will carry off anything they can get hold of and who are made to hike the same as are those who care not what they do. It is a pity that this is the case but the land owner is not to blame.

School Notes.

We have been asked by some teachers about the requirements of attendance at the Institute. The law in that particular is just as it has been for years. We are trying a compulsory law in attendance at school and the same query is put, "are we to enforce a compulsory law?" This is a grave mistake and a weakness among our people when we ask that a law be not executed. The quickest way to repeal a bad law is to enforce it; when the hardship is felt it will be repealed as soon as possible. How would a teacher feel to repeat a bad law is to enforce it; when the hardship is felt it will be repealed as soon as possible. How would a teacher feel to repeat a bad law is to enforce it; when the hardship is felt it will be repealed as soon as possible. How would a teacher feel to repeat a bad law is to enforce it; when the hardship is felt it will be repealed as soon as possible.

Suppose we all try it for one session, and see how much we will be surprised at the results. The schools require your money, your efforts, your name, your life.

The Institute begins in Burlington, August 4th. Let's give it a boost by having a full house at every session.

We are arranging special numbers for each meeting. More anon, J. C. GORDON, Supt.

GREATER ATTENTION TO SEED POTATOES

Every Grower Should Remove Plants Not True to Variety.

Progressive Farmers Favor Home-Seed Plot Plan, Which is Simple and Inexpensive Method of Improving Quality of Seed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To hold the cost of potato production at a reasonable figure, department of agriculture officials advocate that greater attention be given by growers, especially in the northern states, to the production of their seed stock. They believe that every grower would derive benefits from giving special attention to the removal of all plants not true to variety, as well as all diseased, weak, or abnormal plants from the seed stock. A sufficient number of rows in his field to provide an ample supply from the remaining plants to plant the acreage desired the following year.

For example: If the custom is to plant 20 acres to potatoes, it would be necessary, to obtain an ample seed stock, to weed undesirable plants from at least two acres. Time required for this work would be comparatively little.

If a large percentage of off-type or diseased plants are found to exist in a field, tubers from it should not be retained for seed purposes unless a better source of seed supply is not available. In that case most careful and painstaking weeding to eliminate, so far as practicable, all mixtures and all diseased plants should be conducted. It will take a larger acreage to supply the necessary seed than will be the case where the stock is relatively pure and disease-free.

All progressive growers will favor the home-seed plot plan, which they say is a "simple and comparatively inexpensive method of improving the quality of the seed stock," and will materially assist in increasing the acre yield of the crop, thereby lessening production cost.

KEEPING HARNESS IN REPAIR

Tools and Facilities Are Comparatively Inexpensive and Simple—Special Devices Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The tools and facilities required for keeping harness in repair are comparatively simple and inexpensive. A considerable portion of the repair work on harness can be performed by the aid of tools required for other purposes, but there are a few special devices that are desirable.

to the offsprings none of our common crops. It appears to do no good directly to corn, millet, rye, carrots, radishes or potatoes. But lime improves timothy, oats, wheat, barley, peas, cabbage, onions, beets, cucumbers, clovers and alfalfa.

CUTWORM COWARDLY RASCAL

Rarely Does Any Damage in Daylight,
Waiting Until Night and Destroys Garden Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The common cutworm is a cowardly rascal and rarely does his work in daylight when folks can see him. He watches and waits until the gardener has planted his cabbage, tomato or pepper plants, then sneaks out in the night and destroys the plants.

Red Cross Peace-Service Includes Continued Care of Returning Fighters.

SINCE the first call to arms the chief aim of the American Red Cross has been the comfort and welfare of the American boys in service.

The Red Cross as an organization has been growing with the growing needs of the soldiers, sailors and marines since the first transport started overseas.

Under the Department of Military Relief of the Red Cross a plan was formed and is being carried out which brings every possible comfort and help to the fighting men-out of lines or in-sick, well, convalescent, maimed or "whole."

Having taken them comfortably all the way over the Red Cross will continue to provide for their welfare until the last man steps off the gang plank of the last transport or leaves the doorway of the last hospital.

Care of the returning soldier falls into three branches: Miscellaneous Service for the Comfort and Welfare of Soldiers—Home Service in the Camp—and Recreation. It is difficult to say which of these is the most important, so greatly does each depend on the other, wearing an all-covering mantle of comfort and relief that spreads over each and every soldier.

How the Red Cross Helps
The soldier is not discouraged, but he can't help thinking, as he lies there in the base hospital, with his stump of an arm or his twisted knee, and waits for the transport that will take him home.

When the day comes at last, he is carried aboard on a stretcher. Beside him are a pair of new pajamas, a Red Cross comfort kit and plenty of "smokes." About there is a Red Cross man with his hands always aided with "extras." On the way to the debarkation hospital, there is the same old Red Cross smile and the succession of sandwiches, pie and coffee.

At night, while the train speeds towards the army hospital near his own town, there are the canteen women at the stopping places.

When the soldier reaches the convalescent stage, there is the Red Cross house with its home-like features, easy chairs, rugs, music, games, books, newspapers and magazines, the fireplace, the sun parlor or the porch, according to the season. On fine days there is the Motor Corps that takes the soldiers for delightful country spins. It is by these small attentions, that mean so much, that the Red Cross endeavors to make "getting well" easy. A sick or wounded soldier does not get well soon if his mind is not happily attuned and his personal troubles at rest.

Sick, convalescent or well, a soldier may have recourse to Home Service, one phase of Red Cross work. Anxiety over home affairs—uncertainty over the safety and welfare of loved ones—have done more to weaken the morale of the men than most grievous wounds received in battle, or even the endurance of short rations, or trying days and nights under fire. Red Cross Home Service endeavors to bridge the gap between the soldier and his home, and to act as the intervening agent to all petitions may be trusted and all appeals considered. Five hundred Red Cross Home Service representatives are working in the camps of this country and in the army hospitals, with their 50,000 patients.

Among the latest innovations are the banking agencies, established in twenty-two demobilization camps, under the authority of some nearby clearing-house or bank, enabling a discharged soldier to deposit part of his discharge money for transmission to any bank he may designate, in exchange for a non-negotiable receipt. At Camp Taylor alone, $152,215 was deposited in this way within the space of eleven days.

The breadth and scope of the Red Cross peace program, as it concerns the returning soldier, is readily appreciated. He cannot feel neglected or forgotten as long as the Red Cross is with him, and surely no possible comfort, no possible need has been overlooked. The three great arms work together amicably, smoothly, jointly, each performing the tasks that fall within its immediate field, yet extending its activity to dovetail happily with the other branches.

In the field, in the camp, in the home, the Red Cross is omnipresent wherever the soldier goes or wherever his interests lie. It knows no armistice, in its fight against sickness, worry, despair or trouble.

Editor's Note:—This is the first of a series of six articles issued from the Red Cross Division headquarters of the American Red Cross giving official details of the peace time extension of Red Cross service to humanity with the ideal of service to humanity which is the basis of all Red Cross activity.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The constant endeavor to look on the bright side of things will gradually produce and fix the power of doing so.

For pleasure or pain, or for weal or for woe,
Tis the law of our being—we reap what we sow.

HELPFUL HINTS.

YOU should save or keep a tall coffee pot for cooking apparatus. This gives plenty of room for the tops to stand, without breaking.

To make a juicy pie that will have a crisp lower crust, rub the under crust with egg white, before filling; this hardens when baking, making a hard sheet between the fruit and the crust.

Make a small paper funnel and insert in the center of the crust. The juice will boil up in this without overflowing the crust.

Sour milk when used in cake makes a more tender, better-flavored crust, and it keeps moist longer. Use one-half teaspoonful of soda to a cupful of sour milk. Baking powder in small quantity may also be added when using sour milk and soda.

Can spinach, chard, beet greens and beets for winter now. Lettuce that has become tough also makes fine greens.

A good crack filler is made from one pound of four rubbed smoothly with a little water. Add three quarts of boiling water and set on the stove. Stir in one tablespoonful of powdered alum, together with torn bits of newspapers; cook until the mass is smooth and thick as paste.

When using buckwheat flour, the same amount may be used in any recipe in which wheat flour is used, but the liquid must be increased as buckwheat thickens more than the same measure of flour.

A floor wax for dulled varnish is made by blending half a pound of beeswax with half a pint of turpentine. Shave the wax and heat in a double boiler until melted, then add the turpentine with the same amount of linseed oil.

Dust mops made from old stocking legs, soaked in paraffin oil until saturated then dried well, are as good as those sold in the stores.

A polish for furniture and wood-work is equal parts of kerosene, vinegar and turpentine well blended.

Nellie Maxwell

A little bit of hope makes a rainy day look gay.
And a little bit of charity makes glad a weary way.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Now is the time to prepare for the winter. There are any number of good recipes that may be put up without heat. Grape jelly that has all the flavor of the fresh grape left in it, is prepared by mixing the drained juice with the sugar thoroughly dissolve before pouring into the glasses. The next day the jelly will be as firm as if it had been cooked. Cover with paraffin and put in a dry cool place.

Cucumber Relish—Chop three quarts of peeled and sliced cucumbers, removing all seeds; two quarts of onions and two pints of green peppers. Sprinkle with salt, cover and let stand over night. Add six teaspoonfuls of celery seed, one teaspoonful of pepper, and vinegar to cover.

Tomato Catsup—Chop one peck of ripe, firm tomatoes and press through a sieve. Add one-half cup of grated horseradish, one-fourth cupful of salt, one cupful of white mustard seed, two large peppers, two bunches of celery, chopped fine, one cupful of minced onions, one cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful each of black pepper and cinnamon, and one quart of vinegar. Bottle and seal without cooking.

Pickles for Immediate Use—Mix together one cupful each of salt and dry mustard; add it to one gallon of good vinegar, speices of various kinds and a little sugar if liked, may be added. Drop the well-washed cucumbers into this pickle each day as they grow.

Best Relish—Take tender, well cooked beets, chop one quart, add the same measure of chopped cabbage and one cupful of fresh-grated horseradish, the same of chopped celery, one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, salt to taste, cover with cold vinegar. Can and seal.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty until you fall a victim to incurable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL HAMMILL OIL CAPSULES now.

Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

LOOK OUT!

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Red Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL HAMMILL OIL CAPSULES. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL HAMMILL OIL CAPSULES. Taste them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other, in sealed boxes, three sizes.

Wheels! Wheels! Wheels!

Prices having now adjusted themselves on Rubber Tires and Tire Wire, I will be able to quote my friends and customers prices on Rubbe Tires.

I will apply Kelly Springfield for $14.00 per set. Cooper's Peerless, the best cheap tire on the market today, for $12.00, and the work shall be just as represented or your money will be refunded.

Do not run your wheels without tires in the channels, but keep them filled. When you run a wheel on the channel it creates a sharp edge on the inside of the channel, and this edge keeps the tire from expanding and acts as a saw on the tire all the time, therefore, causing the wire to break through the tire and sluff off.

My experience has been that very few mechanics can handle a channel-tired wheel without dishing and killing the wheel. They will twist the channel when putting the same on, and, of course, the rubber will follow the channel and will not wear or can not wear.

Now, bring me your wheels and I will repair them if you only have a hub, and I will guarantee you that I will not dish your wheel nor twist your channel. I am not a wagon maker, nor do I shoe horses, but I claim to be a carriage maker. All I devote my time only to same. All I ask is for you to compare my work with others and then be your own judge.

Save your buggy; have it painted; bring it to me where you will get first-class work, all old paint removed $14.00. All work in the carriage repairing line guaranteed as represented.

Mrs. Lee Furnish, of Golden Pond, Trigg county, who had been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Laura Martin, several weeks, returned to their home last Saturday.

Prof. Caywood, who is taking a course in Agriculture at Lexington State College, spent last Saturday and Sunday at home. He has one week after this to complete the course.

Frank Walton, of the Bellevue precinct, was a caller at this office one afternoon the past week. Mr. Walton is an energetic young farmer and reports his crops are doing nicely.

Waller Campbell and wife, of Covington, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Berk last Saturday night and Sunday. Mr. Campbell will not forget the Woolper country if he lives a thousand years.

John O. Richards, of Covington, spent a few minutes with the Recorder force last Monday afternoon. Mr. Richards has a very large acquaintance among printers, owing to the superiority of The Bingham & Richards rollers for printing press.

Elmo Gaines, who has a clerkship in the State Auditor's office at Frankfort, spent a few days last week with friends in this county, and incidentally putting in a word now and then for his friend, Henry Bosworth, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Auditor.

A. B. Renaker, wife and daughter, Mary Louise; E. M. Arnold; Benj. Riley, Misses Pinkie Cowen and Nellie Martin, Meadames C. C. Hughes, Laura Martin and Mrs. Lee Furnish and two children, Dorothy Nell and Harvey Win, spent one evening last week with Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Westbay in Covington.

James E. Gaines, of Fickertown neighborhood, was a caller at this office last Monday morning. Mr. Gaines went home feeling decidedly independent. While in town he paid his 1919 taxes, list ed his property with the Commissioner for 1920 taxes and made peace with the Recorder for another year. Why should he not feel independent?

B. D. Rice and son-in-law, Fred Morris, of McViney, rode to Lock 38, where business visitors to Burlington one afternoon last week. They are enthusiastic about the prospects for their village in the business world so soon as work begins on Lock 38, and declare that in a few years it will be the most beautiful village on the river between Cincinnati and Louisville. Everybody in that part of the county is pulling for McViney they say.

A. H. Whitson, of Dalton, Ga., was a caller at this office early last Monday morning. Whitson is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Whitson, of Florence, and expects to return to his home in home about a week. He has been living in Georgia for 14 years, and is well pleased with the country. Mr. Whitson says ways are not as high in Georgia as they are here but the cost of living is considerable cheaper.

CATTLE TICK IS BADLY WALLOPED

Bloodsuckers Receive Severe Trouncing in Infested States During Month of March.

FINE WORK OF ERADICATORS

According to Reports 1,203,497 Cattle Went Through "Canal to Prosperity"—Big Increase Made in Number of Dipping Vats.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the annual battle against the cattle fever tick can be compared to a match of nine rounds—each month from March to December being a round—it is true that the thorough trouncing in the first round, and the bell rang with the parasite figuratively hanging over the ropes.

March of this year brought more dippings of cattle for the tick than were recorded in any other March since the federal and state governments began to fight the parasite in 1906. According to reports from all tick-infested states 1,203,497 cattle went through "the canal to prosperity" in March, 1919. This compares with 990,505 in March, 1918, and 720,532 in March, 1917.

This year's results came from an effort to "Dip That Tick in March" with the object of preventing so far as possible the reproduction of the parasite. The ticks that were killed in March will produce no thousands and millions of descendants to suck cattle blood all summer. With the flying start in March, and with continued vigorous attacks through the dipping season, it is believed that the tick eradicators have good chances of reaching their aim of cleaning up 90,000 more square miles of territory this year—more than ever has been released in one year from the federal quarantine against the pest.

Healthy increases in the number of dipping vats available for use also are shown by reports to the bureau. In Shorthorn Heifer, Tick Infested.

March, 1917, there were 15,765 vats; and in March, 1918, there were 22,879. This year there were 29,255.

Reports From States.

A summary of the state reports shows that Alabama with 6,230 vats had 143,384 dippings in March; Arkansas, 2,901 vats, 13,776 dippings; Florida, 1,114 vats, 94,995 dippings; Georgia, 1,220 vats, 182,704 dippings; Louisiana, 4,460 vats, 253,129 dippings; Mississippi, 5,553 vats, 128,703 dippings; Oklahoma, 1,033 vats, 44,938 dippings; South Carolina, 801 vats, 1,447 dippings; North Texas, 4,905 vats, 273,087 dippings; South Texas, 1,220 vats, 65,574 dippings. Preliminary and reorganization work was conducted in North Carolina.

Ample provision has been made in every state for dipping vats, and an adequate supply of dipping materials has been distributed to the counties that will likely need them this season. Satisfactory progress in constructing vats and in preparing the dipping solution was made despite the excessive rains.

In Texas, which has the largest amount of infested territory, encouraging progress is reported from zone No. 1, which includes the territory in which eradication work is to be carried out most vigorously this year. Nearly all the counties in zone No. 1 have made appropriations for the work, and construction of dipping vats is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

John O. Richards, of Covington, spent a few minutes with the Recorder force last Monday afternoon. Mr. Richards has a very large acquaintance among printers, owing to the superiority of The Bingham & Richards rollers for printing press.

Shorthorn Heifer, Free of Ticks.

It is believed that the general dipping of cattle every two weeks will be conducted in nearly all of zone No. 1 during the present year.

The Oklahoma state legislature, by making a special appropriation of $40,000 assisted several counties in the southeast corner of the state which seemed unable to raise funds with which to carry on their work. With this assistance it is believed that Oklahoma is now in a position to get rid of the tick by the end of 1920.

The Arkansas legislature recently appropriated $100,000 for tick eradication in that state, and with the large force of federal, state and county employees now at work it is believed that all the state, with the exception of seven or eight counties, will be released from quarantine next December 1. The Louisiana forces seem determined to wind up the tick fight this year, and the indications are that they will be successful.

In Mississippi, where special attention work is being conducted following the release of the state from federal quarantine, the courts recently decided that the state laws providing for state quarantines are legal, and it is believed that the final work in Mississippi will be successful during the present year.

State-wide Law in Alabama. As a result of the new state-wide tick-eradication law in Alabama it is hoped that the entire state will be released from federal quarantine by next December. The law requires all county commissioners' courts in tick-infested counties to provide means for dipping and to require the dipping of cattle every two weeks between April 1 and December 1.

Systematic work is being conducted in 22 counties in Georgia, giving ground for hope that these counties will be released from quarantine at the end of the dipping season. The state-wide law enacted by the Georgia legislature at its 1918 session becomes effective in December of this year, and 1920 may be the last year of the tick's residence in that state.

In Florida it will be necessary to conduct eradication work in units composed of several counties, and for this reason more time is required to construct dipping vats and make arrangements for systematic work. The people of Florida, however, are alive to the necessity for tick eradication, and the state co-operation given to the federal government makes it seem certain that Florida, despite the great area still under quarantine, will not be the last state inhabited by the tick.

In North Carolina the eradication work is being reorganized with encouraging prospects for an early clean-up. Final "mopping-up" work is being conducted in South Carolina, from which the federal quarantine was removed last year.

PREVENT BIG LOSS OF GRAIN

Poor Work of Binder, Shattering During Shocking and Faulty Separator Are Causes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Under average conditions the loss of grain during harvest is far greater than is generally supposed by the average farmer. Poor work on the part of the binder, shattering during shocking and having faulty work of the separator, and minor losses at the machine result in a waste of millions of bushels every year. With a guaranteed price every farmer is offered an incentive to reduce such losses to a minimum this season. See that the binder is in good working order, handle the bundles carefully, using a tight floor or canvas on the wagon in hauling, and a demand by the farmer that the separator do efficient work will save many dollars' worth of grain as well as add to the pocketbook of the farmer.

REPAIR OF PASTURE FENCES

Little Time Spent in Replacing Weak Posts and Tightening Wires Will Prove Profitable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Advantage should be taken of the first lull in farm work to inspect and repair pasture fences. A little time spent from time to time throughout the season in replacing weak posts, tightening or splicing of wire and driving an occasional staple may save much trouble later when the pasture becomes short and the cattle are tempted by crops in nearby fields. A strong fence discourages cattle from attempting to break out, while a few successful attempts may make regular fence breakers of them. If plenty of water and salt are provided and fences are kept in repair, usually little trouble will be experienced unless the pasture becomes very short and the cattle are lured by other fields.

DON'T PAY TO SPRAY BEETS

Easier to Make New Plantings When Attacked by Leaf Spot, Especially in Small Garden.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Garden beets attacked by a leaf spot which materially injures their growth, but it is so easy to make a new planting of beets that it hardly pays to spray, especially in the very small garden. This is practically true of a large number of diseases.

By keeping stock solutions of copper sulphate and lime on hand, a little Bordeaux mixture can easily be made up and applied with a cheap spray outfit that can be purchased in any seed store. Where these sprayers are not made of brass or copper, the Bordeaux mixture should not be allowed to stand in them, and they should be thoroughly cleaned with clean water after using.

SUCCESS IN GROWING DATES

Process of Ripening Fruit and Method of Rooting Offshoots Makes Culture Possible.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Date growing in parts of the United States now gives promise of commercial success as a result of work conducted by the United States department of agriculture to overcome obstacles that for years have stood in the way of their successful culture. Two factors were largely responsible for making date growing doubtful—the difficulty experienced in ripening the fruits, and failure of many attempts to root offshoots of desirable varieties.

For the study of date culture—varieties, propagation and curing—two experimental date orchards were established in California where a large number of the best date varieties of the old world have been tested. In 1910 a slow-maturing process of ripening the fruit of the Deglet Noor variety was discovered, which gave assurance of successful date production in areas of high temperature adapted to the culture of dates of good quality. The problem of rooting offshoots has now been worked out and no longer offers unusual difficulties.

Date palms are propagated either by seed or by offshoots, and no other method is known. Seed may be planted from the best varieties, but there is no assurance to the grower that he will get a large percentage of commercial dates. The offshoot of the date palm is a bud at the axil of the leaf; hence it is a direct product of the growing stem and in variety the same as the parent plant.

The only thoroughly satisfactory method yet devised for rooting young date offshoots consists in the use of a heavily manured nursery bed with a cloth-covered frame or shed so constructed as to give an even heat and humidity. Water must be applied in ample and regular quantities.

Frequent irrigation and the maintenance of a high degree of soil fertility by the use of manure, mulches and cover crops are essential to healthy growth and the production of fruit in paying quantities. First-class dates suitable for market can be produced only on soils in a high condition of fertility and tilth. This condition is most readily maintained on a well-drained sandy loam. Heavy soils need special attention to insure the proper penetration of the roots and distribution of water.

The pruning of bearing palms should consist merely in the removal of old leaves, up to the fruit stem of the former crop. Young palms should not be allowed to produce heavy crops of fruit, as this would be done at the expense of offshoot growth. At the present stage of the industry the production of offshoots of proved varieties is of paramount importance.

BEST PREPARATION OF SOIL

Thorough Work in Orchard Will Prove as Profitable as in Garden With Vegetables.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the prospective home orchardist prepares the soil where his fruits are to stand as thoroughly as he does his garden before planting vegetable seeds, the subsequent rapid growth of his fruit trees will amply repay him.

A HEART TO HEART TALK.

(By O. C. Peyton, D. D.)
We are at best poor, tottering creatures, never fit to be left alone for a single moment. Our strength is the Lord God, Almighty. If he were to cease to help and comfort us, we could be utterly undone. Truly we can say with the Psalmist: "Thy mercy, O Lord, doth hold me up," and the road we travel is dangerous, and the path often slippery. One unguarded, thoughtless step may involve us in many long and serious troubles. Nor are we ever sure but that our foot may next be placed on ice. Life, every day and every hour is beset with dangers— unseen, subtle, insidious. Circumspicion is absolutely necessary. But circumspection alone will not preserve us. The prayer of David is always suitable and needed: "Hold thou me up, I shall be safe and I will have respect unto thy statutes continually." In the Lord is our only strength. Just so soon as we take our eyes from him, Satan will redouble his efforts to destroy. The Psalmist felt himself going and he cried out, "My foot slipped." Many stepped forth and caught him ere he went down. That angelic mercy must uphold us and we shall perish. He is our friend. It is pledged to us in many and glorious promises. But it must be sought. It must be honored and trusted. We must daily and hourly feel that we, within ourselves, weak and helpless and need to be helped. We have no claim upon God and we must look to mercy alone to uphold and keep us.

Oh, it is a blessed thing to live thus conscious of our own weakness, dependence, and need, and, yet, be assured that all the infinite resources of our God are at our command. Reader, do you realize your weakness and are you trusting in God's boundless and promised strength?

THE CARE OF THE BABY.

If Babies Were Well-Born and Well Cared For Their Mortality Would Be Small.

If possible, have a separate room for the baby or little ones to sleep in at night and to play in by day. Choose a sunny corner room, with plenty of light and air.

THE BABY'S BED.

If a child can not have a room to himself, he must at least have a separate room. A flat clothes basket makes a good bed for the first year, and a folded army blanket or piece of table felting a fine, washable mattress. A metal crib large enough for the first six years may be used equally well.

If the sides are protected by curtains or pads.

WHAT ARE HEALTH HABITS AND WHEN SHOULD THEY BE TAUGHT?

A baby is born without habits, good or bad. It rests with the mother to teach him proper habits in regard to eating, sleeping, bathing and the taking of fresh air and exercise. Good habits must be started during the early weeks of life in order to establish health and, incidentally, to insure obedience and self-control. A badly trained child is usually the result of lack of backbone in the mother.

FRESH AIR.

A child must have fresh air, light and sunshine in order to grow. Keep the nursery window open, regardless of the wasting of fuel, and get the baby out for an airing every day. Naps may be taken on a protected porch even in winter weather.

In summer, a little one may practically live outdoors.

SLEEP.

Encourage the baby to sleep all he can, but see that he does not turn night into day. Train him early to take a long, unbroken sleep, at least six hours at night. A long nap usually follows the bath and a mid-morning feeding; another nap, usually shorter, comes after the midday feeding. A child should not be permitted to sleep in the late afternoon, or the night rest will be broken.

All young children should have an early bed hour. Tuck the baby away at 6 or 7 o'clock and do not allow him to be played with or to stay up to amuse the family. Make the baby comfortable; let the room be quiet, cool and darkened, and leave him to go to sleep by himself.

FOOD.

Start teaching the baby early the right food habits by putting before him the proper food at the proper time and seeing that he takes it.

lead to the establishment of bad habits.

DAILY ROUTINE.

A mother should plan a daily schedule for her baby, considering first what is best for him, and next what arrangement of hours fits in with her other duties. It is not necessary or wise for a whole household to revolve around the baby. The first decision to be made is whether the baby shall be fed at a three or four-hour interval, and how many feedings shall be given in twenty-four hours; next, at what hour the early morning feeding shall be given.

Keeping Up the Pastures.

Overgrazing during a succession of unfavorable seasons, or sometimes during a single season is probably the most frequent cause of run down pastures. The weeds will thrive during a season unfavorable for the growth of grass and when the light pasture is continually weakened and reduced by overgrazing, will establish themselves in the dying sod. On the other hand, when a rank growth of grass stands ungrazed for a long time there is a tendency for the sod to become weakened as the result of a superabundant topgrowth. Weeds are then able to grow and multiply, but under these conditions they probably never become so numerous and troublesome as under the extreme conditions of overgrazing. While in the ordinary pastures undergrazed and overgrazed are not likely to occur, yet it is well to know in advance the result of such practices. Stock will not eat weeds unless forced to do so, but will graze more and more heavily on the diminishing patches of clean grass; consequently the weeds are continually favored in their competition with the grass for soil space, and unless means are taken to check them they will presently overrun and ruin the pasture.

The first step toward improving unproductive pastures should be the destruction of weeds. Where the land is level and open enough to allow the use of a mower, all undesirable plants should be cut before they make seed. Or the pasture may be fenced off in several areas, taking the weeds one first, and the stock kept on an area until the weeds are eaten down. In this practice young cattle or sheep should be used.

As the weeds are being destroyed the growth of the grass itself should be stimulated; and according to the present knowledge of pastures the application of stable manure seems the only certain economical means of doing this. Whenever manure is available, apply it to the pasture in light dressings, covering first the scantiest patches, but eventually covering the whole pasture if possible. Another excellent practice is to reseed the more unthrifty patches and then graze them sparingly until they are again thickly revegetated.

Culture treatment to improve the growth of pastures, such as disking and harrowing, cannot be recommended for general conditions. Doubtless there are extreme conditions of root-bound sod where cultural treatment would be beneficial in improving the moisture relations of the plant; but these conditions can not now be clearly defined, and the operation should proceed cautiously, for by tearing the grass roots more harm than good is liable to result.

Likewise the application of commercial fertilizer to pastures is an extremely dubious practice. There is of course a stimulation of plant growth, but at the present high prices for fertilizer no profitable return may be expected under average conditions. Should a decided shift in the present relative prices of fertilizer and meat occur, doubtless a moderate application of phosphate material, say 200 pounds of acid phosphate per acre would be profitable on most soils.

Had it not rained last Sunday the country would have been over run by nonresident blackberry pickers, many of them coming from the city in automobiles.

Redmon Gossett and wife visited Cincinnati friends last Sunday.

Robt. Eastmon, who spent several months in France, has arrived home to the delight of his many friends here.

After an illness of several months, Robert Carey died at his home on the Lexington pike last Sunday.

Up to this time it has been very reasonable here and vegetation of all kinds is doing well. We have a fine prospect for a good crop and if it continues reasonable a bumper crop will be harvested this fall.

CROP NOTES.

In Bath county the crop is presenting a fine appearance.

In Breckinridge county quite a lot of tobacco was washed out by the rains.

Garrard county wheat did not turn out well. It averaged about fifteen bushels to the acre.

In Fleming county wheat is light but the grain is very good and will weigh 60 pounds to the bushel.

Wheat did not come up to expectations in Woodford county, the yield being 15 to 20 bushels per acre.

A very satisfactory field growth is reported in Wisconsin. The crop is far ahead of other years at this date.

The heat and hot winds were hard on the tobacco in Garrard county and hurt the crop considerably.

Much of the Tennessee tobacco is crowded by weeds and the ground in many places where it has been worked has been found to be very cloddy having been plowed wet.

Caldwell harvested a tremendous crop of hay. The wheat crop in that county was very high. The tobacco crop was put in in bad condition but it is doing nicely.

The acreage of tobacco in Indiana was increased considerably this year. Weather conditions delayed some planting until the last of June in some of the southern counties and consequently the condition is not what it should be.

Tobacco in Woodford county, was greatly benefited by the rains as the intense heat was hurting the crop greatly, in some fields turning it yellow and some nearly was dying from the heat and lack of moisture.

Several thousand dollars worth of damage was done to the tobacco in the northern part of Grant county the early part of this month by the heavy rains. Tobacco was washed out and the ground furrowed by the heavy downpour.

Practically all the wheat has been threshed in Fayette county, the yield was better than in most of the adjoining counties for though much of the wheat is No. 3 quality and some No. 4. Some few farmers threshed over 35 bushels to the acre.

Tobacco in Fayette county, presents a splendid appearance, needs working to rid it of weeds. The rains were very beneficial to the crop. Nothwest of the county is out of the way, the weeding process will help the crop very much.

Ed. Johnson and sister, Lois, of Toledo, Ohio, visited their grandfather, Elijah Parker and daughters, here last week. Edward has recently returned from France where he was on the firing line when the Armistic was signed.

Officers Will Hayes and W. O. Barkley undertook a difficult task Monday when they had to shoot a mad horse owned by Joe Thompson. The maddened animal was shot five times before it died, and fought and kicked violently. It was thought at one time that the horse would demolish the stall before it expired. The horse was bitten by a maddog that Officer Hayes shot in the city some time ago—Georgetown Times.

Taken as a whole the tobacco crop of Kentucky is very irregular and growing fast it is needing cultivation, which is being done as rapidly as possible as the crops have been crowding each other. Some acreage is reported abandoned for lack of season to set plants, and has been planted to other crops but this abandonment is comparatively small, as much as was set very late in July.

FOOD INSPECTION

Large Quantities Permitted to Rot that Prices May Continue High.

Cincinnati, July 25. In an effort to trail the high cost of food to its lair, four active agencies were bending their efforts yesterday in this immediate territory. The grand jury, which has been tracing various threads that have a basic bearing upon the food situation, took a turn at the "dry storage" warehouses and a visit of that body was made to the huge repository which is directed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Here tons upon tons of food were found stored floor up on floor, all waiting for a market, most of the goods, however, waiting for a higher market.

The Chief Food Inspector for the Board of Health, was called upon yesterday to explain to the board why conditions revealed by the grand jury have been permitted to exist and why such an amount of food had been allowed to decay under the eyes of food inspectors while the owners were waiting for the market to rise.

In answering the questions which were fired at him by Dr. E. W. Walker and Dr. Fackler, Dr. Blume placed responsibility with his assistant, who he declared had many other duties. Acting on the disclosures which have been made through evidence collected by the grand jury the State Dairy and Food Bureau has decided to swing into action. According to Thomas C. Gault, the Chief of this department, there will be a general inspection made of the cold storage plants of the State, together with a special inquiry into the conditions in Cincinnati. He admitted that a State law was passed in 1917, which demanded certain requirements and restrictions regarding the shortage of food, but he said federal control of food had been enforced to a point during the war that made it hardly necessary for the State of Ohio to carry out the provisions of the law.

The fourth agency in the war on high food prices appears in the person of Thomas Slattery, U. S. District Attorney with headquarters in Covington. Information has reached him that eleven cars of peaches had arrived in the city and were being dumped for the purpose of being dumped in the "best market" had to be dumped recently.

Other spoiling of food that has been brought to his attention is the alleged dumping of watermelons and other Southern fruit, which was shipped to this point by rail, and then dumped and allowed to rot in the cars rather than be sold at lower prices. Mr. Slattery points to the Lever food control act as being enforced to bring these persons to punishment. It is said that if word is not received from Washington by process of law the prosecution of these cases they may be handed over to the County Attorney, Stephens Blakely, for action.

Rafe Koonas Writes From France.

Under date of July 5th Rafe Koonas writes his father from France as follows: Dear Papa—I am sending you a few lines just to say I am still feeling all right and hope you are to.

I have been out on a Y. M. C. A. trip today and had a very good time. We went in a motor truck and spent the whole day going from one town to another.

Don't know just when I will get home as we never hear any definite as to when we will be ordered out. I want you to have my run in good shape when I do get home so I want to use it in the woods.

Haven't much news for I rarely go out of camp since I came from Paris. Paris sure is a big town and I had a "good time" while I was there.

Hope all are well and having a good time. My French girl is a good one and don't forget it, I am talking to her now.

Will close now as I know no special news. Love, RAFAE.

Whiteburg, July 27.—Wm. Osborn, of the town of Wise county, fell from a hay rack near his home and was instantly killed. His neck was said to have been broken. It is predicted his death would occur in this way three weeks ago, although friends little thought of his premonition.

Farmers Meetings

Several months ago, the Louisville Board of Trade formulated the idea of holding a series of educational meetings, in at least 50 counties of the State, during the summer of 1919. It was estimated that $25,000 would cover the expenses of such a movement, and at once $12,500 was raised by the Louisville Board of Trade by subscriptions from a few wealthy men in the State. The Kentucky Bankers Association was then interested, and they agreed to raise the remaining $12,500.

All the banks of Boone county have been assessed according to their capital stock and surplus, and we understand they met the call with a hearty response, knowing that whatever of educational value comes to the county, is of benefit to all banking institutions.

Considerable effort has been made by the Board of the local board, to secure these meetings for Boone county, to be held at Burlington, August 7th, 8th and 9th, in the High School grounds. The Rural Development Association furnishes the speakers, entertainers, and other matters of interest. The evening, for which there will be no admission charge or collection taken. The local committee is expected to furnish pictures, electric lights, for illumination and pictures, and transportation and entertainment of all talent appearing.

The local expenses will amount to about $200, which must be met by popular subscription, as no admission can be charged. It has been agreed that any funds remaining in treasury, after expenses have been met, shall be used to purchase folding chairs, to be used for the High School building for public use. Let all of us who are interested in the work of our county, see Mr. A. B. Reiser, of the Finance Committee, and make a contribution to this fund. Mr. Reiser has appointed George Blum and W. D. Gaines, members of the Finance Committee.

Be sure and attend these meetings, as they have been assured that we will be a great benefit of great educational value. Afternoon sessions will be at three o'clock and evenings at 8:30. B. C. GAINES, County Chairman.

AIR SHIP WILL BE USED

To Make Voyage Around the World, the Next Big Trip.

Washington, July 22.—With the Atlantic Ocean crossed by airplanes and twice more by a dirigible, the air service of the U. S. Army is laying plans to circumnavigate the globe with an American army airplane next summer. This is the first public announcement the air service has made of a flying boat.

Major W. H. Frank of the air service, who conceived and is executing the plans for the New York-to-San Francisco flight, also fathered the idea of a flight around the world General C. T. Mencher, director of the air service, told him to work out the plan.

Major Frank is positive a Martin bombing plane, equipped with twin Liberty Twelve motors of 400 horse power each, can fly around the world in less than 30 days.

Air service officers expect the voyage will be made in little more than two weeks, but they don't want to make conservative estimates.

Even if the flight takes thirty days, it will break all records. The fastest time ever made around the world was 35 days, 21 hours, by J. H. Mears, a New York newspaperman, in 1913. He traveled by boat and train—over much the same route as will be followed by the army aviators.

The army fliers will start from New York about Aug. 1, 1920. The flight will be made by way of Greenland and Iceland, thus enabling the plane to cross the Atlantic in short jumps. For this reason the army can make the flight with a regular type of plane, instead of a flying boat.

Another point in favor of the Greenland route is lack of fog. From Iceland the air pioneers cross the straits to Norway and the next descent will be made in Sweden.

And then comes Russia—and there's the rub. How his world navigators are going to jump across the vast expanse of Russia now controlled by the Bolsheviks, Major Frank hasn't decided. He's hoping order will be restored in Russia before the flight is made.

After trailing the Trans-Siberian railway to Vladivostok the machine will turn northward and cross the Alaskan coast, following the Aleutian Islands to Alaska; then down the Pacific coast to Seattle and thence across country back to New York.

The crew will number four—two pilots and two mechanics. Who they are the air service has not yet even considered.

Beginning Sunday, October 15th, next, Rev. W. D. Nowlin, of Louisville, will assist Pastor O. U. Peyton, of Big Bone Baptist church, in a series of services.

THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE

If You Attend the Farmers' Community Meetings in Burlington.

Now that Boone county has a permanent and strong organization to handle the three days Farmers' Community Meetings in August people are beginning to ask questions about the meetings and the program. Two programs will be held each day, one at 3 p. m., and another at 8 p. m. This plan has been developed to enable the busy farmer and his energetic wife to take care of the day's work before coming to the meetings. The committee believes that the spirit of these meetings will be helped by the people bringing a light luncheon to eat, so that between the afternoon and evening programs a picnic supper may be held on the grounds. This will allow the farmer, the business man, and their families to chat with his neighbors and friends, thus making these meetings real community affairs.

The first meeting will be held in a big auditorium tent which will seat 700 people quite comfortably. The tent will be lighted by electricity. Lawnmowers, a nice machine will be installed so that four or five reels of fine educational pictures may follow each evening talk. The Department of Agriculture at Washington, the National Red Cross, the State Board of Health and the State Commissioner of Education will furnish these films. Among these reels there will be those which will interest both children and adults. Two of the reels will tell the story of the boys and girls, who as state champions in club work, visited Washington City.

The sights and inspected the work of the Agricultural Department. Another film shows the construction of a concrete silo; and another shows the use of serum in hog cholera; and others will deal with health and poultry raising. The growing and handling of corn will also be shown in motion pictures.

The people in Boone county should make their arrangements right now to be present at these meetings. Four speakers will be used each day in addition to the motion pictures. Last, but by no means least, will be the social part of these meetings. The person attending the meetings will be sure to meet old friends and make new ones. The people of the county and this in itself will help make the meetings thoroughly worth while. Let the people bring a light luncheon and lots of sociability.

Children don't hitch on behind vehicles.

Don't allow children to play in the streets.

Don't cross in middle of block.

Don't carry umbrellas so as to obstruct your view when crossing the street.

Don't walk in the roadway, except to cross the street.

Don't stare into the street to gaze at the fire apparatus that has passed—the next one may hit you.

Keep your eyes open and head up when crossing the street. Don't step from a moving car. Don't run across the street. Don't cross intersections diagonally—cross with the stream of traffic.

Look to the left for approaching vehicles before you step into the street and then to the right when you reach the center of the street.

In Pendleton County.

The blackberry crop in Pendleton county is the biggest ever, and the berries are all of the big, sweet, juicy kind. There is plenty of them all over the county, and for those who don't like fighting the chiggers, berries can be had at 50 cents per gallon. A fellow going out the other morning with two baskets, and he came back in the afternoon with both of them full, having picked them all in less than a day. Shanks Shows White Feather.

As was expected here the challenge of R. C. Oldham, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor, to W. H. Shanks, his opponent, to meet him in joint debate at Owensboro, was not accepted. The Interior Journal, published in Stanford, and the paper that groomed Shanks in the race, had said that he would certainly be there. The local Courier rightly predicted in last week's issue with the statement that "Col. Oldham is a good speaker, and we doubt that Shanks will be willing to cross oratorical lances with him." Oldham said in an interview this morning: "It is a bitter disappointment to me. Since he announced his friends have told me many malicious stories about me that I wanted explained. I did not invite him to a mud slinging contest, but simply gave him an opportunity to explain to the people."

I might have asked him about that disgraceful record of his as a member of the Kentucky Legislature. His friends have circulated rumors that the Republicans would be able to attack me; that for cause of malfeasance Governor would slate against me, and many other underhand insinuations, and I was eager for an opportunity to explain that. I sincerely hope these charges to my face and answer mine to him. I would not make any in any other manner than direct. After these rumors are cleared up and the malicious they were printed in newspapers as PAID ADVERTISING, and I would have asked him to explain that. I sincerely hope that he has dodged the issue, and can not see how he could be expected to meet his Republican opponent who has been the nominee and be challenged. There is no reason that can be given for his not doing so.

I will not pull a fire party through in November and add strength to the ticket, and he knows it. I will welcome the opportunity at any time to meet any Democrat or to meet Ed. Morrow or any Republican on earth or the stump in debate anywhere in Kentucky." (The Daily Democrat)—ADV.

Equipment for Primary Election Distributed.

The ballots and the boxes for this county are all at the voting precincts. The election is in readiness for the primary next Saturday. The voters seem to have taken very little interest in the election and unless weather conditions are extremely favorable for an election a very light vote will be polled Saturday next. The race for Governor is anybody's in Boone county yet and the candidate who has the best organization at the polls will carry the county by a narrow margin. No demonstration on behalf of either of the candidates has been made in the county, and, no doubt, many voters who do not know that an election is pending, and there are many who do not know who the candidates are and for what they are running.

Eyeball Removed.

Last week mention was made of a peculiar accident to Stant Kirtley, colored, in which one of his eyes was involved and his being hurried to an oculist. Upon arrival at the hospital it was soon discovered that the eyeball was so badly lacerated that it was necessary to remove the injured ball to save the sight of the other eye. It seems that when the wreck slipped off of the pole he was endeavoring to tighten his thumb nail in the eye, and the nail being very long cut nearly through the ball. He was a couple of miles from town working alone in the field when the accident happened, and the pain he suffered before getting to Dr. Duncan's office was excruciating. Kirtley is an industrious man, trying hard to get along and has considerable crop under cultivation. He has the sympathy of all in his misfortune.

Changed His Place of Business.

Following is a letter received from Manley Guiley, written July 21st: Mr. W. L. Riddell, I will write you a few lines as I have changed my place of business, and will you please send the Recorder to me at Washington? I am at Walter Reed Hospital. I sure is a nice hospital.

I left Camp Taylor on the 11th of July. I saw one of the Boone County boys being sent to camp with him. He has been overseas and will be sent to Camp Taylor this week for discharge. His name is W. Walton Berkshire, of Petersburg.

I went thru the capital building today. It sure is a nice building. There are lots of places I want to see before I leave here.

How is everything around Burlington? If my subscription is about due let me know and I will renew it again. Yours Truly, MANLEY P. GUILLEY.

Grand Free Blow For Everybody Young or Old—Bring Your Entire Family.

Remember the three big days Farmers' meeting to be held in Burlington next week. These meetings will be of great benefit to the farmers who desire to be up-to-date in their vocations. It has cost the State considerable money to arrange to give the farmers the benefit of these meetings and the people should show their appreciation of the effort by a large attendance every afternoon and evening. Good speakers will be in attendance while many motion pictures will interest the audience. The meetings will be held in a large tent on the school house campus and everything possible will be done to make everybody comfortable and enjoy the occasion. It will cost you nothing as there is no admission fee, neither will the hat be passed around for any purpose whatever. It will be a grand free blow for everybody, young or old, come and bring your entire family.

George W. Gaines Passes Away

George W. Gaines, who died at his home near Bullittsville, last Friday morning, was morning was one of the county's oldest and most estimable citizens. Mr. Gaines was born in 1850 in the neighborhood where he died and spent his entire life. He was one of a family of ten children born to James and Virginia Watts Gaines, and is survived by one brother, Benjamin W. Gaines, who has resided in Missouri for many years. Mr. Gaines was born on a farm and to that pursuit he devoted his life.

In 1865 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Winston, daughter of the late Elder W. T. and Lucretia Winston. To them were born three children, W. W. Gaines, a prominent attorney and influential citizen of Atlanta, Georgia; Mrs. M. J. Crouch, of Union, and Mrs. B. C. Gladys, of Bullittsville, all of whom, with their mother, survive.

The funeral services were conducted at the residence last Sunday at 10 o'clock, Rev. H. M. Curry, of Old Baptist, officiating. The interment was in Bullittsville cemetery.

Mr. Gaines was a member of one of the oldest families in the county, being a brother of one of four Gaines brothers who came to this county from Orange county, Virginia, at a very early day, and participated in the laying of the foundation for one of the most prosperous sections of Kentucky. The old Gaines were excellent farmers and characteristic has been prominent with every member of the family down to the present time and George W. Gaines was no exception. He was a man of firm character and when his mind was made up it was seldom changed. He was devoted to his family and resided in the home he had seen each of his children settled in life, and prospering as they deserved, and following the example set them by an industrious, frugal, upright father.

Mr. Gaines will be missed by all those with whom he had been so long associated and so highly esteemed.

Road Fund Apportioned.

Frankfort, July 23.—In apportionment of State road funds to counties, the assessed value of all taxable property in the county, and not merely that portion taxable for county purposes, is to be taken into account. Assistant Attorney General D. O. Myatt told Rodman Wiley, Commissioner of Public Roads.

Under the act of 1918 the road fund is apportioned according to assessed valuation, counties of $5,000,000 assessment and less receive from the State 10 per cent, of the cost of constructing State aid roads.

As the assessment of counties increased the proportion of State aid grows gradually less. If only the real estate and tangible personal property which are taxed for local purposes, emitting livestock, machinery and raw material in process of manufacture, could be used in calculating the assessment on which the road fund is apportioned, many counties could increase their State aid considerably.

Reports from all over the Burley belt indicate that the tobacco crop is not at all encouraging. The plants are small, immature and not very promising. This is also true in Pendleton, as a general rule, but the crop has plenty of time to grow out and make a good yield. Tobacco is unlike any other crop, if you get the "weed" set out, you are sure to cut a crop compared with other crops. The State Agricultural Department estimates acreage at 110 per cent—Outlook.

Premium lists for the North Kentucky Fair made their appearance last week. This popular fair will be held four days, beginning August 27th.

The checks for the 2nd dividend from the Burley Tobacco Company have been received by the banks in the respective counties, and the checks for Boone county are at the Equitable Bank and Trust Company, Walton, Ky.

Many have lost or mislaid their certificates and as the checks can be delivered only on presentation of certificates a request was made of the Burley Tobacco Co. for form of affidavit to which the following letter in reply has been received: "In reply to your letter of the 23rd inst., relative to affidavits for lost stock certificates, will state that we have no forms for lost certificates. It is necessary for the persons losing their certificates to advertise in one of the papers of their county paper the loss of the certificate and mail the clipping together with an affidavit made before a notary to the Burley Tobacco Co., Lexington, Ky., stating that their certificate had been issued and lost by them and making application for a new certificate and affidavit, we will mail new stock certificate. CHANDLER SIX $1795

Come and See the New Chandler Touring Car.

MOST BEAUTIFUL BIG-CAR OFFERING OF THE SEASON
AND THE PRICE IS ONLY $1795

THE new Chandler touring model is here. We have waited for it. Old Chandler OWNERS, have waited for it. It's here now and we are all proud and happy.

The Chandler of the past has had splendid bodies, but the new Chandler touring car even surpasses its immediate fore-runner in beauty of line, in bigness, in comfort of its cushioning, in the nicety of its custom-like workman-ship and its lustrous finish.

The new Chandler Touring is a big car. Its high hood and radiator, its broad cowl, its wide and deep doors give it distinctive appearance.

And it RIDES,—it rides like a dream

Nothing has been cut out to permit the delivery of this fine big touring car at the Chandler price. Indeed many little details of nicety are added. The back curtain window is beveled plate glass. The clear-vision side curtains fit snugly and open with the doors. There are detachable rear quarter-board curtains. There are outside door handles.

Features which have been standard Chandler qualities in the past are continued. The cushions are upholstered in genuine hand-buffed plaited leather. The front compartment floor boards are covered with heavy gray linoleum, aluminum-bound. The two comfortable auxiliary chairs fold away, entirely concealed, when not in use.

Carrying this Handsome Body Is the Famous Chandler Chassis —

You will choose the new Chandler touring for its bigness and its comfort and its handsome dignity. But will choose it, too, for its mechanical excellence. Fifty thousand Chandler owners know, better than we can tell you, what a good car the Chandler is. The famous Chandler motor and the sturdy excellence of the whole chassis make the Chandler notable among fine cars.

The Chandler continues for 1919 all its distinguished mechanical features; solid cast aluminum motor base extending from frame to frame, silent chain drive for the auxiliary motor shafts, annual ball bearings, Bosch Magneto ignition and many other features of design and equipment characteristic of the highest-class motor car construction.

To The Voters.

As is known, I am a candidate for Representative from Boone and Grant counties, in the next General Assembly. Being the only candidate from Boone, I have given more time to Grant than to Boone in my canvass.

I very much desired to give more time to Boone and meet the people, many of whom I have not had the pleasure to meet in person. But because of the excessive hot weather, and necessary business engagements at home, which I could not neglect, I have been unable to do as I wished and feel I should have done. I, therefore, take this method of communication with the voters, and to urge them not to fail to improve the little time necessary to VOTE on next Saturday. This is a State election, and for many reasons a very important one. It takes VOTES to count when the returns come in. Thanking my friends now, for any past or future assistance in my race, I beg to remain,
Sincerely Yours,
CHAS. STROTHER.

People are Wondering

Religion and Life appear to have pulled a bit closer since America has been at war. Then, too, with all the many changes which have come to the country, wonder is not surprising just how religion and life are to adjust themselves again to the new conditions. Of course, religion is solid, but it is clinging to old times and the public is eager to hear men give their ideas of what probably will take place. R. L. McCready has been known to say something to say and knows how to say it. The Farmers' Community Meeting at Burlington is indeed fortunate to have him on the program.

Health is Wealth

The young man who was robust was able to fight for Uncle Sam; the man who was physically fit was turned down for business. It is not the man down who is not normal in health, still he doesn't have a full chance to make good in life. Dr. J. I. Witte offered a million dollars for a first-class stock because he realized the value of health in hard cash. Dr. J. I. Witte is a man who is worth listening to during the Farmers' Community Meeting at Burlington next week. Men, women and children are all vitally interested in health and are sure to be interested in his talk.

Make Stock Better

The man who owns land is always intensely interested in having better stock on his farm. No matter whether the farmer raises hogs, handles a dairy, fattens beef cattle or breeds fancy horses, he is anxious to have better stock. W. S. Anderson, who spent the better part of his life in the study and practice of breeding for better stock, is to speak at the Farmers' Community Meeting next week in Burlington. He is sure to have a large audience of farmers who believe in breeding for better stock. In fact, the man who does not breed for better stock in these days when any animal of good breeding sells for big money is hard to find.

War Brought Change

The housekeeper of today is a very different person from what she was a few years ago. The war has forced her to change her ideas of many things and has also made her cooperative in her work. She learned to do in the days of the Extension Bureau what she learned her family could eat and be satisfied with food which, even considered, she is open-minded, and, therefore, ready to have Home-making, Drying, Canning, or any other topic discussed. Miss Doan Saunders, of the Extension Division of Agriculture, will talk at the Farmers' Community Meeting on "Home-making." All the housekeepers should be certain to hear what she has to say.

Is Good Farmer.

Morgan Hughes ought to be able to tell the audiences something about farming for he is a success both as a farmer and a talker on Extension work for the College of Agriculture. He has farmed all his life in Warren county and has made a reputation which has grown until the Country Gentleman sent one of its staff correspondents down to get the story and the story appeared last spring giving Morgan Hughes credit for being the best farmer in Kentucky. Fortunately Morgan Hughes was a successful farmer before he began to talk in public. So he does not lecture but tells talks about "Just Farming." He is a plain, old, shrewd, but always has something worthwhile to say. The practical farmer should be certain to hear him at the Farmers' Community Meeting at Burlington.

Keep Land Fat.

Bumper crops grow on fat land. But bumper crops must be fed and this land, so the farmer must be a feeder of land or a feeder of cattle and land. Every farmer who makes a success must be a student of and must take a definite delight in his fat fields. Every good farmer ought to hear George Roberts of the College of Agriculture, talk on "Keeping the Land Fat," as Rob. Roberts has had years of experience with the five experiment fields in different portions of Kentucky. He has experimented with lime, legumes and fertilizers on the plots and knows what has yielded results that will pay in dollars and cents. He will be certain to show ideas by hearing his talk. The Community Meeting at Burlington.

Conserve the Child

The war has taught the people to conserve wheat, sugar and fat. The war should also have taught the people the value of conserving the child, after all. On half a century after Dr. C. B. Cornell, of the University of Kentucky, will talk at the Farmers' Community Meeting at Burlington on "Conserve the Child," and should be heard by every parent who has a child in school.

Have a Good Table

To have a good table requires plenty of fresh vegetables and fruit. Fresh vegetables and fruit in abundance requires time and attention to both garden and orchard. Not many years ago the garden was a woman's job, and orchards took care of themselves. But now, on half a century after Dr. C. W. Matthews will come to the high cost of living when he talks at the Farmers' Community Meeting at Burlington next week on "Boost Garden and Orchard." He has been connected with the College of Agriculture at Lexington for years and an authority on the subject of fruits and vegetables. He will show people and their country cousins should both be out to get ideas of how to have better gardens and more profitable orchards.

The Cheers in London.

New York Times

The great victory parade in London was not only a celebration of victory, but was fully as much a tribute to Britain's allies and associates in the war. All accounts make that plain. The greatest tribute to a single man who was not the French commander—that place was held by Marshal Petain—but the Commander in Chief of all the allied forces. From Belgium to Siam the enormous crowd, said to be the largest even seen in London, cheered the troops who had marched and fought shoulder to shoulder with the British. But the greatest enthusiasm next to that which was naturally displayed for the British soldiers and sailors themselves, was for the French and Americans. Neither is there any divergence in the reports as to the heartfelt sincerity and spontaneity of it. The frank and hearty good-will and admiration for our men and for the French stood out so conspicuously that every correspondent who has shown no liking for England report it.

Now, this new friendship and good feeling among these three great nations is a precious thing, not to be thrown away, but to be conserved with care. It is one of the greatest guarantees of the world's peace that could be imagined; but even if that were not the case, even if the war had never had, what right-minded man would not have welcomed with joy for its own sake a day in which among these three nations all old grudges and suspicious should disappear and hearty friendship and good feeling should prevail?

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott entertained at dinner Wednesday in honor of their cousin, Mrs. A. J. Barker and granddaughter, Miss Barker, Moses Scott and wife, Pepper Smith and wife, Mr. Sebe Berkshire, Cad Berkshire and wife and Mrs. Wood Stephens. All enjoyed the day, especially that good dinner.

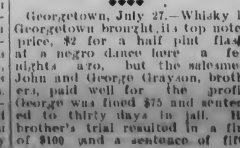

Mrs. A. J. Barker and granddaughter and Mrs. Wood Stephens were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cad Berkshire for several days the past week.

Mrs. A. J. Barker, of Tenn., and Mrs. Wood Stephens, of Grange Hall, have been visiting their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Pepper Smith entertained at dinner last Saturday in honor of Mrs. A. J. Barker and granddaughter, of Tennessee. With the Smith family, Cad Berkshire and wife, and Mrs. Wood Stephens were enjoyed by all. May Pepper and a good wife live to serve many more such.

A HEART-TO-HEART TALK

O. C. Peyton, D. D.

Nothing is so thoroughly unreasonable as unbelief, and yet nothing is so common. The depravity of our nature is clearly seen in the fact that God is the last thing we believe. We give credit to what is told us by our fellowmen. We should receive and believe the words of an angel. We constantly have the talismans of Satan, but hard it is to believe to the fullest measure the words of our God. He sends us through an angel the glad tidings of salvation through his own Son, and we say by our conduct, "I can believe anyone but God—anything but his word." This is awful, but it is plainly and strictly true. So Israel acted in their desert, and so we act in our present difficulties. They believed just so long as they saw God's wonderful works. Then they waited for his counsel. We often think that if we saw miracles, or heard a voice from heaven, we would believe. But we are mistaken. This has been tried and it has been found to be again and again that if we believed not Moses and the prophets neither would we believe through one voice from the dead. If God is to be believed, we must have faith and he must give it. We can never really believe him save as he works faith in our hearts by the power of the Holy Spirit. Faith in God is the best blessing. It is the azure and the forerunner of every blessing, temporal and spiritual. That God's bounty can supply He is the giver of faith. He alone can give it. Little faith it can be clearly seen works ruin to our lives. It restricts, usefulness, hinders, spiritual perfection, makes us timid and nervous, leaves us anxious about temporal affairs. The men and the women whom God has most signally honored have been men and women of strong, unwavering faith. Such have pleased God. He wants to be believed and trusted and the hand of gracious bounty is wide open to those who are open to him at his word and act upon it. Abraham, Noah, Moses, Elijah, Isaiah, Nehemiah, Paul and many others made their lives useful and glorious beyond description by the exercise of faith in God. In this world of sin and sorrow, the only way to escape is by faith in God. It is the law of the spiritual realm over which God rules. Faith in God and your life will be full of blessings.

Money Going to Europe.

Omaha Bee.

Reports from postal authorities that large sums of money are being sent from Omaha to Europe by foreign-born residents who are anxious to assist relatives and friends over there money possibly be duplicated in other parts of the country. It is a very natural state of affairs, but one that may have a dire bearing on conditions at home. Many weeks ago it was noted at New York that the outgoing tide of foreign money was taking away much cash, the hoarding savings of years of work at high wages, and unable them to take a fresh objection is related to this, and it may contribute to the rehabilitation of the old countries, where progress is seriously retarded because of the lack of ready cash. Government support is almost impossible credit, and may be withdrawn, but the stream of money flowing in the direction of Europe that have been shut out of mail service for nearly a year is certain to have a serious effect on the work of the world.

Consumers to Blame

Washington, July 24--George H. Cushing, Managing Director of the American Wholesale Coal Association, told the House Resources Committee that consumers would be to blame for the coal famine which the country probably would face next winter.

"There is plenty of coal in the ground," he said, "and plenty of miners to get it out. But unless the coal users of the country buy the coal which is not mined."

Mr. Cushing said coal produced before April 1 had been burned and that production since then had fallen short of the yearly demand by at least 125,000,000 tons. Part of this shortage can be made up, he said, if coal orders are placed before railroads are tied up with movement of crops. After that it will be too late, he added.

FREEDOM CAN COME ONLY THROUGH LAW

One of the striking facts about the international history of the past several hundred years is the clocklike regularity with which at the beginning of each century a cataclysmic world war has broken out and threatened the onward march of civilization, in spite of the contrary desires of the great mass of the world's people. At the beginning of the seventeenth century it was the bloody Thirty Years' War which devastated Europe like a plague; at the beginning of the eighteenth century it was the long struggle between Louis XIV and the Allied States of Europe; at the beginning of the nineteenth it was the far-reaching Napoleonic wars which swept Europe like a consuming fire. At the conclusion of every one of these warring wars the statesmen of an exhausted Europe, sincerely anxious to guarantee and secure the future peace of the world, concluded epoch-making treaties, by which the map of Europe was substantially remade in the full belief that the formula had at last been found for a permanent and enduring peace. Yet each peace proved as transitory as the one which preceded it; and at the beginning of the twentieth century we have found ourselves once again plunged, quite against the wishes of the great majority of mankind, into a cataclysmic struggle, recalling all the savagery of the Thirty Years' War three centuries before.

Cause and effect are changeless and eternal; can any one who reads history truly doubt but that if we conclude a peace to-day, no different in substance or structure from the Peace of Munster in 1648, the Treaty of Utrecht of 1713, or the Treaty of Vienna of 1815, it will be only a question of time until we are once again engulfed in an even more terrible world war than that through which we have just passed. If the treaty of 1919 does no more than to rearrange boundaries and impose indemnities, if it allows the continuation of the old international lawlessness and does not organize international society into an ordered community of states, there can be no mistaking the fact that all the peace of the past four years will have been largely in vain; for as surely as night follows day, within a measurably period of time we shall have to face the same agony again.

International lawlessness may have suited well enough at a time when states were self-sufficient and insulated units. But that time has passed. Whether we like it or no, internationalism has come in fact. Since the Industrial Revolution some nations have transformed themselves from agricultural into great industrial communities; the very existence of these nations depends upon the uninterrupted international exchange of their manufactured goods for raw products and foodstuffs. If England were cut off from international intercourse today she would starve inside of a few months. Morally and psychologically, no nation can economically survive if it has ceased to be isolated units. The national Prussian theory of the State, and the Prussian belief that might is a force of more practical value than right, has borne its international fruitage in the wreckage of homes all around the world. The Bolshevism of Russia is the vital concern of America on the opposite hemisphere. Dependency and interplay of nation upon nation constitutes an actual internationalism that will not be denied; and if we will have our law accord with the existing facts which have temporarily outdistanced it, we must develop in our law a real internationalism. Otherwise, our international law will be and can be only futile theory, with no power to control actual conduct; for no law which is out of accord with existing facts can prove a real factor in human development. If, therefore, there is to be such a thing as a future as international law, there must be some legal organization of international society; in some form or other there must be a League of Nations.

Paradoxical as it may seem, freedom can come only thru law. The absolute individual freedom which the anarchist dreams of in a society without government is in fact a logical impossibility; because the removal of all restraint by the social organization could only mean that the liberty of each would be put at the mercy of every other individual who cared to rob or plunder or wreck another's home. It is only by curbing the anti-social and criminal impulses of all that each member of the community can attain that security and freedom from intolerable interference which makes possible freedom of action and liberty of life.

This self-evident principle is clearly true of international, no less than of national life. If within the family of nations there is no method of restricting or keeping in check the criminal state, if every nation is free to follow its unbridled and chauvinistic ambitions, no people can be free to follow its own chosen destiny and desires. Under the system of international lawlessness which has prevailed in the past there has been in fact no real freedom or national independence. Prussia complained that she feared the French war of revanche; France was forced against her will to adopt a burdensome system of military conscription because of Prussia's army; Nations which wanted peace were compelled to build huge navies and burden their people with heavy taxes not only for war, but for the maintenance of a world within its own house. The increase in the military budget of a neighbor state forced an increase in the home budget, quite apart from home desires. A Balkan quarrel in which America on the other side of the world had little interest finally resulted in forcing peace-loving America into the sacrifice of countless of her men and of her money, to gain—what? No land, no treasure, no economic privileges. To gain freedom alone—freedom to work out a nation's own destiny unimpeded by the sinister designs and selfish ambitions of other peoples. There is only one way in which such freedom can be obtained. Only thru some international organization of society to suppress and curb the unjust and oppressive aggression of large states upon small or of combinations of the criminally minded upon the law-abiding—only thus can national freedom and liberty ever come.

FRANCIS BOWES SAYRE, Assistant Professor of Law, Harvard University.

A Needed Haven.

Men and women will not live intelligently—no, they will not—that is to say, they will not willingly live as they should live. That is why men and women sicken, suffer and die, and always to great surprise, for, though death is the oldest fact in human experience, it appears to the individual to be always new, strange and unwelcome.

We are familiar with the apt statement that more people die their graves with their teeth than ever were killed in battle. This is, of course, true and quite as many more approach early graves because of their inability to master their appetites in other directions.

We may pass without extended remark the obvious facts which result from dissensions in the form of eating and drinking, or other excesses, but there is one form of dissipation so prevalent, so obvious to all as to need no mention that it might be well for society, through its Legislatures, to take the matter in hand.

We have all sorts of state institutions for the crippled, the blind, the insane, the deaf, etc. Now, why shouldn't we have one for the special benefit of business men and women, housewives, professional men and laborers among us who are such fools that they will not stop work until the ancient Seythe Man yells at them the three warnings into their ears?

The banker sticks to his post, the lawyer, the doctor, the teacher, the mother in the home, the clerk and employer, and a host of others carry on their shoulders a burden heavier and more hateful than was Sinbad's old Man of the Sea to that enterprising sailor, for they do it with full consciousness of what must be the inevitable result for them if they do not stamp it flat under their feet. They will not do this, so why not make them do it?

While our Legislatures are formulating every conceivable kind of statute, why doesn't some humanitarian genius introduce and have enacted into law a bill providing for the founding, building and maintenance of a hospital for tired, overworked and burdened people who haven't the sense to know what is the matter with them? All such people should be "sent up" for ten days, ranging from thirty days to two years, and they should be kept under duress until their nerves become normal, their appetites keen, their muscles tanned and toughened, their entire systems drained of the fatigue microbe.

Voluntarily the majority of grubbers in this beautiful vineyard of life will never lay off from work and worry, and so, for the good of the posterity, for the good of the state and for their own well-being they should be taken in hand and made to behave for a few weeks or months.

A state institution for the eating-of-the-candle at both ends—well, what's the matter with that idea?—Enquirer.

MUST RAISE SUNKEN VESSELS

After War Problem That Is Now Confronting the Maritime Nations of the World.

One of the greatest problems that is brought near by the threat of hostilities is that of salvaging over 15,000,000 tons of shipping that lie on the ocean's floor. This colossal tonnage, which is equivalent to something like 3,000 vessels of various size, includes more than one argosy that would have driven Captain Kidd and his confederates of the Spanish main into insanities of greed.

In the depths of the Atlantic there lies one ship that went down with a large consignment of billions of dollars worth of large amount of paper money; while in the region of the Mediterranean there lies a boat laden with pearls from the East worth many thousands of dollars.

Before navigation and the fishing industry can be resumed with complete safety all these wrecks, especially those in the shallow waters, around Britain, must be raised. Trawlers cannot work offensively when their nets catch heavily laden instead of fish, and the danger of their submerging wrecks to other vessels is obvious.

German honor has been carried to the graves, according to a Berlin paper, and the paper might have added that the corpse did not rest in a very long coffin. Walter News and Observer.

ARSENATE OF LEAD HARMFUL

Sprays Should Be Applied With Caution, as Foliage of Stone Fruits Is Tender.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The foliage of stone fruits, as cherry, plum and peach, is on the whole quite tender, and the arsenical sprays should be employed with caution. Arsenic of lead is least likely to do harm, though more than two applications especially to peach, may cause shotholing and dropping of leaves, and burning of fruit.

SETTING OUT BERRY PLANTS

Those Which Grew the Preceding Year Are Generally Used Except in Autumn Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
In setting out raspberries, blackberries, dewberries, and strawberries, young plants which grew the preceding season are generally used, except when they are planted in the autumn. In that case plants of the current season's growth are used.

CURCULIOS MAY BE REDUCED

Insects May Be Removed by Jarring Trees in Spring and Collecting From Sheets.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Certain insects, notably the plum and quince curculios, may be much reduced in number by regularly jarring the trees in the early spring, collecting the insects as they fall on sheets or special cloth-covered frames.

SPRAYING OFTEN NEGLECTED

Or All Orchard Work, It Is Most Likely Slighted—Fruit Grower Should Study Subject.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Of all orchard work, spraying is most likely to be slighted or neglected. It is important, therefore, that every fruit grower make a study of the why and wherefore of spraying and have an intimate knowledge of spraying materials and machinery.

Wheat threshing which has been in full swing for the past two days, is progressing. The yield is disappointing according to reports received from threshmen; the wheat runs largely to straw this year. The University of California is just now turning out more bachelor girls than men. According to the seasonal announcement, 440 young women will receive bachelor degrees, to 317 for young men. The old-fashioned idea that a bachelor was a human being who wore trousers and a mustache has gone glimmering. Now a college bachelor is more apt to run to hobbles skirts and lace powder.—Los Angeles Times.

A great many of the farmers are getting their wheat to market immediately. It is the best crop. It is not much of a haul to market a considerable crop in a very short time where a truck is employed.

The time for breaking land for wheat is near at hand. Not so large a crop as that of last fall will be planted in Boone county this fall as the 1919 crop did not yield so well as was expected before it was harvested.

Fine weather last Saturday for a picnic and a large crowd of young people gathered at Harvest Home grounds where they enjoyed the afternoon tripping the light fantastic to their own satisfaction.

A very large per cent of the wheat crop has been threshed and the yield generally has been disappointing and the quality inferior. The unfavorable weather in May injured the crop greatly.

When the election report from Kenton county came in last Saturday night the Carroll men saw the handwriting on the wall. Thomas Cromwell's post card election forecast published in the Cincinnati Enquirer the Sunday preceding the primary election was a tremendous fact.

If there ever was a primary election held in Boone county in which so little interest was taken it has escaped the memory of all.

Only four Republicans voted for their candidates at Burlington last Saturday and one of them spoiled his ballot and it was not counted. They will do better in November, no doubt.

As is usual the Democrats have furnished the Republicans considerable ammunition for use in the final drive in November. Strother and Lusby had a neck and neck race.

The August term of the Boone Circuit Court will begin next Monday with about the usual number of suits on the docket. The term can last two weeks if the business demands.

A Narrow Escape

Whiel driving from this city to her home near Mt. Pleasant Saturday, Mrs. Truman Riggs narrowly escaped serious injury when her horse ran away. At the Marble bridge a shaft came loose from the buggy and dropped. The horse attempted to run but was held by Mrs. Riggs until a line broke. Seeing that she would probably be killed if she remained in the buggy, Mrs. Riggs climbed to the top of a lot of merchandise piled in the front of the buggy and leaped to the ground. She was painfully bruised, but not seriously injured.

Earl McIntosh was near in his car and he stated that the horse would be instantly killed when she struck the ground. A little further on the other shaft broke loose from the buggy. McIntosh told Mrs. Riggs and the contents of the buggy on to her home.

The horse was caught by Ben Cochran near the top of the McIntosh hill. Its body was bruised from coming in contact with a telephone pole, but it was badly hurt. The buggy was not damaged to any great extent. Three dozen glass cans in the buggy were not damaged.—Indiana Exchange.

A HEART TO HEART TALK

O. C. Peyton, D. D.

Many things cast us down, but only God can truly comfort us. He is the God of all comfort. He delights to comfort his people when comfort will do them good. He is the most of all concerned about the spiritual welfare of his people, and he is going to make all things else conduce to that. He is graciously preparing his people for the trial and eternal home. Much of discipline is often needed. We are prone to wonder: The things of the world engross our attention. The frivolities of life and time and labor are given to perishing things. But we are created anew in Christ Jesus and those things, passing things can never give us peace and joy. Having once tasted of the grapes of Esau it is not to be expected that we can find any real enjoyment in the apples of Sodom or the onion or garlic of Egypt. Oh, there are higher, richer and better things than these things, things that we can induce them to seek the higher things, they will lose their taste for the lower things. They will be unafraid to believe things of earth have no value at all to the one, who, by faith realizes his relationship to God and the precious things that are in him.

I love to tell the people of God of their glorious inheritance in him. They are not their own. They have been bought with price. They are God's property by creation, by redemption and by self-surrender, and they can find their real joy only in him. He reveals himself as the God of true comfort and consolation. These things I delight to tell the people of God. If we have not heard of him, believing people of God, here is a mine inexhaustible. Its treasures are of untold value. The riches of God in him. Sometimes when we catch a fair glimpse of what it means. These years now I've been telling the people of God, that have set under my preaching some little about what God has done, is doing and is planning to do for his believing people. Their inheritance is one of unspeakable grandeur and glory. They are certain to come at last into full possession. Believers in Christ are heirs of all God has and here all he does is to give. The God of all comfort is your God. Lift up your voice and sing to his praise.

Did Not Like Tennessee

M. M. Black, of Bloomington, O., and Fred Conway, of Erlanger, were callers at this office last Saturday morning. Mr. Black was on his way home from Tennessee, where he had been looking at land with a view to purchasing, but he was not favorably impressed with the country and made no purchase. Mr. Black reported the corn crop in his part of Ohio as very fine, the rains this season having come just as it needed them. He counts on making 75 bushels of corn to the acre this year. He does not like the State of Tennessee, although the people have been very kind to him since he has been among them. His son Allen is pitching battle in the Battle Creek, Michigan, club and has been very successful this season.

It Had Not Come Off The Roost

Blanton Pope, down on Middle Creek, called up Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume, early last Monday morning and reported that a horse had been stolen Sunday night. The officer told him to look around and he would find it. To the surprise of the Sheriff, the officer again and told him he had found the horse in the hen house, when the word went back over the wire, you hadn't give it time to come off the roost.

HES HAD HIS LAST WAR.
"Do you think there will be another war?"
"I don't know. But one thing I'll tell you, if there is, I'll go to it, if the man to it."

AS THINGS LOOK ON THE MOON

No Air There, Sky Appears Black and Sun Blue.

How would you like to be on the moon for about five minutes, just to look around?
Of course, you would have to take a supply of air with you. There is none of it on the moon. This lack of atmosphere, however, would give you some novel and even spectacular effects. Owing to it, the sky, as you viewed it, would be black and the sun blue.

The brightness of the sky, as we are accustomed to see it, and the yellow redness of the sun are optical effects, due to interference with the earth's atmosphere. In reality the sun is a very brilliant blue in color. And, as seen from the moon, the stars which themselves are suns would be of many hues—some of them green.

From the moon the stars would have a wonderful brilliancy in the black sky—Sirius, for example, showing an almost dazzling radiance. The heavens would seem literally ablaze along the pathway of the Milky Way.

Nothing ever happens on the moon. For countless millions of years nothing has happened there. Not even a single housewreck. It is a dead orb.

Not even a pebble? Well there is this to be said. The moon, like the earth, is increasingly bombarded by multitudes of meteorites—fragments of star-dust falling upon it out of space. Some of them might kick up quite a few pebbles.

All of the void of space seems to be filled with such star dust. In every twenty-four hours, it is estimated, 100,000,000 meteorites enter the earth's atmosphere. All but a few very big ones are burned up by friction with the air before they reach the surface of our planet.

Upon the moon millions of them must arrive daily without any such interference. It may be presumed, then, that the surface of our satellite is thickly sprinkled with star dust big and little.

On the moon, no matter how excellent your hearing, you could never perceive a sound. If a thousand tons of TNT were exploded near you in your neighborhood—supposing such a thing possible—it would make not the slightest noise. Sound is conveyed by the air, and above remarked, there is no air on the moon.

The sunshine in the daytime, would be unbearably intense. But would it warm you? Probably not—though some authorities insist otherwise. At night you would be cold. You could not get from the zero of space, and you would freeze to death in a minute.

Some astronomers are of the opinion that the moon was once upon a time part of the earth, and that, while the latter was in a plastic state, our satellite was torn from it. They point to the Pacific ocean as the lash from which it was rudely rent.

Maybe so. But nobody knows what the surface of the moon, of which we never see much more than half, is covered with so-called "craters" that bear no likeness to anything on the earth. They are bowl-shaped, usually circular, and rimmed by cliffs 5,000 to 10,000 feet high. There are at least 25,000 of them visible to the telescope.

The late Prof. Pickering, of Harvard, was convinced that the moon has a little moon of its own. He estimated its diameter, which can be seen only when the earth passes between the sun and the lunar orb, throwing the latter into its shadow.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Road Will Ask For $90,000.

It has developed since the Bedford meeting last week that Galatin county may be called upon to raise about $90,000 instead of the $30,000 that had first been assigned as a quota.

This would make the county's part $5,000 per mile for each mile of the highway that would pass through the county, and as the county is called on for only one-fourth of the total amount, it would mean that the county would be paying the other three-fourths, it means that we are to have a road costing approximately $20,000 per mile and this is an estimate of cost is adhered to.

An interesting meeting, well attended, in the interest of the Federal Aid Road, was held at Concord school house Tuesday evening, L. J. Spencer was present from Waraw. Attorney John L. Vest came over from Waraw.

Some idea of the support the new road would receive from the upper end of the county might be gleaned from the fact that at the Tuesday night gathering $11,800 was subscribed, practically all of it coming from the Napoleon district—Waraw Independent.

Having completed a course at the Kentucky Agricultural College Prof. Caywood arrived home last Sunday. He will now turn his attention to securing pupils for the Boone County High School for the ensuing term.

THE PANAMA CANAL

New York Herald.

Most interesting is the story of the passing of the Pacific armada through the locks of the Panama Canal. When the news came that the dreadnaughts slid into the lower locks "as easily as a shuttle into a sewing machine" and that the great steel gates "closed like jaws," lifting the ships "as easily and rapidly as rowboats," all Americans thrilled with pride for the wonderful achievement of American genius and pluck. Twenty destroyers went through the canal in groups of ten and shortly the entire fleet of warships "was at anchor in the fresh water of Gatun Lake 55 feet above sea level."

For the first time the Panama Canal demonstrates on a large scale its navigational value and justifies its building. It came as a monument to American engineering skill and American perseverance. While President Roosevelt undoubtedly deserves much of the credit for making possible this achievement, a grateful country does not forget General George W. Goethals, the benevolent "spot of Panama," and Gen. William C. Gorgas, the chief sanitary officer, whose work transformed the isthmus from a deadly hole to a locality of healthfulness.

The work of construction is a story familiar to all. The problems were solved and the canal includes a deep artificial canyon nine miles long; a dozen huge locks, each containing more solid concrete than the Great Pyramid of Cheops; 47 pairs of steel gates, each as broad and as tall as a six-story building; and the Chagres River and fortification of the entrance. The canal was opened for navigation on August 15th, 1914. It is 4 1/2 miles long and has a channel 30 feet wide. At the end of the fiscal year 1917 the United States had spent about $139,000,000 on the canal and it is estimated that it will cost $100,000,000 to pay for the usual expenditure.

It is now shown that this great achievement is justified as a part of the cost line of the United States and the connecting link between the East and West—attack as well as means of defending the two oceans against.

RACE RIOTS

Pro-German and Bolshevist Work Bearing Its Fruit.

New York Times.

The outbreak of race riots in Chicago, following the reports from Washington shows clearly enough that the thing is not sporadic. At least it is not confined to one case against such a conclusion. It is so clear a case that it is time for the authorities to stop wool gathering and begin to find out facts.

Bolshevist agitation has been extended among the negroes, especially those in the South, and there is a prima facie case against such a conclusion. It is rather hard to believe that in such widely separated cities as Washington and Chicago there could be an outbreak of violent racial animosity within a certain number of days, and all without influence of a prima facie case outside source. There is no use in shutting our eyes to facts; and we know that in the early days of the race riots, the pro-German and pacifist propaganda among the negroes, which may well have turned into a Bolshevist or into Socialistic propaganda since.

We stand at present amid the outbreak of social forces of which we know little. How far the original propaganda among the negroes may have been utilized subsequently by the I. W. W. we do not yet know. There is no doubt, however, that there is more in it than mere casual flaming-out of race hatred in cities the least likely to harbor such feelings. The words, the situation presupposes intelligent direction and management. It need not be said that the worst enemies of the negro race are those who may have incited them to stir up a dormant feeling which cannot result in anything but injury to them. What the German and the Bolsheviki ever care about the final situation of their dupes?

Drive on Tobacco Admitted.

Chicago, August 3. — Miss Anna Adams Gordon, President of the W. C. T. U., admitted today that her organization is conducting a campaign for an amendment to the constitution to prohibit the manufacture and sale of tobacco. "For nearly 40 years," said Miss Gordon, "National Women's Christian Temperance Union has been conducting an educational campaign against alcohol and all narcotic poisons, including tobacco. We never in the past have conducted in the public schools, the Sunday schools and thru the circulation of literature.

"Our organization is now conducting a campaign for an amendment to the national constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of tobacco."

WHY SADNESS IN OLD AGE.

It is a common belief that as a person advances in years, he becomes not only a wiser, but a sadder man. That one should gain knowledge as he grows older is thoroughly in a favor, but that he should become increasingly burdened with the cares of life and saddened because of hopes that have not been fulfilled is not a necessary condition.

It is true that the clouds that gather about the setting sun do take a sober coloring from an eye that has kept watch in man's mortality, to paraphrase Wordsworth a bit, and that the thought of constantly lessening activity and prospects which age entails is enough to make one pause and consider. But consideration that goes far enough will reveal the all time, whether of this world or another, is an unending opportunity for progression.

After a review of the whole matter of age is something that has to do with the mind rather than the body. And when the body begins to fail, when gray appears, the step becomes less springy, sleep more difficult and joy in things that used to please an impossibility, address should not be made a result.

The mind is a great crucible which receives and transfigures in some fashion impressions from all the objects and facts of life. The will is the master which determines what the transfiguration shall be. A man can get his will retrained, and when he is, regardless of age, he can make of his existence a heaven or a hell, whether he be old or young, rich or poor, in a favored spot of the earth, on desert soil or fallen on evil days.

Exercise of the will cannot at last state of mind, and off death, and not induce prolonged health or material welfare. But in all these things, and entrance regardless of its material accomplishments, the will is kept properly on the alert can lead him in hope.

Oh, well for him whose will is strong. For him whose will is weak, or rather allowed to become weak, there is joy neither in a sunset nor in a sunrise. And the bright light of noonday will only dazzle and bewilder, rather than encourage and inspire.

"beyond the sunset and the paths of all the western stars." It strengthens a man in hope and optimism, the yearning possibilities are the last thing that ought to characterize age.—Kansas City Star.

The Self-Feeder Hog

Now that the self-feeder has made good and come to stay, the question of what class of hogs is the proper type to entrust to themselves the care of the advantage has arisen in some of the Northern States. That hogs of a certain build and constitution will always feed out better than others under ordinary conditions is well known by all farmers. The long, leggy razorback kind will never do as well as the more compact form, and the one is trying for the bacon type. The big-boned type, with enough daylight under them to allow for will always feed out better than the broad backed, square-made, blocky form will assuredly give good account of themselves when put on balance scales. Pigs may be pig, but hogs are not always hogs when criticised by the experienced feeders. Any kind of swine that will not put on the extra self-feeding lot than under ordinary farm conditions, but the experienced feeders will become more critical as to type and bone when good money is put in the hog and the self-feeder.—Ex.

Scrapped in Berry Patch

The berry picking campaign in the northern part of this county has been a lively one, a large number of nonresident pickers visiting the fields every day, and in several instances there have been pitched battles pulled off, in the berry patch, getting the worst of the struggle. One of the most exciting engagements reported was between two women, one armed with a club and the other defending with her corset which she had shed on account of the intense heat of the day. The woman to whom the berry patch belonged, armed with a large club went to protect her property, and the battle ensued, club against corset, the former winning the day, retaking the invaded territory.

The Tobacco Crop.

Pepper Smith, of Bellevue, one of the county's extensive dealers in tobacco, was heard to say last Monday that he never saw the crop so unpromising at this time of the year, but he expects a pretty good crop if rains strike before the proper time. Jacob Cook, who lives down on the East Bend road said he could see a great change for the better in the tobacco crop in a few days, and he anticipates a pretty good crop of the weed.

Tobacco Crop Uneven

The tobacco crop in this county is unusually uneven, but it is a crop that can make a change in a few days. There is no telling what it may do. Occasionally there is a good field but the average is far below.

Misses Wanda and Barbara Motter of Bloomington, Illinois, who have been here on a visit to their aunt Mrs. Hattie Motter-Miller before returning home, Mrs. W. Miller, arrived here as far as Cincinnati. Miss Wanda Motter contracted last week to teach French in the Greencastle, Ind., High School the coming scholastic year.

Saturday, the frame dwelling house at the junction of the roads near the Walton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, occupied by Rev. Grundy Wheeler, was destroyed by fire, catching from a leaky gasoline stove. The flames spread so rapidly that there was no chance to save anything and Wheeler lost all of his household goods and wearing apparel, and in trying to save the property suffered severe burns about the face and arms, and was also badly cut in the arm. The house was recently bought by Mrs. Julia Bagby from Miss Emma Hunt, and was valued at about $1,500 and was partly covered by insurance.

Normal School, who is performing the duties of conductor and instructor, was present and entered upon his work in a very earnest manner. When the Institute convened after the noon recess he delivered a very able address that was given the best of attention by all present, and elicited numerous compliments. The showers of rain the past week have been local, consequently the relief from excessive heat has been only temporary and at intervals.

Circuit court will begin next Monday. There are several damages on the docket.

LONG LIFE ENDED

After a Journey of Four Score Years, W. P. Sullivan Passes Away.

W. P. Sullivan, in his 81st year, died of kidney trouble at his home near town about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday. Mr. Sullivan had been in poor health for some time and about three weeks ago the fatal attack came. He is survived by his wife, who was a daughter of the late James Bruce, an son, Bert, one daughter, Mrs. Anna McMullen, and four brothers, Jasper, Newton, Woodford and Lewis Sullivan, all citizens of this county. He has five grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

W. P. Sullivan was a man of sterling qualities, a devoted husband and father and a neighbor who could be relied upon to respond whenever called, and he was never better pleased than when doing a kindly act. He was a gentleman of the old school, scrupulously honest and correct in all his dealings with his fellow men, and was, therefore, honored and esteemed by all who knew him. He belonged to a generation that has been the subject of many of the hardships to which the people of this country were subjected at an early day, and which prepared him for a strenuous life in later years.

The burial will take place today (Thursday) at 3 p. m., in the family lot in the Odd Fellows cemetery near town. Rev. J. B. Walton is conducting the services at the grave. The family has the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

HESSIAN FLY IS VERY INJURIOUS

Another Outbreak of Pest Is Expected, Perhaps Within Next Few Months.

CAPABLE OF GREAT DAMAGE

Insect Feeds Chiefly on Wheat Plant and in Smaller Measure on Barley and Rye—Straws Break and Fall Before Harvest.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Knowledge in possession of experts of the United States department of agriculture leads to the belief that the Hessian fly, the worst enemy of wheat, has begun gradually to increase. The percentage of infestation, according to the fall count, showed a distinct increase over that of last year. The principal controlling parasites are apparently absent or very scarce, particularly in the middle West. Another outbreak of the pest is expected sometime within the next few months. The accompanying illustration, which is being distributed by the department as a poster, presents the means of combating it.

Among insect crop pests in the United States, the Hessian fly stands first in evil reputation and possibilities. In bad years, hundreds of thousands of acres of wheat may be totally destroyed or the yield reduced as much as 75 per cent by this parasite.

Named for Mercenaries.

The Hessian fly is not a native of America and nobody knows whence it came or how. It was noticed in 1779 on Long Island, N. Y., in the vicinity of the place where Lord Howe's army, largely Hessian mercenaries, was quartered. Hence the name. The popular belief was that the Hessians had brought the insect over in the straw used by them as bedding on board ships. Thus came the name—and that guess is as good as any as to how the fly got here. All that can be ascertained is that it arrived from some transatlantic country some time after the middle of the eighteenth century.

The Hessian fly is one-fourth of an inch long, of an obscure dark color, and appears much like a very small housefly. It lays a glossy egg one-fifth of an inch long, from which is hatched a maggot slightly smaller than the egg. This transforms into a pupa that appears like a flaxseed and is so called. From the flaxseed the adult fly emerges. Here are four forms so extremely unlike as to be confusing to any except the expert entomologist.

The fly usually deposits its eggs in grooves on the underside of the leaves of wheat. The larva, shortly after hatching, makes its way down the leaf and behind the sheath, continuing in young wheat to the roots of the plant. In older wheat it is able to go only to the joint below. Larvae are frequently so numerous as to be packed one against another and overlapping. Two generations a year are produced. Overwintering is accomplished in the flaxseed stage.

Destructive to Wheat.
The Hessian fly feeds chiefly on the wheat plant, and in a smaller measure on barley and rye. The oat plant is immune. The effect is that if infestation begins while the wheat is young, the plant grows without stem and becomes a mere mass of overgrown leaves. If infestation comes after jointing has begun, the straws break over and the wheat falls before harvest.

The distribution of this pest includes North Africa, western Asia, all of continental Europe, the British Isles, New Zealand, and portions of the United States and Canada. In the United States its range extends from the Canadian border as far south as northern Kansas, and the middle of the Dakotas. It includes, also, a narrow strip of the Pacific coast from Puget Sound to a point half-way down the California coast.

Kill Canadian Thistles.
Frequent cultivation will help kill a patch of Canadian thistles.

Will Pay Big Interest.

TO PROPAGATE BY GRAFTING

How to Prepare and Treat Scions and Stocks—Cover Cut Surfaces With Layer of Wax.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

All the common pomeaceous fruits (apples, pears and quinces), the stone fruits (peaches, plums, cherries and apricots), and the citrus fruits (lemons, limes and oranges) are now multiplied by grafting or budding. The progress in plant breeding and the great rapidity with which new sorts are now disseminated could not be obtained without the aid of budding or grafting. Under existing conditions it is not necessary for the originator of a new sort of apple to give any thought to the question of fixing that type so it may be reproduced from seed; the method of reproducing the sort does not enter as a factor into his efforts to secure the desired variation. Grafting or budding has settled that long ago; but were it otherwise, horticulturists would be studying different problems, and the nurseryman would be more of a scientist than a manufacturer.

A scion is a portion cut from a plant to be inserted upon another (or the same) plant, with the intention that it shall grow. Except for herbaceous grafting the wood for scions should be taken while in a dormant or resting condition. The time usually considered best is after the leaves have fallen, but before severe freezing begins. The scions are tied in bunches and buried in moist sand, where they will not freeze and yet be kept cool enough to prevent growth. Good results often follow cutting scions in the spring just before or at the time the grafting is to be done. If left grafting is the style to be employed, this practice frequently gives good results.

Scions for whip grafting is not desirable as not enough time is given for proper healing of the wound before planting time in the spring. The stock is the plant or part of a plant upon which or into which the bud or scion is inserted. For best results in grafting it is essential that the stock be in an active condition, or so that active growth can be quickly brought about.

This style of graft is particularly adapted to large trees when for any reason it becomes necessary to change the variety. Branches too large to be worked by other methods can be cleft grafted.

A branch one or one and one-half inches in diameter is severed with a saw. Care should be taken that the bark be not loosened from any portion of the stock. The exposed end with a broad thin chisel or grafting tool, then with a wedge or the wedge-shaped prong at the end of the grafting tool spread the cleft so that the scions may be inserted.

The scion should consist of a portion of the previous season's growth and should be long enough to have two or three buds. The lower end of the scion, which is to be inserted into the cleft, should be cut into the shape of a wedge, having the outer edge thick er than the other. In general, it is a good plan to cut the scion so that the lowest bud will come just at the top of this wedge, so that it will be near the top of the stock. By cutting the wedge thicker at one side the pressure of the stock is brought upon the outer growing part of both scion and stock, whereas the scion thicker on the inner side the conditions would be reversed and the death of the scion would follow. The importance of having an intimate connection between the growing tissues of both scion and stock cannot be too strongly emphasized, for upon this alone the success of grafting depends. To make this contact of the growing portions doubly certain, the scion is often set at a slight angle with the stock into which it is inserted in order to cause the growing portions of the two to cross.

After the scions have been set the operation of cleft grafting is completed by covering all cut surfaces with a layer of grafting wax.

MOTOR TRUCKS TO AID ROADS

Government to Give Army Equipment Valued at $45,000,000 to State Highway Departments.

More than $45,000,000 worth of motor trucks are about to be distributed by the secretary of agriculture through the bureau of public roads to the state highway departments. These trucks have been declared surplus by the war department and are being distributed to the states under the provisions of section 7 of the post office appropriation bill. They must be used by the states on roads constructed in whole or in part by federal aid, for which $200,000 trucks, which range in capacity from two to five tons, is to pay the loading and freight charges. Of the 20,000 motor vehicles to be acquired practically free by the states 11,000 are new and 9,000 are used, but all are declared to be in serviceable condition. The motors will be apportioned to states only upon request of the state highway departments on the basis of the requests received from the respective states, and in accordance with the apportionment provided in the federal aid law approved in 1910. The requirements of the laws are such that the bureau of public roads cannot distribute any trucks to counties or individuals.

FARMERS FAVOR GOOD ROADS

Recognized as Greatest Economic Need of Agricultural Communities in Eastern States.

Good roads are the greatest economic need for agricultural communities. This is the answer of 200 prominent farmers of the state of Maine to questionnaires which asked them to summarize urgent necessities to bring their districts up to the desired economic standard.

The farmers who answered the questionnaires were selected as those best fitted to answer the questions, and they were asked to furnish a digest of the situation in their respective communities with reference to acreage, crops, farm improvements, civic and social conditions, etc.

The definitions of the greatest needs covered a wide and interesting range. The largest record of needs was good roads, 85 emphasizing the urgent necessity of adequate highways. There were 45 who asked for more farm laborers, 44 for co-operative buying and selling, 35 for better school privileges, 29 for more blue-blooded stock, 29 for manufacturing plants, 29 for better marketing facilities, and 21 for greater credit extensions by banks.

ROADS AS DIVIDEND PAYERS

Where Good Roads Enable Farmer to Save One Hour Per Week He Makes Big Gain in Year.

If a farmer saves an hour a week by being enabled to use good roads as opposed to bad roads, it would mean 52 hours a year; estimating the use of man and team as being worth $6 a day, this means a saving of $31.20 a year.

Suppose his farm is assessed at $10,000, and the additional tax (by due to the issue of road bonds by the county runs to $1 per thousand, which would mean $10 a year additional taxes as against a saving of $31.20 on time alone. This means that he is investing $10 and drawing dividends of $31.20, an interest rate of 312 per cent.

TEXAS TO BUILD HIGHWAYS

According to Member of State Highway Commission Approximately $12,000,000 Available.

Approximately $12,000,000 is available for road construction work in Texas in 1913, according to R. M. Hubbard, a member of the state highway commission. This amount includes about $10,000,000 from the federal post office appropriation bill.

John Early's ResidencePartially Destroyed by Fire

The residence of John Early, at the top of the hill overlooking the town of Petersburg was partially destroyed by fire last Monday. The fire was discovered about 1:30 o'clock and it is supposed it had been burning quite a while owing to the headway it had gained. A large number of persons responded to the alarm and by a heroic struggle they succeeded in saving the lower story and all its contents as well as the contents of the 2nd story. The building is badly wrecked and the goods that were taken out are badly damaged. Mr. Early was painting the building and was using a painter's torch to remove the old paint, and in some manner the fire was communicated to the building which was frame and splendid food for flames. The building and contents were insured in the Boone county company, but the insurance will not cover the loss it is said. It was a well preserved old land mark in its neighborhood, and its destruction owing to its elevation the towns of Aurora and Lawrenceburg, Indiana, and Petersburg and the valley for a considerable distance up and down the Ohio river make a beautiful panorama.

Kentucky Wants Back FlagTaken By British In 1812.

Louisville, August 3.—Governor James D. Black, acting under a request of The Louisville Times, has asked John Buchanan of Louisville to be commissioner for the State of Kentucky to recover the flag taken by the British from the Kentucky Volunteer Regiment at the battle of the River Raisin in Michigan in the War of 1812. Buchanan, who has accepted the responsibility, is the only male line descendant of Colonel William Whitley, who led the Kentuckians in the battle.

The tattered emblem, which bears part of the State's motto, "United We Stand," is hanging in the Royal Hospital at Chelsea, London, according to Major Sir Evelyn Wrench, President of the English-Speaking Unit, who commented on the discovery to The Louisville Times. The newspaper persuaded Governor Black to seek its return.

As the story is told by Kentucky historians, the flag was taken from the volunteers, who started to the aid of a garrison under siege by British and Indian forces under Proctor, a Britisher, who had much influence with the Indians of the Northwest.

Near the River Raisin, Proctor ambushed the Kentuckians, who surrendered to superior numbers after a short skirmish. Proctor took the flag and made off with it, leaving the volunteers in charge of the Indians. The redskins, inflamed by liquor, massacred all but a few.

Dr. Carlyle, of Rabbit Hash was a caller at this office last Monday. He had a few days before returned from a trip thru Southern Indiana, where he said the crops are suffering for rain. The prospect for a corn crop could scarcely be any worse than the doctor reports them.

Hubert Conner, Secretary of the North Kentucky Fair, was in town last Monday and was very busy distributing the advertising matter of the fair which begins on the 30th inst. and continues four days. The usual number of liberal premiums will be awarded.

Negroes, Parties and Mobs.

New York World.

Several speakers at a meeting of colored people at Harlem attributed the race riots in Washington to the Democratic Administration, which had brought to the capital a great many Southern officeholders. While they were expressing this reprehensible sentiment a conflict between the whites and blacks as savage as any that took place at the capital was in progress in the Republic City of Chicago.

There are enough points of friction between the races without introducing party. The negro owes nothing to any party. He has been abandoned by all of them, most notably by the Republicans, who in 1877 traded his rights at the South to perfect the title of a stolen Presidency. Colored men assuming to lead their people should know by this time that the political and incidentally the legal privileges conferred upon them can never be enjoyed so long as they are the mere chattels of a party.

As for the speakers who advocated violence, they are even more grievously in error. The negro, as an American citizen, has every appeal as such must be to the law. Circumstances beyond the control of law or opinion under present conditions are always stimulating the mob spirit and it is against that very thing that both whites and blacks should be most impressively warned.

PENDELTON COUNTY.Falmouth Outlook.

Temporarily insane from the effects of strong drink and recent foul toward his wife who vainly entreated him to cease drinking and straighten up after a spree, James Lee, Jr., farmer, age 27 years, Tuesday afternoon ended his life by slashing his throat three times with an ordinary pocket-knife. Death was almost instantaneous.

Jasper Cummings, who owns the Falmouth Fair Grounds, has twenty acres of the finest tobacco in the county. The crop is even and has a fine color and a large part of it is being topped this week. The tobacco is being raised by four expert growers, R. C. Dills, Clay Cummings, Clifford Cummings and Jasper Cummings. A Mayville tobacco dealer has made an offer of 35 cents per pound for this crop, but the men were not tempted.

The Montgomery County Board of Equalization was ordered to recede the tax assessment of that county $1,800,000. The Board met and only increased the assessment $300,000, and defied the State Board of Equalization in making any further increase. The State Board took the bluff and bluff and accepted the small increase. Now in the future every county that has a reasonable boost will do as Montgomery county has done. The State Board is aware that the new tax laws will not stand the test of the courts. The law says that property must be assessed at 85 per cent of its actual value, but the county assessed at 40 per cent of its actual cash value.

Whitesburg, August 1.—Three moonshiners stills were destroyed here last night. The stills were destroyed by gallons of whisky and beer confiscated and the interests made in a moonshine raid along the headwaters of the Kentucky River, in Letcher county by United States Collector Stephen J. Cornett and a posse of deputy Sheriffs of this city. One of the stills was situated in a bluff overlooking the road, and the moonshiners were brought to Whitesburg and will be taken to London to stand trial.

The County Board of Education had a very interesting session last Tuesday. It seems that in some school districts the trustee had failed or refused to recommend a teacher, when it became the duty of County Board of Education to select a teacher for such districts. This was done and the patrons in the districts had been notified of the employment of a teacher, which it appears was not satisfactory to some of them and they filed protests, and it was the hearing of these protests that enlivened the Board's meeting last Tuesday.

Everything is in readiness for the Farmers' Community Meeting which will begin on the school house grounds this afternoon and close with the meeting next Sunday night. There is no doubt but the meetings held the afternoon and evenings the remainder of the week will be very beneficial to the farmers and they should turn out in full force. There is no admission fee charged at these meetings nor will the hat be passed for any purpose whatever.

Your Red Cross Is Still Busy*READ WHAT YOUR DOLLAR IS DOING*RED CROSS EXTENDS ACTIVITIES TO BENEFIT RURAL COMMUNITIES

THE Red Cross is your Red Cross, serving you at home, representing you abroad.

It is for you, in war emergency is past, to make the most of its far-reaching ability to serve.

Home Service work, undertaken by the Red Cross Department of Civilian Relief, served in war time to aid the families of fighting men and to relieve anxiety of soldiers in camps.

Out of experience gained in this work comes the Red Cross plan for the future. The common objective of all Red Cross work is to improve general living conditions, to conserve the health and to promote the welfare of all people.

In the larger cities community improvement has already reached a high state of development. It is left for the Red Cross to assist in furthering such work at the request of established agencies.

But in the small cities and towns the Red Cross service is only limited by the interest and response of the public to the opportunity offered by the peace time extension of the Red Cross.

Home Service work, undertaken by the Red Cross organization is open to all. All may benefit by making the most of its far-reaching ability to serve.

Health, education, the development of the public health nursing idea and all other forms of community betterment work will be dealt with as individual problems where Red Cross assistance is invited.

NEW DIRECTOR STATES PLANS FOR R. C. EXTENSION IN THE RURAL DISTRICTS

Do you know that there are 3,700 Home Service Sections now operating under the Red Cross organization in the United States. Of these, 2,900 are in places having a population under 8,000.

With these facts in mind, the Bureau of Rural Organization has been created in the Red Cross Department of Civilian Relief, and Prof. E. L. Morgan, of the faculty of the Massachusetts College of Agriculture, has been appointed director. In the future every Red Cross worker is to be informed as to where the community can get help in other than Red Cross work, and will consider it part of his duty to connect the community with those sources of help.

"There are numerous problems," says Professor Morgan, "which can be met only on the basis of a county. There are a number of counties in which this sort of work has been done and the following has been the general procedure:

"1. A get-together of the county-wide agencies for exchange of plans and projects and for mutual information about the work of each.

"2. A study of the county concerning the outstanding needs of the county as a whole and certain towns in particular.

"3. A conference of the people called by these various agencies.

"4. The presentation by various agencies of their program of work for the coming year.

"5. Some sort of medium through which the county-wide agencies may come together frequently to keep in touch with each other.

"The Red Cross does not assume that it is a correlating agency with a purpose of assembling other bodies. It is the plan of the workers to develop rural organizations in the various Red Cross divisions as rapidly as is feasible so that the development of the rural community, the heart and soul of country life, may be brought about."

REPORT SHOWS INCREASE IN HOME SERVICE WORK DURING THE PAST MONTH

WHILE the new work of the Red Cross Home Service Sections is being launched throughout Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, the aftermath of war cases is not being neglected.

The last monthly report from the Civilian Relief office in Cleveland shows 108 home service sections organized in Ohio—108 in Indiana and 144 in Kentucky. These 359 organized bands of workers have dealt with 40,799 families during the month—giving specialized information in 10,716 instances and rendering tangible service in 30,834 cases.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Leave no tender word unsaid,
Do good while life shall last;
You know the mill can never grind
With the water that is past.

WAR TIME DISHES.

UTS are rich in both protein and fat. A cupful of chopped peanuts equals a half pound of steak, chicken or leg of lamb. No meat except pork chops and sausage will provide enough fat to replace the fat found in a cupful of peanuts. Walnuts are not as rich in protein as peanuts; but they furnish nearly twice the amount of fats.

Egg Plant With Walnuts.—Boil an egg plant until tender, cut in pieces, remove the skin and mash the pulp. To the pulp add one cupful of chopped walnuts, two eggs well beaten, salt and pepper to season. Mix well, put into a well-greased baking dish, cover with well-buttered crumbs (the crumbs may be mixed with any sweet fat) and bake until brown.

Scalloped Onions With Peanuts.—Peel and cook six onions, chop two-thirds of a cupful of roasted peanuts, cook together two tablespoons each of fat and corn flour; add a cupful of milk and seasonings. Put the onion and peanuts in layers in a buttered baking dish, add the white sauce and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake until brown.

Prune Soups.—Take two cupfuls of top milk lukewarm, add one crushed junket tablet dissolved in a tablespoonful of water, two tablespoons of vanilla, a few grains of salt. Mix in the freezer can and let stand until the milk is thick, then freeze. Serve small portions in glasses with cream sauce.

Prune Sauce.—Take one cupful of cooked prunes, four candied green-gages plums, six candied cherries, two oranges, two tablespoons of lemon juice, one-third of a cupful of honey. Simmer all together gently, cool and add a half cupful of chopped nuts.

Sweet Potato and Peanut Croquettes.—Take one cupful of mashed sweet potato, one cupful of finely chopped peanuts, salt and pepper to taste. Shape like croquettes, roll in fine bread crumbs well buttered and bake in a hot oven until brown. Serve with a white sauce mixed with two tablespoons of chili sauce.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

LITTLE left over oat meal may be fried in small cakes and served with bacon for the next day's breakfast or if two cupfuls or more is at hand, make an Oatmeal Brown Bait.

Pare and slice three apples, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon or nutmeg and put into a deep baking dish in alternate layers with oatmeal. Molasses or corn syrup may be used in place of sugar. Bake in a moderate oven until the apples are soft. Serve with cream or a sauce made of apple juice.

Corn Chowder.—Take two cupfuls of finely chopped corn, one cupful of milk, two cupfuls of rice or vegetable stock, one cupful of diced potatoes, two tablespoons of chopped onion, two tablespoons of butter, four tablespoons of corn flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful each of pepper and paprika, and one tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Boil the potatoes and onions with the stock ten minutes; add the corn, salt and pepper and, boil five minutes; add the heated milk, flour and butter creamed together and cook until smooth. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve hot.

Clam Stew.—Drain the liquor from ten large clams. Put the clams through a meat chopper and add the clam juice, bring to the boiling point, remove the steam and add one cupful of milk. Add two tablespoons of butter with the same amount of flour and add to the stew. Cook for five minutes and season with salt, pepper and chopped parsley. Serve with croutons or crackers.

Orange Cream.—Sink one-fourth cup of golden raisins in a cupful of cold water and add enough boiling water to make a pulp of liquid. Squeeze the juice from three oranges and half a lemon, strain, sweeten to taste and mix all together. When it begins to stiffen fold in one-half cupful of whipped cream.

Highways and Shade Trees.

Now that the automobile has enabled such multitudes of urbanites to get out into the country there has come to millions of people a new and moving sense of the possibilities of beauty along our public highways. There is the beauty, for example, of the road itself. No one who has highly developed aesthetic sense can see the long ribbon of asphalt and well-kept turnpike unrolling before him, whether straight as an arrow or meandering like a meadow brook, without feeling his appreciation of the loveliness of inanimate things profoundly stirred.

But it is of the loveliness of shade trees standing like friendly sentinels along these roads that we wish to speak an appreciative word. Some are there by accident, of course, and for their presence the traveler's heart pours out its gratitude abundantly. But now and then he finds himself rolling along under an arcade of green leaves and between two stately rows of elms or maples, oaks or pines, which are indubitable evidence of the good will and the refined sensibilities of some old farmer whose dust has long been mingled with the soil which he plowed and harrowed, whose very name, perhaps, has been forgotten, but who has left behind himself a memorial more beautiful, more lasting and more beneficial, more millionaires have sometimes purchased with their fortunes.

We never ride through such an avenue without lifting up a sort of prayer for the repose of the ashes and the peace of the soul of this unknown benefactor of the race. Nor have we ever been able to think of a more lovely memorial of human life, nor of more highly appreciated benefaction than such a colonnade of trees. We have wondered a thousand times why more farmers did not appreciate, covet and realize an opportunity so apparent, so easily appropriated and so splendid. They cannot outdo eagles, perhaps, or found hospitals for the sick and asylums for the poor and helpless. They cannot write books or deliver great orations or melt the souls of their fellow-men by heavenly melodies or poems. But they can do this other thing so easily and excite the sense of beauty and awaken a less gratitude in the bosoms of their fellow-men that it is a marvel that more of them do not do it. And what they do not do is not so much inferior to what the poet Horace boasts of: "I have completed a monument more lasting than brass and more sublimed than the regal elevation of pyramids, which neither the wasting shower, the unavailing north wind nor an innumerable succession of years and the flight of seasons shall be able to demolish."—Enquirer.

England's Problems.

San Francisco Chronicle.

The coal miners, railroad and other transport workers have united to paralyze industry and commerce in Great Britain until certain demands which they made are complied with. At this distance no one is in a position to judge whether the demands are reasonable, or whether, if granted, they can be granted and prosperity continue in the island. Nor can it yet be known whether it is possible for Great Britain, with all working capital, to maintain the position in the world which she has occupied for a century.

We can see that the present condition is the result of a greatly congested population occupying a small area, whose natural resources have been greatly impaired and cannot be possibly restored to their original magnitude. Industry is power applied to raw materials. The country with costly power applied to imported materials cannot compete successfully with a country which has cheaper power applied to materials near the source of that power.

What we should not forget is that we also have congested districts in the aggregate larger than Great Britain. We also have been extravagantly wasteful of coal and continue to waste. We also are importing great quantities of ores in addition to using from our own great stores, and are now seeking to import Great Britain as the chief exporter of coal. Doubtless that makes great prosperity while it lasts, but then what?

For the answer we must look to Great Britain. Like causes produce like results. Our resources are enormously greater than those of Great Britain ever were, but the end of anthracite coal is ready in sight, and it is only our best bituminous coal which we can export. And there will be an end to that also some day. It is time even for us to look into the future, and learn to avoid waste, either of natural use or by idle machines or idle man power. That will involve readjustment of locations to save transportation, the avoidance of waste and that economy in production, which can only be got by hearty co-operation as citizens and as workers to secure the greatest output with the least expenditure of power. Class fights will do us but what we are doing to England. And it is no means certain that we can encourage the export of

A few weeks ago Mr. Tom Caswell, of Route 3, reported that a five-legged duck had been hatched on his farm, and last week a four-legged chicken made its appearance. "Pears like the fowls want to be quadrupeds out in that neighborhood,"—Cynthiana Log Cabin.

One day this week the Daily Messenger mentioned several old coins owned by Mr. G. H. Jarvis, and today we learn that Mr. George F. Anderson, the well-known farmer and citizen living on the Hustonville pike, has what is probably the oldest coin in existence. The coin was found six or eight years ago while digging a well near the Boyle and Garrard county line and has an Egyptian inscription on it. "Ptolemy King," with a fine profile of King Ptolemy, an Egyptian King. It is made of copper and brass and according to professors in Centre College and Prof. F. T. Deland, of the National Museum at Washington, who examined it several years ago, was made about the year 2000 B. C. No one has been able to account for how the coin happened to be found in this country and who was its owner. If there is an older coin than this we would like to learn of it. — Danville Messenger.

John H. Osborne, of Elliston, showed last week to the Union Stockyards, Cincinnati, an eight-week-old calf which weighed 280 pounds and brought $18.00 gross. Who can beat this?—Grant Co. News.

Several days ago the United States dredgeboat Kentucky was dredging Kentucky river between Mercer and Woodford counties when the crew encountered a large tree in the water that they could not dislodge. Every other means failing to raise it, the crew decided to place dynamite under the trunk, but in placing the explosive it was, unfortunately, put under one of the big saw logs. The boat then drew off about 300 feet to be out of the zone of danger, when the dynamite blew the saw log several hundred feet into the air and it came down like a huge bomb, ending first, on top of the cabin of the boat and then a hole through it. Fortunately no one was hurt.—Harrodsburg Herald.

I am the owner of an extra good cow, and if the people who read this don't believe it come to Valley View Farm and you won't have to take anyone's word, I can show you just what I am going to say about this cow, and it is absolutely true. The cow on last March 8th had a new red bull calf. The cow stayed fat and in good shape, gave plenty of milk to keep the calf fat and in good shape, and on July 15th, this same cow gave birth to another nice red bull calf, making the first calf four months and seven days old. This all happened in this year, 1918. Can anyone beat this?—Larue County Herald.

C. M. DUNN, Nelsonville, Ky.

One of the mysteries of nature is the underground water courses of Western Kentucky which apparently join all the larger streams of this section.

Swallow Springs, on the Palmyra pike, south of town, is one of the most well known outlets of these subterranean channels. Every year during the winter this spring overflows and forms a great lake which stays until early summer and then goes away as quickly as it came. Each year when the water recedes hundreds of pounds of fish of all kinds, especially those which frequent large streams and had found their way underground into the lake are left stranded.

This year has proved no exception to the rule. This lake has gone for the year and the farmers are now seeking to supplant it with a rich haul of bass, croppie, channel cat, buffalo and perch. These were caught in nets or traps set out with shovels and everybody had a full supply of fresh fish.

Next year the same thing will occur unless nature intervenes and stops up the underground channel. — Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

The Richmond Register says: "Reports that this part of Kentucky is going to produce the greatest and best tobacco crop in all its history, have been greatly exaggerated, said A. J. Million to the Daily Register this week. Mr. Million took a little jaunt through half a dozen big grass counties last Sunday in his Ford, and he looked at the tobacco situation over carefully. He is a good judge of the weed and he says that he saw mighty little of the good to him. Most of the crops he saw and he saw a large number, had very small and sickly looking plants, and unless there is a great improvement within a month or so, Mr. Million looks to see a very light tobacco crop this fall."

THE SMALLER WORLD

Toledo, Blde.

By death upon the battlefield, starvation in prison camps, untimely disease, the breaking down of peace and order, it is estimated that the world has lost 25,000,000 souls. It is further estimated that there are 12,000,000 fewer persons living than there would be normally because the ill were partly by the war, marriages did not occur. So when we speak of the world being made smaller we need not necessarily have aerial achievements in mind, but the crime reaper and that which have been

TIPS FROM TEXAS.

Dallas News.

One reason why a man doesn't look into a mirror as often as a woman does is because he has more confidence in the durability of his beauty.

Of course it is none of our business, but sometimes it looks like the caninole is being reduced to a string.

And about the best thing we can think of in favor of the hob horse is that it doesn't eat gasoline.

Sometimes a woman is so hard up for something to boast of she will brag on a husband who goes to church on Sunday morning and leaves her at home to freeze the ice cream.

It has just about gotten so in this country that when a rich bachelor has nephews they will come miles to crank his automobile for him.

Mr. Peavish says that, although he doesn't doubt the theory of the hob horse, sometimes suspects that if Eve talked like Mrs. Peavish she must have been made out of Adam's windpipe.

Hot, dry weather at this time of the year soon shows its effect on vegetation.

CHANDLER SIX $1795

The Fact of the Matter

YOU can see for yourself that the Chandler is the most closely priced fine car in the whole American market. Printer's ink lends itself to the presentation of claims and facts alike. We make it our purpose, in speaking of the Chandler, to deal with facts only.

And this we believe to be the fact, that no other automobile, built so well, built of such good materials, built in such good design, is priced within hundreds of dollars of the Chandler price.

The Chandler motor is truly a great motor. There is none better. Fifty thousand Chandler owners know it. And countless thousands of their friends and neighbors know it. Now in its seventh year of constant development, without radical change of design, it approximates perfection.

The whole Chandler chassis, simple and sturdy, is dependable and enduring. And Chandler bodies, graceful in line, roomy and comfortable, luxuriously upholstered and beautifully finished, are suggestive of the best custom work.

The New Series Touring Car

will delight you and your family. It is big and handsome, seats seven grown persons without crowding, and will take you anywhere in comfort.

The Chandler is the car you want speed. It is flexible and instantly responsive in crowded traffic. It is powerful on steep grades.

DOMESTIC HEALTH PROBLEM

Indianapolis Star.
The women who cannot get servants seem to think that old times can be restored, and not to realize that the cooks and the housemaids who went into factories or into the employ of the subway or surface cars were demonstrating discontent with household service and the existence of a revolution in that line of labor. They do not appear to understand that if the women who went out of the service disliked it, those who come in will soon be equally dissatisfied, that discontent is in the air, and old conditions will not be again established.

The employing house keeper should have the intelligence to see that the remedy lies with them through establishing a new system of domestic service which will give the employees the same leisure and independence of action they enjoy in other occupations. English women are reorganizing their system with some success by using a limited time service. Other experiments are being tried looking to a better understanding between mistress and maid.

short. If cooks won't cook under the old conditions, new arrangements must be made for them. For many years employees of men have wrestled with the difficulty of keeping their workmen contented. Housekeepers will have to take up their phase of this problem now and devise a method of getting together with their helpers that will be satisfying to all.

SANS ROMANCE.

The bare fact that the daughter of a Pittsburgh steel multimillionaire, several times a millionaire in her own right, has become the bride of a Florida fishing guide and pilot, suggests a romantic marriage in a romantic setting. The mind's eye envisions a handsome, bronzed young man, the hero of a real-life love story in which the heroine appears as the ideally democratic young woman who shocks, and seems, society when she meets a real man, water-wise, weather-wise, experienced in out-of-door sports, a commanding figure, an ideal lover, says Louisville Courier-Journal. The bride has the courage which the judge lacked when he saw Maud Muller. What a flood of cold water upon the romantic imagination is there in the additional facts. The guide was turning fifty. He had a daughter eighteen, a son thirteen. When the attachment began he wasn't a widower. Like a true member of the Smart Set, to the manner born, he loved where he listed, and his wife divorced him. So what appeared at first glance to be a really romantic and unconventional match is unromantic and, insofar as the divorce court phase of it goes, wholly, dully conventional under the strict standards of conventionality obtaining in the set in which the bride was prominent.

Up and out early; an hour's exercise in the home garden, or a brisk walk before moderately light breakfast, and then—if business isn't too far removed from home—walk to it! That's a spring and summer prescription which will go far toward keeping the doctor at a distance. "Catch the sun in bed" in time for the reveille of the birds, summoning him to rise and "make up" the morning. How many city people see the sun rise? Yet they could easily be on hand to hail its earliest flight where the view is not obstructed by skyscrapers—on hand to drink in the freshness of the awakened day. You don't need any other stimulant for the day's work; it's the best in the world! It stays with us, giving heart and hope for the tasks before us; tasks that lead to home and happiness, under the twilight stars. Make the early start, and take the road with morning! It's the time of year when birds and flowers will give greeting on the way.

It is more than probable that now peace has been declared, the submarine, that American invention that was prostituted to such foul use by the Hun, will be rescued from its ignominious use and made to serve humanity instead of outraging civilization. We are going to be able to descend to the bottom of the sea, hundreds of feet below its surface, and before many years, submarine expeditions will be far more popular than polar expeditions ever were. Many of the mysteries of the sea will be given up to these explorers.

A recent report shows that the United States has achieved independence of Germany in the chemical industry. This is one of the tragic results which are developing for Germany from her mad attempt to dominate the trade of the world. Like the dog in the fable, in trying to grab the bones from the mouths of other dogs, she has not only failed in that, but has also lost her own.

Mr. Hoover has been named by the Belgian government "Friend of the Belgian Nation." A title like that is prouder than any which the ex-luxuriant lord and ex-illustrious could boast in the palmiest days of his autocratic rule. It is a title which reflects honor on Mr. Hoover's country as well as on himself.

The Germans are denying so much from the guilt of the war to minor details, that it would not be at all surprising were they to charge that the sinking of the Lusitania was really inspired by the Belgians to bring the United States into the war.

CARE AND ATTENTION NEEDED BY TERRACES

Should Be Looked After Before Loose Soil Settles.

Weak Places Should Be Inspected Immediately After Each Rain and Breaks Repaired—Sow Some Kind of Cover Crops.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Terraces require considerable care and attention, especially during the first year, before the loose soil has had time to become settled thoroughly. All apparently weak places should be visited after every heavy rain, and any breaks should be repaired immediately with a shovel. It is best not to cultivate the terraces the first year, but to seed them to some kind of cover crop.

It is advisable to run the crop rows parallel to the terraces, one row being planted on top of the terrace. The cultivation of the top row tends to keep the top of the terrace at the proper height. Where the rows are run across the terraces, as is done commonly on moderate slopes, the top soil is moved down the side slopes by cultivation. As a result, the terraces are more liable to break, and much more maintenance work is required than where the rows are run parallel to the terraces.

All terraces that are cultivated should be plowed at least once a year, and the soil should be thrown to the center. In this way the height of the terrace is kept up and the base may be broadened each year.

Steep land that washes badly between the terraces should not be cultivated. The terraces should first be well built and the entire field seeded to grass and used for pasture or meadow.

When it is found necessary to cross a farm road in terracing a field, the building of the terraces should be continued across without regard to the road. Where the terraces are as much as 20 feet broad, no provision need be made for passing traffic across them, but they should be carefully maintained to prevent possible breaks. Where the terraces are not more than ten feet broad, considerable inconvenience to traffic and injury to the terraces generally results where no provision for crossing is made. Sometimes the water is carried under the roadway by a culvert, but the principal objections to this are that the capacity of the waterway is greatly reduced and the free flow of the water through the culvert is often obstructed by stalks or other trash washed from the field. A wooden bridge spanning the channel, so as not to reduce very much the cross-sectional area of the waterway, makes a more desirable and satisfactory crossing.

FOR HOME GARDENERS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Home gardeners will find that all of the most common insects and diseases attacking vegetables are catalogued in the United States Department of Agriculture's Farmers' Bulletin 856, which will be sent free on request of the department. This bulletin tells how to detect the presence of destructive insects and diseases and how to prevent and fight them.

HAND SPRAYER VERY USEFUL

Especially Handy in Applying Remedies for Control of Garden Insects and Diseases.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Control of insects and diseases affecting garden crops has been made so simple that it is little trouble nowadays to apply the remedies. It is not necessary to have a lot of expensive apparatus. A cheap hand sprayer or a syringe can be used to apply all of the remedies that are used in liquid form. Powders in the dry or powdered form can be applied by dusting them upon the plants by means of a cheesecloth or gunny sack. The entire cost for equipment with which to fight the common garden insects and diseases need not be more than a dollar.

SACKING OF FRUIT ORCHARDS

Cheesecloth Coverings Recommended as Protection Against "Seventeen-Year Locust."

The sacking of the orchards will begin in many sections of the United States about the third week in May—not as the Huns did it in the fruit lands of France, but a protective sacking, literally, with cheesecloth, against another ruthless horde, to wit, the "seventeen-year locust." This pest will occur over 21 states, coming out perhaps the last week in May. The injury inflicted by it consists in splitting the tender branches of trees for depositing eggs. The greatest damage is to very young fruit trees. Expert advice has usually been to defer the planting of young fruit trees until another season; but the United States department of agriculture realizes that to defer planting, particularly where trees have been bought and the ground prepared, would entail a considerable loss. Therefore the advice offered is, defer planting until 1920 if feasible. Otherwise put out the trees and protect them with cheesecloth coverings. Such protection can be made practically absolute. The coverings need not be put on until the insects have emerged from the ground, when it can be determined whether or not they are sufficiently numerous to make covering of the trees necessary. Once put on, the coverings should be allowed to remain until the insects are gone. The protection can be made practically absolute. The cheesecloth should be gathered and tied in below the branches and extend upward to cover practically all the foliage, being gathered in and tied at the top in such manner as to leave a small cluster of leaves free. This method can be applied, if necessary, to trees of last year's planting. In areas likely to be heavily infested pruning should be postponed until the insects have disappeared, when pains should be taken to remove injured wood and to reshape the tree where necessary.

Local Happenings.

The race riots which have recently occurred in Chicago, Washington and other places, are very much to be regretted by all right thinking people, and will undoubtedly do the colored man much more damage than it will the white man as he is inevitably destined to receive the worst of it in such a contest. God Almighty in the social aspect of things gave each a place and neither time nor theorists can change it. So long as this fact is recognized by both races, peace will reign and the white man will be found lending the colored man a helpful and sympathetic hand. We of the South understand these problems better than our brothers of the North, who are always so prone to give advice upon a subject about which they know but little. The leaders of both races everywhere should counsel conservative speech and action, in the hope that such disturbances will not spread.—Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat.

The community has just as many responsibilities toward its teacher as the teacher has toward the school. No teacher can do good work in a school of opposition and criticism. Usually she comes in as an inexperienced stranger, but nearly always some one has "heard" something about her. If the "something" is unkind, it should be made a point of common courtesy to turn deaf ears. There is rarely a girl who has education enough to teach but has some talent or "knack" that may be made of immense service in the neighborhood to which she is sent as a teacher. Good business sense urges that she be encouraged to make the most of it.

COMMUNITY MEETINGS

Attended by Large Crowds and All Agree That the Three Days Meet Very Great.

The Farmers' Community Meetings held at Burlington last Thursday, Friday and Saturday were the most successful meetings along that line ever held in Boone county. The attendance was made up of farmers from every neighborhood in the county and all were interested and gave the speakers the attention they deserved and gave the closest attention. Every number on the program was given as advertised, the speaker in each instance being well informed, giving the farmers present many valuable pointers along lines in which they were interested. The meetings were an important feature and were highly appreciated by the audience.

The University Quartette was the leading feature Saturday evening, and the large audience was most delightfully entertained by their excellent singing. By the hearty applause given Prof. Edward McKenzie, of San Antonio, Texas, who was the guest of the Boone County Fair, the University Quartette, added much to the program Saturday evening by his singing, he being one of the country's best vocalists.

The attendance Saturday night was estimated at from 1,000 to 1,200, and the large crowd gave excellent attention to everything that was on the program.

All agree that the three days' meeting was a success from first to last and the farmers of Boone county realize the good results that are sure to follow.

Petersburg, Ky.

Dear Sir:
On arriving home I thought about the game played between the Petersburg C. S. S. and the Ludlow White Sox at your grounds today. I could not help writing you a few lines, thanking you and the players and the good people of Petersburg, for the fine way they treated us. I have been managing Semi-pro base ball teams in and around Cincinnati and Ludlow for the past 15 years and I don't think I ever felt as I do this evening, that the game played by Petersburg will always live in my memory.

I have been managing Semi-pro base ball teams in and around Cincinnati and Ludlow for the past 15 years and I don't think I ever felt as I do this evening, that the game played by Petersburg will always live in my memory.

North Kentucky Fair.

The North Kentucky Fair is making known its appeal by a large advertisement in this issue. Considering the very unfavorable weather last year, the fair did well, losing less than $150. If weather conditions are good this year the association will pull out of the hole and have a nice surplus left. The people of North Kentucky believe in their fair and are going to support it handsomely. The officers are as follows: John E. Williams, Walton, president; Clinton Blankenbaker, Florence, Vice-President; Hubert Conner, Burlington, Secretary; Warren Lassing, Union, Treasurer; other directors: W. P. Beemon, Florence; Samuel Hicks, Union; C. W. Myers, Florence; R. C. Swetnam, Covington; J. B. Dixon, Erlanger.

DISGRACE TO ARMY.

Cruelties Inflicted Upon American Soldier-Prisoners are Appalling.

The American people will find it difficult to believe that the cruelties ascribed to the Germans in their treatment of prisoners of war were equalled if not surpassed by the treatment of the U. S. soldiers and their subordinates in charge of American soldiers held in disciplinary barracks, but such is the truth, fully corroborated. The testimony presented to a subcommittee of Congress in Castle William, Governor's Island, and not by convicts alone, is an unbroken record of brutality and heartlessness extending from prison Sergeants and Lieutenants, who confess their offenses, all the way up to officers of the highest rank. Soldiers under discipline were not only beaten, maimed, starved and denied medical attention; they were robbed of all their possessions and complaints or requests for liberation in order to fight resulted in nothing but added hardship.

If these barbarities were due to inattention on the part of commanders they would be inexcusable. Perpetrated, as there is reason to believe, with their knowledge and in the case of some of them by their orders, they involve guilt, the infamy of which is aggravated by the fact that no attempt was made by the army to punish the offenders.

Although similar scandals have smirched the honor of the army in times past, this is the worst and most far-reaching. Fortunately the inquiry now in progress is under the direction of Representative Royal C. Johnson, of Boone Dakota, who rendered valiant service overseas. With his knowledge of conditions it should be possible very soon to fix the responsibility for these outrages where it belongs. No rank is so high and no influence is so powerful as to shield men who have disgraced their country and their uniform.

Better Tobacco Market.

Thousands of farmers are hoping for a better tobacco market, and the indications are that the market will be better. The indications are calculated to bring a raise in prices. Farmers are very much discouraged by the fact that the majority of them are expressing a willingness to cut out the crop of 1920, which would guarantee a raise in price. Many farmers will not grow tobacco next year, but instead will grow stock and feed, and spend their money in repairing fences and buildings and doing other farm improvements.

The wonderful strides in the dairy business in this county this year is a fact that our farmers think they can make money without being a slave to tobacco.—Owen County Democrat.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT.

Issued August 7 By State Department of Agriculture.

The very early wet weather in the spring retarding planting of corn and other crops followed by weeks of extremely dry weather, has made a very unfavorable season for the farmer.

Early corn has suffered much damage, especially on the uplands, as have gardens and pastures also. Rains in many localities have brought relief and will aid in all crops.

Wheat did not come up to expectations. The State average is given at eleven bushels per acre, running in various sections from 14 bushels to 8 bushels.

On a preliminary estimate, rye is averaging a yield of 11 bu. per acre; while oats are averaging 20 bushel per acre, which is 25% below last year's estimate.

The outlook for the corn crop is for a short one, owing to the excessively hot, dry weather. Corn on the lowlands has not suffered to the extent that the corn on the ridges has. The western and northwestern parts of the State show the greatest damage from drought.

Great stress is laid upon the need of copious rains during this month, in order to bring crops up to anything like normal.

Corn acreage shows at 91 per cent, while condition is estimated at 74 per cent. This is 20 per cent lower in condition than has been given for several years, and would indicate an exceptionally short crop of corn.

Burley tobacco shows an acreage of 93 per cent, while condition is given at 81 per cent. This is a slight improvement over last month's condition.

Dark tobacco acreage is given at 91 per cent, and condition 75 per cent, indicating the hardship the drought has worked upon this crop.

A very uneven stand of tobacco is reported. Condition of hay is 92 per cent, with an estimated yield of 15 tons per acre. Some hay was lost owing to the excessive prices paid for it last year, and the shortage of help during the time of harvest.

Condition of alfalfa is given at 84 per cent, and it is estimated the yield of the second cutting will average one ton per acre.

Soy beans acreage is 87 per cent, and condition is 82 per cent. This is a slight increase over last year's condition, which was 83 per cent.

Cow peas acreage shows at 80 per cent, which is 4 per cent less than last year, and the condition shows 80 per cent.

Only eleven counties report any buckwheat acreage, which as a whole is very small. The Russell county shows the greatest increase as compared with the acreage of last year.

Condition of clover is 82 per cent, and condition is 80 per cent. Hemp is reported from but four counties, showing an acreage of 90 per cent, and condition of 75 per cent.

Sorghum is almost a failure. Condition of fruits is given at 56 per cent, while melons show at 60 per cent.

Condition of potatoes show at 72 per cent, and the estimated acreage of the second crop is 80 per cent. This is a slight increase on the second crop over last year.

Sweet potato acreage shows at 80 per cent, with condition at 85 per cent.

Garden conditions are given at 74 per cent.

Live stock is reported in fairly good condition, with the exception of scarcity of stock water in some sections.

Pastures show a condition of 80 per cent.

Taken as a whole, the report would indicate that without continued rain this month crop conditions are exceptionally low.

It is to be hoped that with seasonable weather for the next few weeks the outcome in crop conditions will be improved over the indications as of August 1st.

MAT S. COHEN,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

Cash or Hellfire.

"More and more we are convinced that what this country needs most is a religion of training that will make man pay his debts. Shouting does not settle accounts with God or man. Often we want to bounce a fellow right out of church because he won't fish on Sunday, but never say a word to the pious scamp who never pays his debts, and such people are adding the church more harm than any lot of Sunday deserters.

Reader, are we getting close to you? Then lay down this paper and go and pay up and you can read on at ease. And so not stop paying because the statute of limitation excuses the open account which you made for bread and meat. You must pay it in cash or God will make you pay it in fire and brimstone. God knows no such excuse.—"Sowing as Homeless Exiles." When you raise that excuse from paying your debts you can stop singing "When I Can Read my Bible Clear My Conscience in the Skies." You've got none up there."—Winslow Dispatch.

Sadly Disappointed.

Burlington was informed by wireless last Friday that the Bolsheviks had taken control of the hand last Saturday morning with a large supply of fine Ohio river fish, but Friday night the fish were all dried up and the Burlingtonites who had been waiting their appetites for Saturday's feast were sadly disappointed.

HEATR TO HEART TALK

O. C. Peyton, D. D., "I will come to you," was the promise of Jesus to his disciples when he was about to leave them alone and poor in an unbelieving and unfriendly world. He is still uttering that cheering promise to everyone who believes in love and trusts him. And he gloriously verifies that same blessed promise to everyone who sure values his presence and fellowship.

The presence of Jesus is the delight of the people. He told his disciples that he would leave them. It filled their hearts with sorrow. But he assured them that he would not leave them as orphans, but that he would leave them in the comfort of a Father's presence, care and protection, but that he would come to them. When he rose from the dead, he visited them in person again and again. He ascended into heaven, he visited them by his Holy Spirit.

His presence shall go with thee and will give thee the full comfort of his promise. Jesus still visits his people. He comes in the closet, in the house of prayer, in the solitude of the solitary walk. Jesus loves to meet us, to manifest himself to us, to make our hearts burn as he did at Emmaus. He comes the way Jesus meets us in trouble; to cheer us; in sickness to heal us; in death, to give us victory over the last foe.

But he loves to be invited by his people. Will you not invite Jesus to meet with you today? You need not be particular about the place. He wants to abide in you, and not the place. He regards the state of the heart and not the circumstances in which you are placed. He wants to abide in your home, if you will put out of it the things that displease him. He will not abide in a home that is given to the devil, to the card game or to other forms of soul-withering frivolity.

When Jesus comes into your home, your heart, your life, your plans, your business, you are sure he will bring blessings beyond all estimate in value. To have him thus visit you and abide with you will require the giving up of many worthless things. But you will be infinitely the gainer by the exchange. Jesus will give you all the blessings and wisdom are beyond competing in value. As your soul is of vastly more value than your body, so are the blessings of Jesus of vastly more value than the things about you that are perishing.

Jesus, I languish at thy stay; I pine for thee with longing ardor. Wear and faint through long delay. When will thou come into my heart? From sin and sorrow set me free, and swallow up my soul in thee.

Cheaper Fertilizers Next Fall.

Mixed fertilizer prices the coming fall should be about 30 per cent lower than the prices prevailing the past spring. The Department of Agriculture and the fertilizer manufacturers have agreed upon basic prices in thirty-ton lots at seaboard points, and the prices thus agreed upon are such a justifiable 30 per cent reduction to the farmer. This will be welcome news, and fertilizer buyers should be careful to see that they get fertilizers at the proper price. If any farmer who is not able to get fertilizers this fall for less than they cost last spring will doubt the matter up with the proper authorities.—Southern Agriculturist.

KENTUCKY WHEAT

Is Below Standard—Other Crops Need Rain to Develop.

Frankfort, August 7.—According to the monthly report of Mat S. Cohen, Agricultural Commissioner, as of August 1, Kentucky's wheat crop is not up to expectations. The state average is given at 11 bushels per acre, running in various sections from nine bushels to 14 bushels per acre. This is a seasonal average. This is 3.5 bushels less than last month's estimate. This average is one bushel per acre less than last year. Rye is averaging a yield of 11 bushels per acre, while oats are averaging 20 bushels per acre, which is 25% below last year's estimate.

The outlook for the corn crop indicates a short crop, owing to the excessive hot, dry weather. Corn on the lowlands has not suffered to the extent that corn has on the ridges. The western and northwestern part of the state show the greatest damage from drought.

Great stress is laid upon the need of rain during the month in order to bring crops up to anything like normal. Corn acreage averages 91 per cent, while condition is given at 74 per cent. Hemp is reported from but four counties, showing an average of 90 per cent and condition of 75 per cent. The estimated acreage of the second crop is but 74 per cent, which is but a slight increase over last year's condition, which was 73 per cent.

RESTORING RURAL AMERICA.

Fallacious Notions of Useful Crops, Money and Railways.

American Review of Reviews.
The old American stock raiser to a great extent languished on farms and our country neighborhoods while foreign immigrants have crowded the cities and have enjoyed the fruits of the civilization of our marvelous city school facilities. It is bad policy to allow rural life to decay and the rural life to decay and the rural life to decay. New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia. State policies should provide good roads, country schools equal for practical purposes to city schools, and other facilities needed to make country life preferable to city life for the family. Wisconsin, Iowa and some other states are getting an idea that the eastern part of the United States should follow. Rural policy is worth developing at any cost. It will pay to invest. Meanwhile it does not always follow that the thing the farmer calls for is the thing he ought to have. Thus, the farmer wants laws and policies to keep the price of cotton high, whereas he should be the happy beneficiary of policies to compel him to raise cattle and produce food crops. The western farmer in his day has had many a fallacious notion about money and the railroads.

A Close Shave.

According to the official count Elmer Lusby, of Grant county, defeated Charles H. Strother, of this county, three votes for the Democratic nomination for Representative from Boone and Grant counties. It was supposed last week that Strother had won by about thirty votes, but two precincts from Boone and Grant counties had not been heard from and they were counted as a standoff, but it seems that Lusby had enough votes there to bring him under the wire a winner.

Auto Struck Truck.

As Lawrence Chambers, of Petersburg, was descending a hill just west of Idlewild, one day last week, a large log truck which was just ahead of him stopped, and before Mr. Chambers could stop his machine it struck the truck, doing considerable damage to the lamps, hood and wind shield. The automobile at the time of the accident, but fortunately, no one was hurt.

A Poor Yield.

Geo. Hewitt, who has threshed all the wheat in East Bend bottoms, says the crop made a very poor yield in that territory, nothing like what had been counted on by the farmers down there. He thinks the wheat in the bottoms is better than that in the bottoms. Up to last Saturday night he had threshed about 8,000 or 9,000 bushels of grain.

The dry weather is cutting the tobacco crop to a serious degree and it appears as if there will not be over sixty per cent of the amount of tobacco that was raised last year. In the entire tobacco belt the report is about the same; the tobacco very backward and local and the plants burning for need of rain. However the crop may come out yet with seasonal rains as with the state it has it would not take long for the crop to mature. The matter of cold weather or frost is still a long way off; the average frost for the past ten years according to the U. S. Government reports is October 9th, and that is nearly 60 days away, and wonderful changes can take place in that time. The crop is showing no good all around the the complaint about a lack of rain is heard over most of the corn belt.

In Loving Memory of Robert Carey, Who Died July 20, 1919;

A few weeks of time rolls on, but still the vacant chair, recalls the love, the voice, the smile, of one who once sat there. If I had seen you at the last; and held your dying hand, and heard the last sigh from your heart, I would not feel so bad. I did not know the pain you bore; I did not see you die; I only know you went away, and never said goodbye. The flowers that lie upon your grave, may wither and decay, but the love we once bore for you, can never fade away.
Sadly missed by his sister, Katie.

Mrs. Susan Jones Senour Dead

Mrs. Susan Jones Senour, widow of the late Brit Senour, formerly of Walton, died at her home, 330 Madison Avenue, Covington, Monday evening, August 11th.

Mrs. Senour was Susan Jones, second daughter of the late Foster Jones. She was born and reared on the old Jones homestead near Walton. At an early age she was married to Brit Senour. They immediately went to Covington, where he went into business. After residing there 25 years they returned to Walton and built a beautiful home on their farm near town, where they resided until the death of Mr. Senour in 1917, when she returned to Covington to make her home with her children there.

Mrs. Senour was a member of Walton Christian church, a devotee of Christianity, a kind and indulgent mother.

She leaves three children, Clarence L. Senour, Miss Stella Senour and Miss Pearl Senour, whose many friends sympathize with them in their bereavement.

Funeral services were held from the residence, Wednesday, August 13th, at 2 p. m. The Rev. Koeber, formerly of Walton, officiating. Interment in family lot at Highland Cemetery. C. Scott Chambers, of Newport, had charge of the funeral arrangements, which was an automobile cortege.

On a Furlough.

Ben Passons, who belongs to the regular army and spent about a year at the front in France, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. John Burk, out on the Petersburg pike. Before going overseas he saw service along the Mexican frontier while trouble with Mexico was threatened. Overseas he belonged to the Ninth Infantry, Second Division, made up of enlisted men from all over the United States and fought in all the battles from Chateau Thierry and Belleau Woods, through Soissons, St. Mihiel, Blanc Mont, Rheims to the final thrust of the Meuse-Argonne. It is the Second Division which captured 12,026 prisoners, about one-fourth of the entire number of prisoners taken by the Americans. It also lost more men than any other division. Consequently Mr. Passons, who was engaged taking supplies to the front saw considerable of the horrors of the war. After the war closed and he arrived in Germany he sprained one of his ankles badly and is now under treatment of the injury and has not been discharged, being here on a furlough.

TEACH THRASHERMEN TO SAVE ALL GRAIN

Department of Agriculture Plans Conservation This Year.

Schools Will Be Opened to Give Instruction on Operation of Machines and Adjustment—Many Owners Are Inexperienced.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Grain saving last year filled 11,000,000 two-hundred sacks with wheat which otherwise would have been wasted in straw stacks or over fields. To increase this conservation record this year and to facilitate more efficient operation of thrashing machines, the United States department of agriculture, in cooperation with the directors of extension work in state agricultural colleges, will conduct schools of three and four days for thrashermen. The instruction will include studies of the proper operation, adjustment, repair and maintenance of separators and gas and steam engines.

Approximately 250,000 thrashing machines are in the United States. Many owners are not thoroughly experienced in their management and repair. All are expected to be benefited Reduce the Waste of Grain at Thrashing Time.

If they attend the thrashermen's school in their localities. Every thrasherman who is interested in saving grain, reducing idle time when his machine is out of commission, and lengthening the active service of his separator, should attend a thrashermen's school where he will be taught the wheat, why, where, and how to operate a thrashing outfit and keeping it in the pink of working condition.

The purpose is primarily to improve thrashing conditions. Instruction will cover the theory of the separator, the operation, care and adjustment of the machine, and sufficient laboratory work to give students skill in adjusting and operating. It is contemplated to hold schools immediately after or prior to the one-day grain standardization schools, directed by the federal department's bureau of markets.

Necessity for practical education of thrashermen has been brought out strikingly by results in Minnesota last year recording the enormous waste of grain in thrashing. Comprehensive tests, which included the work of the more than 6,500 machines in the Golden state, showed that the average available loss in thrashing wheat was 49 bushels a day, worth approximately $0.64; while the available loss in thrashing oats was 51 bushels daily worth then $5.36. Some of the separators wasted as much as 50 bushels of wheat a day, worth, on the basis of the October market, $102. Twenty-five per cent of all the machines tested in Minnesota showed an avoidable loss, due to the machines being out of repair or improperly adjusted, of 15 bushels a day. Therefore, Minnesota today is a staunch advocate of teaching thrashermen the three R's—running, repairing and readjusting their thrashing outfits.

Toad in Gardener's Friend.

The common toad is the gardener's friend, because he lives upon the small insects that trouble the garden crops. A few toads in the garden will help keep it free of insects.

Careful With Poison.

Receptacles containing poison bait should not be left around where children, live stock and chickens will have access to it.

School Notes.

Our Institute has come and gone with its trials and tribulations, vexations, pleasures, improvements and understandings.

The sessions were different from most Institutes in many particulars. In the first place it was a very busy week. The Institute, the meeting of the County School Board and Chautauqua, all in session the past week. As we see it the result was a "get together meeting" and this was effected to such a degree that we feel that much good will come out of these meetings.

Prof. C. A. Kewell, of the E. K. S. N., and under the conditions he did well as our instructor. There were so many problems for consideration outside of the legitimate Institute work, which took attention from the Institute work.

In the second place, filling the positions for teaching was of greater importance for our schools than Institute work. In the third place, the satisfactory adjustment of the length of term of school and salary of teachers was of the most vital importance, especially to the teachers and the School Board. We are happy to say that these questions were settled in an amicable manner, and the meeting was closed by throwing bouquets, and a real love feast.

Arrangements had been made for some special numbers for each day of our meeting, and we wish to express our thanks and appreciation to the persons who gave of their talents and culture for our education and pleasure. Mesdames Martin Morris, Miss Mary Gordon and Mr. McKenzie, rendered beautiful and inspiring musical numbers, and Miss Kreylich, who favored us with two appearances in her inimitable style of readings. These numbers were so vigorously applauded that encore were demanded, which were promptly responded to. Just here we announce that Miss Kreylich is desirous of making a class or taking individual students for expression work. Mrs. Morris will have charge of the music in the County High School at Burlington, and private pupils in this vicinity. Mrs. Martin, who is living near Bullittsburg, is ready and willing to accept of her art, music, in that community.

On Wednesday afternoon our Common School Commencement was held, on which occasion the graduates rendered a program in vocal, instrumental music and recitations appropriate and suitable for the occasion. 25 received their diplomas. Master John Rachel receiving the Rous medal. These graduates are now eligible to enter any high school in the State of Kentucky. Prof. Kewell delivered the address to the class and it was much appreciated.

The Chautauqua then commenced on Thursday afternoon and continued the remainder of the week, or almost until midnight Saturday night. Thus last week was a full one for Burlington.

All went away happy and glad to have been here.

Use Care in Planting Fish.

Washington, D. C.—"Now that the war is over and the high cost of living is not, the Federal Government, as well as the States, is turning to fish cultivation as a food source," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. "Be careful where you plant fish!" is in effect, a warning sounded by Hugh M. Smith, an eminent authority, who points out that the fish of the deep are as predatory as the birds of the air, and just as jealous of their normal habits. The work of trans-planting water animals is not wholly free from possibly harmful results, analogous to those that have attended the trans-planting of land animals of which the rabbit in Australia, the mongoose in Jamaica, and the English sparrow and Norway rat in America are well known examples. Injury may arise from a general disturbance of the balance of nature, by the introduction of new factors into given waters, or from the supplanting of one kind of animal by another less desirable.

The ignorance or indiscretion of private persons who undertake to introduce new creatures into waters in which they are interested, may produce most disastrous effects, while in a few instances carelessness or a more accident has had a far-reaching effect. Great care has been exercised by the Federal Fishery Bureau in making plants of non-indigenous fish, but eternal vigilance is necessary. Fine trout streams may be quickly ruined thru the planting therein of bass, or lake trout with some defenseless valuable food-fish may be depleted by the thoughtless planting of some comparatively unimportant rapacious species. One of the most persistent trout diseases on the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries is a black bass, to stock western waters that already contain an abundance of trout or salmon. Such practice is a little short of suicidal, and in such cases where there is reason to fear that valuable trout waters may be ruined, the bureau takes the precaution to defer to the judgment of the state fishery officers.

The necessity for economy in these days of the high cost of living was carried rather to extremes by an Illinois miner who moved 50 tons of coal twice to find a dime he had dropped. Still the incident is significant of what we are coming to. — Baltimore American.

Blaise Rickpatrick went with his truck to Union, A. A. Alphin's in Gallatin county last Tuesday to assist in moving three dozen of Mr. Alphin's 300 pound hogs.

Is it Possible to Legislate Life and Brains?

Swift & Company is primarily an organization of men, not a collection of brick, mortar, and machinery.

Packing Plants, their equipment and usefulness are only outward symbols of the intelligence, life-long experience, and right purpose of the men who compose the organization and of those who direct it.

Will not Government direction of the packing industry, now contemplated by Congress, take over the empty husk of physical property and equipment and sacrifice the initiative, experience and devotion of these men, which is the life itself of the industry?

What legislation, what political adroitness could replace such life and brains, once driven out?

Let us send you a Swift "Dollar." It will interest you. Address Swift & Company, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

VENTURESOME MARRIAGES.

Certain Pitfalls Are Not Avoided in Spite of Much Warning.

Ohio State Journal.
Venturesome youth and unwise age march through the marriage license office and often later pass through the divorce court years after year. A recent issue of an Ohio paper contained on one page two stories, one telling of the marriage of an old man and a young woman, the other of the sad story developed in the divorce court where another old man and another young woman were seeking separation, each telling the shortcomings of the other.

It seems to have been ordained by nature, somewhere in the remote past, that May and December could not be expected to march together, always, in perfect accord and complete harmony. In this, as in many other wise provisions of nature, there are ever the venturesome, the thoughtless, who feel a serene and smiling certainty that they can take the risk and never suffer. It seems ever where they seem ever to be their position, but there are other instances of which little need be said. It seems certain youth is happiest when associated with youth, and that old age and even mature years unfit for harmonious association with the flush of youth. But no matter how much proof may be accumulated the venturesome will venture, the daring will dare, and the divorce courts will divorce. There are some pitfalls that are not avoided, no matter how glaring and prominent may be the danger signals set.

What the Primary Indicates.

The gubernatorial primary was a listless affair, but Democrats have a reason to feel optimistic because of several facts that it demonstrated. The primary showed that Kentucky Democracy is once more united. No definite issue has divided the party into factions, and a candidate is nominated who hails from Edwin P. Morrow's stronghold and who carried not only his own district but every district in the State but two, losing them by very small pluralities.

And the primary showed also, notwithstanding the light hearted cast that Kentucky Democrats believed in the present administration will be enough to uphold Governor Black, and it presages that when he runs for re-election in November that there will be few Democrats who will support the Republican nominee because of his promise to "housecleaning" at Frankfort. Kentucky Democracy is satisfied with the policy of James D. Black.

Not only Democrats, but independent voters will support Governor Black in November. For they realize that they cannot expect Kentucky politics to be reformed by the election of Morrow. The only way to reform Kentucky politics is to reform the Democratic party. Whether a Democratic administration is reformed or no improvement can be expected from a Republican Governor and a Democratic legislature. The executive duties of the Governor now do not require ability as much as the ability to direct legislation does. And it is here that a Republican Governor's hands would be tied.

Moreover, Kentuckians remember the Bradley, Taylor, and Wilson administration and it is improbable that a Republican will be elected Governor of Kentucky so long as Kentuckians do not for get.

In a few weeks Mr. Morrow form. We have a framed picture of him. We have a framed picture of Ed. Morrow as a "reformer."—Georgetown Times.

The Gains From Education.

To judge the value of education solely by money, is a narrow way to look at it. It is a way that many people consider. And even judged by that test, education abundantly makes good.

Figures of the earnings of college students at various periods after graduation show average salaries or other compensation very much above what those with less schooling get. One of the most interesting tests of the practical returns of education was made a few years ago by people who not only figuratively but actually came from Missouri, namely, by the University of Missouri. It was a study of returns of individual farmers in Johnson county, Missouri, made with thoroughness that was very convincing. It related only to farmers, a class some members of which were formerly rather skeptical concerning the value of education.

A survey of 655 farms was made in this investigation, and out of those farmers, 554 had had only a district school education while 102 had more than that.

It was found that the better educated farmers operated 33 per cent. more land, and owned four-fifths of the land they cultivated. Only three-fifths of the land operated by the poorly educated farmers was owned by them. The educated farmers earned 71 per cent. more clear income, and kept one-sixth more stock.

The amount of time a young person spends in education for any calling is only a small part of his life. It can do one of two things. One kind of education will give exceptional skill in some one calling, while the other will be rewarded promptly by exceptional pay. Another kind of education will give him a general development of his faculties, enabling him to think more clearly, broadly and comprehensively, to work more intelligently and systematically, and correctly, on any line he may take.

The Coming Woman Voter.

The woman is a potential voter now. That the proposed woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution will be adopted nobody doubts. It may be several years before the adoption is complete, or it may come as swiftly as the adoption of the prohibition amendment.

Many women have given no thought to things political, have imagined that politics was a thing in which they had no concern, and have been altogether uncertain as to what all the tumult and the shouting of election time have been about. Some women, no doubt will go on feeling this same way and will leave the voting to be done by somebody else. No woman who wishes to do her full duty by her country—which means her full duty by her neighbors, her family and herself—can afford to take this view of it. No woman who is thoughtful can afford to do as so many men do and cast her vote for a party name, for a prejudice, or for some whim of the moment without making any honest effort to understand the issues and principles involved. The woman who is interested in her country has no other way without earnestly trying to find out why she votes that way and whether she should will have plenty of masculine company in such thoughtful voting, but she will have small cause to pride herself on any contribution she is making to the country's welfare.

Any woman who will give the matter of voting serious thought can vote intelligently. Every woman who is interested in her community or her children has cause to be interested in things political, and reason for studying them. The votes we cast for the interest we take in politics decide whether or not our neighborhoods shall be safe for life and property, whether we shall have good schools and good roads or poor, whether our courts shall be tribunals of justice or instruments of injustice. None of us can say that he or she is not interested in these things. None of us can afford not to try to understand them.

The women of the country will soon have a great chance to contribute to its progress. The extent of its contribution they will make will depend upon the thought they give to the duties of citizenship before those duties devolve upon them. They have a great chance to avoid one mistake the men have too generally made—that of devoting all their thought to big national or state issues, and forgetting their duty in the decision of local matters and the selection of local officials. If the women of the country vote intelligently, woman suffrage will abundantly justify itself. —Southern Agriculturist.

Cutting Tobacco to Save It.

Cutting tobacco was commenced in some parts of the State ten days ago, owing to its beginning to fire badly. It had not got its growth to the point where it had begun to ripen. The condition of the crop has the tobacco men through the country. The government is now rapidly with which tobacco can make a remarkable change for the better, but the outlook at present for the tobacco district over is the worst they ever saw and they do not know how to figure on results. Some claim that the tobacco plants are the cause of the slow growth in the fields, stating that they had become of a woody nature before they were transplanted and that they have never overcome that trouble and in a great measure never will.

Make America Really American

There are eight and a half million people over ten years of age in the United States who can not read a newspaper, a school book, a billboard—anything at all in the English language. There are five and a half million who cannot read anything in any language.

We knew these facts before the great war; knew that millions of our countrymen were utterly untaught; that other millions were utterly unable to read or even speak the language of the country, and that nothing was being done about it. The war made us for the first time, realize something of what these things mean to the country as well as to the illiterates and the un-Americanized themselves.

No nation, certainly no democracy can be stronger or wiser than its people are. Wise and strong, the illiterate, the un-Americanized may be potentially as wise or as strong as the best taught man among us, but we know that he does not add much to the collective wisdom or strength of the nation. American soldiers who could not read the printed orders posted for their guidance were a danger to the discipline of the army. Illiterate American citizens believed the wildest of the wild stories that spread at the beginning of the war and for a time threatened American solidarity for purpose. Non-English speaking masses in our cities are the seed-beds from which anarchy and Bolshevism spring. Every untaught citizen, whatever good qualities he may possess, is a weakness to the nation and a possible danger.

This is no country for ignorance to find a home in. Illiteracy and American institutions do not fit in together—they cannot live together. We must reach and teach the unfortunate part of our people that has been left untaught. We must mount a campaign of pure American stock, and the immigrant who lack understanding of America and who speaks another than America's language, must both be reached. A campaign against adult illiteracy has been started. It must be carried on. Every state must take it up. The nation must take it up, too. A bill known as the Smith-Bankhead bill is now before Congress. It provides for a national appropriation of $12,500,000 for each year until 1926 for the purpose of reaching and "Americanizing" our people of foreign birth and for the teaching of our own native illiterates. This bill or something similar, should be made a law. Illiteracy or ignorance of American speech and American institutions cannot longer be tolerated if this is to remain truly "the land of the free."

Citizens of Union Precinct Hold Enthusiastic Road Meeting

A road meeting was held at Union last Monday evening to discuss ways and means of getting the proposed Federal road to run through Union.

Judge John M. Lassing made a talk, explaining how the money for this road can be raised, and the citizens of Union and vicinity responded with enthusiasm to the appeal of Judge Lassing for a good road thru the very best of the finest farming district in Boone county.

Committees were formed to raise the necessary funds by subscription for the completion of the Federal Road thru Boone county.

Another road meeting was to be held last night at Beaver to get the residents of that section enthused and working. There will be another meeting at Union next Saturday night of the residents of Beaver, Union and Florence communities. All who can are requested to attend the meeting next Saturday night to make out the biggest road meeting ever held in Boone county. Boost for the good of your county and fellowcitizens.

The criminal docket for the term was disposed of Tuesday, the only jury trial being that of the Commonwealth against Phil Lambert, of Florence, indicted for striking Charles Corbin. Lambert was fined $100. The trouble grew out of Corbin removing a sign of Lambert's when he was putting up Liberty Loan posters during the Fourth Liberty Loan Drive.

Someone sent to this office for publication a letter that was written in France by a soldier, but failed to furnish the Recorder with the name of the writer, the signature being "Richard." The letter is not worth while without the name of the writer attached.

Mentor Martin has a very sore lip the result of being struck a glancing blow by the crank on a cement mixer he was assisting to operate.

At the last minute this week the Recorder received a flood of advertisements, which put the amount of reading matter below normal.

Dr. Yelton has employed Pippin Smith, of Bellevue, to prepare a catalogue of tobacco which is carried over from last winter.

Miss Abdon, who had been in service overseas, returned home last week.

This part of the Recorder is called. It will be bigger and better than ever this year.

ANOTHER OF WAR'S RESULTS

Direct Connection Traced Between Great Conflict and the Annoying Scarcity of Laundresses.

This is from Alexandria, our neighboring city down the Potomac.

Housekeepers there are having quite a time getting "help," especially some one to do the family wash. The necessity for clean clothes is one which devolves upon civilized beings. Wars may come and wars may go, but the wash tub and washboard go on forever.

But it has been hard to get a laundress in Alexandria. War-time conditions have enabled many who earned their living at the tub to turn to less arduous pursuits, with the result that there is a scarcity of "wash ladies." The condition is one paralleled in many other cities.

"Aunt Lucy," said one Alexandrian woman, addressing a neighbor whom she had known for many years, "don't you know some one who can do my washing?"

"No, ma'am I don't know no one," she said.

The woman made a last attempt. "Won't you do it for me, Aunt Lucy?" she asked, with a winning smile.

"Deed, chile," said Aunt Lucy, "I don't have to do no washing no more." "Why?" asked the woman.

"Well, honey, hit is jes like this," explained Aunt Lucy with a nice distinction. "De Civil war made us free. And dis here war" war has made us independent."—Washington Star.

EAGER TO SEE ELEPHANT

First One That Was Brought to the United States Aroused the Utmost Curiosity.

Nowadays, when summer in the United States would hardly seem itself without the coming of a circus, it is difficult to realize the excitement aroused by the first exhibition of an elephant. A forgotten showman, Hackallah Bailey, is said to have imported the first elephant nearly a hundred years ago, and the animal was a whole show in himself. The circus tent had not yet come into being, and the elephant was shown in houses in the Eastern states that they held the bulk of the population. To prevent the public from seeing the show without charge, the elephant traveled from place to place in the night; but even so, the public refused to be wholly contented, and small companies gathered with bonfires ready to light when the strange creature came lumbering past on his way to the next town. Sometimes, however, the management defeated this intention by sending along the road a horse built up to look like an elephant in the dark, and when the bonfire had been lighted and had burned out, the real elephant followed. —Christian Monitor.

The Way to the Pole.

Service with the American air forces in France adds weight to the opinion of Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer and leader of the Crocker land expedition, that the airplane is not adapted for a dash to the pole, and that the cost of such a trip by air would be prohibitive. In his own future explorations, Mr. MacMillan says, he expects to depend on the "ever-faithful dogs," for conveyance. The airplane, in his judgment, impracticable for several reasons, one of which is, he says, sufficient to discount the idea of successful Arctic exploration by air. The airplane, he says, is not adapted for the rough, frozen north offers no smooth fields of ice on which the explorer could make a landing. A dirigible might start from a properly equipped hangar in Labrador and hope to return, but the total cost of the expedition would probably be about $1,000,000.

In Apple Blossom Time.

A wedding I attended was held in an orchard in apple blossom time. One of the women wore a red shirtwaist. In the midst of the service a bull in a pasture in the next field rushed in at the red shirtwaisted woman, who climbed a tree before the bull arrived. The rest of the party and myself did likewise. The bride's veil fell off, which embarrassed her exceedingly. The shirtwaist was thrown over the fence and the bull subdued, and the wedding continued in peace. The woman hastened home after a new shirtwaist, wearing her husband's frock coat. —Exchange.

Replanting Forests.

In England and in Scotland, before the war, were many hunting ranges and sporting grounds. During the war, however, these were cut down to supply munition factories at home and armies abroad. Never before, it is said, have these countries been so bare of timber as they are at present. But now they are preparing to replant their forests. The old ones were not of all ornamental but incidentally they proved useful. These which they are planting now are to be first of all useful and also, of course, ornamental.

Remorse.

"So you were in a German prison camp?" "Yes." "How was the food there?" "Don't ask me to answer a question like that, but I'll say this much: If I ever run across the old lady I used to board with" — overcome by the recollection of the mean remarks he used to make about those Sunday afternoon dinners they applied a handkerchief to his nose and hastily walked away. —Los Angeles Times.

Your Red Cross Is Still Busy

READ WHAT YOUR DOLLAR IS DOING

COMMUNITY SURVEYS TO DETERMINE DIRECTION OF R. C. PEACE ACTIVITIES

"K NOW your community" surveys are in progress in forty towns and counties in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, as a systematic attempt to determine which community problem needs first attention. These surveys are directed in the town or county by the Red Cross Chapter.

Under its peace time program the Red Cross is authorizing its Home Service sections to extend relief activities to cover the after-war needs of the community which were brought to light in the work of the Home Service sections for soldiers' and sailors' families.

The findings of the survey committee in each community will determine the particular field into which the Home Service will extend its activities.

Six Red Cross Chapters in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky have already chosen their lines of extension and have been authorized by the Civilian Relief department at the Lake Division headquarters in Cleveland to go ahead with the work. These chapters are at Dayton, Springfield and Marietta in Ohio; Powhatan and Hammond in Indiana, and La Grange, Kentucky. Recreation facilities for the county, child welfare and relief work, and aid and counsel to be given to all families as it has been given to families of soldiers and sailors are some of the lines of future work chosen.

WAR-TIME AGENCY FINDS WORK INCREASED WITH PEACE-TIME PROBLEMS

AT LEAST one war organization has found that demands upon it have increased since the signing of the armistice. The last monthly report received at the Lake Division headquarters of the American Red Cross at Cleveland shows that 40,709 families in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky have been given aid and counsel during the month. Financial aid has amounted to $68,746 in that time—an increase of over $3,603 over the previous month.

At present there are 30,000 men and women in the United States giving full or part time to Home Service work. There are 357 organized bands of workers in the three states—108 in Ohio, 106 in Indiana and 144 in Kentucky.

BUREAU IS CREATED TO MEET NEEDS OF RURAL COMMUNITIES

TO BRING about the development of the American rural community is the purpose of the Bureau of Rural Organization, newly created department of the Civilian Relief department of the American Red Cross.

Prof. E. L. Morgan of the Massachusetts College of Agriculture has been appointed director.

Already there are 3,700 Red Cross Home Service sections operating in the United States, three-fourths of them in places of less than 8,000 population. The needs of the rural districts have been found to be so many and the organized attempts to remedy so very few that it will be a part of the Bureau's work to put the community in touch with the organization that can best meet its needs, whether it be the Red Cross or another agency.

Upon the shoulders of the past we stand. And to the future turn our questioning eyes. What doth she hold in store, what precious prize That we may wrest from out her close shut hands? —Elizabeth Wade.

POTTED MEATS AND FISH.

In England potted meats are an every-day occurrence, and the knowledge of potting is known by the plainest cooks. Meats such as ham, tongue or chicken, as well as fish left over from a meal, is potted for a luncheon dish, rather than making it into hash which is too common in most of our families. The goodness of potted meats depends upon the pounding and seasoning. If carefully prepared and put away they will keep for a long time and will be found most helpful in preparing emergency dishes.

Potted Chicken.—Take cold roast chicken, rejecting the skin and sinews, chop fine and to every pint allow a half cupful of chopped ham or tongue. Put the bones of the chicken into a saucepan, add a pint of cold water and simmer until there is a half pint of stock; strain and remove the fat. Pound the chicken, ham or tongue to a smooth paste. An old-fashioned mortar and pestle is used for this, or it may be ground through the meat chopper until fine. Then pound, add a little of the broth to chicken; season with cayenne, nutmeg and a tablespoonful of butter. Put into small jars and press down tightly, cover with a smooth paste. The jars with a paste made of flour and water, and bake in a moderate oven one-half hour, the jars standing in water. Take out, remove the cover and pour melted butter over the meat. Tie with a paper moistened with white of egg and keep in a cool, dry place. This will keep for months, and makes an ideal hot weather dish. Fresh beef's tongue, cold roast veal, broiled or roast mutton, ham and smoked tongue may all be potted in the same manner.

Potted Fish.—Mix cold, cooked fish to pieces, season with salt, pepper and a little nutmeg, then put into a jar, tie tightly with a piece of muslin, cover with a paste made of flour and water, and bake one hour in a moderate oven. When done and cold, pound the fish to a paste, stand the jar in water and cover with melted butter.

Neenie Maxwell

Secretary Baker long ago gave the reason for not putting the surplus stock of army food on sale. He did not want to break the market. In other words, he would rather see the food rot in the warehouses than have the price come down to the consumer. —Omaha Bee.

As poor as the Senate concludes the preliminary work of proving everybody on both sides to be unworthy of belief the debate on the league will get down to business. —Washington Post.

Local Happenings.

On November 4, 1915, the Old College Building of Moore-Hill College burned to the ground with more than a car load of coal in the cellar. After two years had elapsed smoke was still seen coming from the ruins. Within the last few days workmen in removing the old brick and debris from the ruins discovered that fire still remained beneath although it has been almost four years since the burning of the building. — Lawrenceburg Press

Selling cream and buying butter may seem foolish to some, but it should be remembered our friends that the farmer has time to take the trip in the live— the druggers in the city are making the butter. After a while some genius may invent a churn attachment for the flivver so that the farmer can have his cream, his butter and his drive at the same time. — Cynthia Democrat.

The State Board of Tax Commissioners has roughly calculated that the aggregate increase in the valuation of property for taxable purposes in Indiana for the assessment is $1,000,000,000. A table compiled by the Board showing the average valuation per acre of farm land in each county is of considerable interest. That of Dearborn county is $33 per acre; of Ripley $33; of Ohio $32.

Holt White has sold the farm down on the East Bend road that he bought of Henry Clore, of Bellevue, to Jacob Cook. It is a splendid piece of land and as Mr. Cook is a fine farmer there is no doubt but what he made a good purchase. Mr. Cook sold the farm on which he had lived to Solon Ryle, it being the home of many years of the late Jonas Clore.

The drought has damaged the crops in this State to the extent of millions of dollars. There is an occasional neighborhood where the crops are good and the neighborhoods are few and far between. Gardens have suffered greatly in every direction.

HAD A BIG TIME

While on the Junket—Several Fine Farms Visited and Much Fine Stock Seen.

Several Made Purchases of Fine Livestock.

At an early hour on Wednesday morning of last week a delegation of 45 Boone county farmers, several of them accompanied by their wives and other members of their families, left for a two days' junket.

This trip was made in response to an invitation from the College of Agriculture at Lexington. The main object of the trip was the combination sheep sale held at Lexington the first day of the trip.

Thursday morning the party was shown the Experiment Station farm and laboratories by Prof. N. R. Elliott. The heads of the various departments were on hand to explain and answer questions about the work being conducted in their departments. After spending a pleasant and profitable morning on the farm, the delegation returned to the Experiment Station building, where a very suitable dinner was served. During the noon hour short talks were made by several of the Experiment Station staff. These tended to make everyone present feel that the Experiment Station is a large clearing house for the many problems back on their farms, and that it is of great economical value to the farmer.

Any of our questionable farm practices and then assuring them that said practices will prove successful or else that they will result in a failure. Immediately following dinner the party started for Woodford county, with the big priced richest soils in all the State, to visit fine livestock farms. Returning to Fayette county the party made a stop at the famous Elmdorf farm between Lexington and Paris.

The most famous livestock farm visited here by the delegation was the Coldstream Farm near Lexington, where they saw assembled one of the greatest herds of Duroc Jersey hogs in the country, as well as the world famous Holstein herd headed by the $100,000 bull that is creating so much excitement in the dairy world today. Also, the world's champion cow which gave 51.96 pounds of butter in seven days, for which the owner, Mr. J. C. Scaffer, gave $25,000. The dairy barn being erected on this farm has left space for 400 tons of hay, the entire plan of the barn being in the hands of the architect.

The renowned Hereford cattle farms of Senator Camden and C. F. Taylor, were visited, where the fine stock of the Hereford breed was seen. The party was struck by the magnificent buildings on the Camden estate. All the barns were constructed of concrete with stalls and partitions throughout. At the farm of Milton LeBus, Cynthia the party saw royal blood in Shorthorn cattle and Hampshire hogs.

The party made the trip to the Blue Grass section via Williamsburg and Georgetown and returned by the way of Cynthia and Falmouth.

A great lesson learned by the party was that the quality of the homes, livestock, schools, churches and citizens were in direct proportion to the quality of the land.

One can see that if a community would have good buildings, comfortable houses, good quality of livestock, good roads, better churches, more efficient schools, homes, as well as an enterprising and progressive citizenship, it must guard against wasting the fertility of the land.

Another lesson shown in this connection, is that few things undertaken in this life ever culminate as they were planned. To illustrate we refer you to the list of persons who were planning to make this tour, as given in last week's issue. A glance at the names of those who really went will show you that the party failed in several cases to carry the proposed crew.

While the party suffered from losing the several who had planned to go and failed, who can say that the party was not as successful since it was able to secure the many persons to cover the loss of those unable to go. The lesson then, to the party, the business firm, or the individual, is not to count losses in a part of our undertakings, as failures, but to immediately set about to counterbalance or exceed our losses.

While the party was primarily out on the junket for better and profitable information, several were able to find an animal they liked, and had them sent back to Boone county to improve their livestock at home. Several secured options on animals that they wanted later.

Those making purchases were: T. W. Rice, three highly bred Hampshire hogs, one boar and two gilts, $50 each. Colin Kelly, one Shropshire ram, $70.

Joe E. Walton, two Hampshire rams, $47.50. Thomas Hensley, one Hampshire ram, $25.50. Butler Cotton, three Hampshire ewes, $37.50 each.

But Boone county won the honors of the day when C. W. Rice, the big priced sheep of the sale. Every Boone countyman there was glad when that fine imported Hampshire ram was finally knocked off to Mr. Lassing at $500. The sheep industry of Boone county is much better off by having such individual and conscientious buyers draw upon for breeding up her flocks. This ram won the blue all over England last year as a yearling and was the champion of the States last spring by Robert Blasted, of Walnut Hall Farm, Donerail, Ky.

The parties all arrived at home before midnight and daylight Friday night, well pleased with their trip and the amount of valuable information gained by it.

T. W. J. Ryle and Mrs. Adla Paine, both of Waterloo neighborhood, were married at the home of Rev. Royer, near Florence, last Saturday evening.

In Memory of Jas. H. Aylor.

James Henry Aylor, an account of whose tragic death was given in these columns some time ago, was 70 years old in a few months. He was a son of James Aylor, a pioneer citizen of the Gunpowder neighborhood, was raised on a farm and followed that vocation during his long life, having taken up his residence in Walton about one year ago, leaving his farm on Lower Gunpowder creek to the care of one of his sons.

His wife, who survives him was Miss Roxanna Rice, of what is now known as Waterloo neighborhood in this county. They were married in 1866, and to them were born 11 children of whom five girls and seven boys survive. He was one of a large family of children of whom only one, R. K. Aylor, of Waterloo neighborhood, survives.

For forty years he had been a member of the Baptist church at Big Bone of which he took a prominent part and was one of the members who always came to the front in the activities of the congregation. He was a man of great consistency and made friends of all with whom he became acquainted although of an unpretentious and retiring disposition. He was a good neighbor, a loving and indulgent father, the county a good neighbor and a valuable citizen.

Big Fair Next Week.
The Big North Kentucky Fair will begin at Florence next Wednesday, and will go on for better than any of the past. The grounds are in first-class order, and the directors have every advantage. The exhibition of stock will be large and the contests close. The usual liberal list of premiums will be awarded exhibitors.

HEART TO HEART TALK
O. C. Peyton, D. D.
"I will talk of thy doings," So the psalmist sang, and we are, therefore, richly the gainers for the Psalms of David, the servant of God, are the most valuable heritage of Gods believing people.

Profitable conversation is far from being common. Even those who profess to love the Lord talk about anything and everything rather than they ought. Many talk of preachers, absent persons, the world's ways and doings and all other things irrelevant and profane. But there is little talk of God and of his doings among the children of men. Here is, assuredly, shown a barrenness of the soul of the people.

People will always talk of the things that interest them the most—the things they are thinking most about. I overheard the talk of a group of young people at the Willard and Dempsey prize fight and the last base ball game. So I thought of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. If the heart is set on worldly things, carnal projects the talk will be carnal and worldly. But if the heart is set on the things that interest them the most—the things they are thinking most about. I overheard the talk of a group of young people at the Willard and Dempsey prize fight and the last base ball game. So I thought of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. The Walton Loose Leaf Warehouse is getting a lot of tobacco for the hoghead sale of tobacco to the middle of September. The tobacco is to be sold privately to the manufacturers' satisfaction and if the price is not satisfactory to those having interest in the pool they can reject the sale of their tobacco. The warehouse company hand pick, sort, grade and prize the tobacco for the growers at $0.00 per 100 pounds, which includes the hoghead which costs $4.00. The warehouse is doing this to help those who had tobacco left over, and to get them a good price for the tobacco, and those who have tobacco on hand should haul it to the warehouse for pricing at an early date so as to be in the sale. The price of tobacco is constantly improving under the crop conditions and a general realization that there is no overstock of tobacco in the hands of manufacturers and dealers.

Come and See the New Chandler Touring Car

Most Beautiful Big-Car Offering of the Season, and the Price is Only $1795

THE new Chandler touring model is here. We have waited for it. Old Chandler owners have waited for it. It's here now and we are all proud and happy.

The Chandler of the past has had splendid bodies, but the new Chandler touring car even surpasses its immediate fore-runner in beauty of line, in bigness, in comfort of its cushioning, in the nicety of its custom-like workmanship and in its lustrous finish.

The new Chandler Touring is a big car. Its high hood and radiator, its broad cowl, its wide and deep doors give it distinctive appearance.

And it RIDES--it rides like a dream

Nothing has been cut out to permit the delivery of this fine big touring car at the Chandler price. Indeed, many little details of nicety are added. The back curtain window is beveled plate glass. The clear-vision side curtains fit snugly and open with the doors. There are detachable rear quarter-bow curtains. There are outside door handles.

Features which have been standard Chandler qualities in the past are continued. The cushions are upholstered in genuine hand-buffed plaid leather. The front compartment floor boards are covered with heavy gray Inoleum, aluminum-bound. The two comfortable auxiliary chairs fold away, entirely concealed, when not in use.

Carrying this Handsome Body is the Famous Chandler Chassis

You will choose the new Chandler touring for its bigness and its comfort and its handsome dignity. But you will choose it, too, for its mechanical excellence. Fifty thousand Chandler owners know, better than we can tell you, what a good car the Chandler is. The famous Chandler motor and the sturdy excellence of the whole chassis make the Chandler notable among fine cars.

The Chandler continues for 1919 all its distinguished mechanical features: solid cast aluminum motor base extending from frame to frame, silent chain drive for the auxiliary motor shafts, annular ball bearings, Bosch Magneto ignition and many other features of design and equipment characteristic of the highest-class motor car construction.

NATURE ON THE JOB.

More Boys Than Girls Generally
Are Born After Great Wars.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.
Nature, including the human variety, has wonderful way of doing her work. There has never been anything of the reactionary about nature in all the ages of existence. The she may seem at times to go back, she doesn't really; it's our vision usually that's at fault. And that which we usually deem a retrograde movement is in fact a return to the true groove from that which we had considered her progress was merely a faulty distance.

Take, for instance, the common belief — which certain scientists have assured us is a fact — that more boys than girls are born during and immediately after a war. This is nature's way of replenishing the forces depleted by the cannons. This condition has prevailed in the past, and if we are to have faith in nature, it must be expected to hold now. But in certain quarters the birth-rate has fallen off, and babies of either sex have ceased to arrive as numerously as they once did. There are some who call this state of affairs a progressive step; it is generally so-called because who are must responsible for it. The "emancipation of woman" is another name for it. There are others who, though heartily favoring the granting of equal franchise to the hitherto submerged sex, deplore the feverish desire of the new freewomen to be done with all domestic cares.

Those who "live with alarm" the present condition have been asking "how is the customary post-bellum replenishment of the male population to be effected? But nature is at work, female nature herself. The emancipation of woman affects not one class, but all. So those who were accustomed to the performance of household duties for pay are seeking other and more "emancipated" places. Servant girls are hard to get. Therefore those housekeepers who were once able to employ them, and who then found time for dabbling in politics and other things which are not really work, are finding it more and more necessary to attend to domestic affairs themselves.

Now, it is a well-known fact that large families are not born to idle parents, but that the stock is a frequent visitor at houses where "man's work" from sun to sun, but woman's work is "done." What's nature up to anyway?

THE WRONG REMEDY.

Railway Strike Would Cause Wage Loss of $10,000,000 a Day, Washington Post.

Threats of a general strike of railroad workmen to enforce acceptance of their demands do not contribute to a just and reasonable solution of the problems which confront the nation.

More than 200,000,000 men who are now unable to earn enough to meet the prices of the necessities of life would be thrown into idleness and would earn nothing. The loss in wages would amount to $10,000,000 a day at the least.

With transportation at a standstill famine conditions soon would follow. Food now available in comparative abundance, though at excessive prices, could not be had at any price. Bread lines, soup kitchens, hunger, deprivation, sickness and even starvation loom in the prospect. Warehouses might be filled with food supplies without the means of distributing them to the people.

For every railroad workman who went on strike to others employed in industries dependent upon transportation would be rendered idle, thus multiplying the waste and the misery. Chaos and hunger, doubtless would lead to lawlessness, with what results none can now foresee.

Is this game worth the candle? Would the railroad men be justified in precipitating these conditions upon their country in an attempt to force their will upon the public?

If the burdens were peculiar to the members of the brotherhoods; if they were singled out for sacrifice and were ground down under the heels of soulless employers, they might find some justification for such ruthless methods. But they are not. They are suffering from the same conditions that 45,000,000 other workers are enduring, most of whom earn far less than the railroad men.

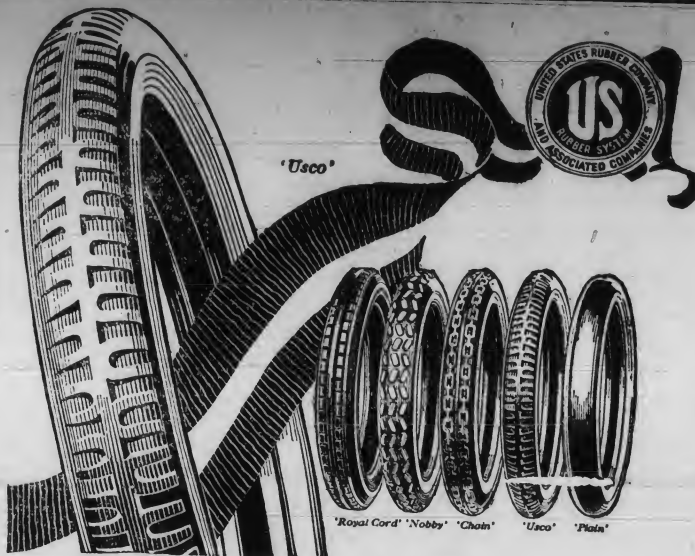

Card of Thanks.—We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to Bro. Campbell and our many friends and neighbors, who so generously offered their sympathy in the sorrowful days we have just passed through, when our beloved father, John Smith, was taken from us. Also C. Scott Chambers, who conducted the funeral so nicely and to the ones who sang the sweet and comforting songs. HIS CHILDREN.

The following is from the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune of the 18th inst.:

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to kidney trouble. The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers, of your blood. Kidney disease is usually indicated by weakness, sleeplessness, nervousness, dependency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gallstones, gravel, rheumatism, eczema and lumbago. All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil. After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

America First.

Competition is a fundamental law of trade. We deal with one another because we must, and dealing consists in the uninterrupted battle of wits, of initiative, enterprise, keen daring, hard work, unremitting vigilance.

We sometimes refer to this law as "brutal," but in the competition is the spur which impels to the highest possible effort on the part of individual or nation; it puts the brain to work and keeps it working; it has been responsible for our signal national achievement, for all national achievement is in the law, and the nation or individual offering the best goods and can market them most quickly and cheaply will always have the "edge" on other competitors.

It is entirely probable that a great deal of the gold which came to us in such unprecedented volume during the war, may return when it came, and that there may be danger in the fact, but our financiers, official and private, should be able to guard against it. There is a remote possibility that the nation, if one might form an offensive and defensive industrial alliance, might conclude to keep their markets to themselves, applying the gigantic power of centralized Government to the international Government of the world. Hence it is incumbent on us to exercise careful management in the maintenance of our commercial interests.

The tariff now not much discussed, must be carefully revised and adapted to altered world conditions, without being hampered by partisan conflict of opinion and interests. With the right kind of goods, honestly made, intelligent and adequate tariff legislation, we should be able to meet any competition without apprehension.

America can hold her place in the commercial lists of the world, but we must first feed, clothe and shelter our own citizens as they have the right to be fed, clothed and sheltered. We should not export food materials in excess of our needs. Prices must remain high while exports exceed a normal surplus. It is our moral duty to assist in feeding the world, but America must stand first. We must feed our own people at reasonable cost, no matter what distress of alien peoples may develop, by the enforcement of existing laws and the enactment of new legislation suggested by the President. America not only can successfully compete with other nations in the markets of the world, but can substantially aid in relieving world distress in the matter of food shortage. Enquirer

Recurrence of "Flu" Epidemic Threatened.

Will there be a recurrence of the influenza epidemic this coming fall and winter, like that which is still so fresh in the minds of the country? The Public Health Bureau is inclined to the belief that as soon as cold and wintry weather arrives that the "flu" will return with it. Although experiments have been going on for months in an endeavor to find a specific remedy to combat the malady, the Bureau announces now that little or no headway has been made but that the funds in hand for investigating the disease have been exhausted. Congress has been asked to come to the rescue, and in all probability it will do so promptly. An appropriation of $1,500,000 has been asked in a bill introduced in the House; a similar bill has also been introduced in the Senate. Further research will proceed immediately the money is available, as the bills state that it is the belief of the medical profession that the second and third years of the disease will show frightful after effects unless specific remedies can be found. The appalling loss of 500,000 lives, five times our loss in the war, is cited as the urgent need that the work of the Public Health Bureau be continuously maintained.

Educational Week.

Governor Black has proclaimed a state-wide educational week and recommends that all gatherings or occasions in conflict with this state-wide educational campaign be postponed and that all who are devoted to other interests abandon them for the time that such "an impetus may be given to these great educational problems as will lead to their wise and speedy solution." The Governor's drastic recommendations would not be justifiable, did not school conditions in Kentucky warrant such action. The teachers of the state do not bring about an improvement. All improvement must come from the state's business men, and they must be awakened to conditions, no matter what the cost.

Hebron Deposit Bank

A meeting was held last Saturday afternoon to organize a bank at Hebron. The prospective stockholders agreed to incorporate with a capital stock of $15,000, but when the subscription list was gone over it was found that this amount was over subscribed. It was then agreed that if parties in the neighborhood, who not yet been asked to subscribe, wanted stock, this capital be increased to $20,000. If not that, a larger subscription to allowed a $50,000 amount, to bring the total down to $15,000. Committees were appointed and building will be begun at once. The name will be Hebron Deposit Bank.

A MEADE COUNTY VISITOR

Much Pleasure With Boone County and Her People.

Through the kindness of Capt Ed Maurer, my son-in-law and a most worthy man, the Boone Co Recorder is a welcome visitor in my home.

Not long since I had a most pleasant visit in the little town of Bellevue, where I met many warm-hearted people, and formed new friendships. The blue hills so lofty and grand stand guard as faithful sentinels over that little hamlet beside the peaceful river.

We were in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smith, who have fine young son, who is being trained by a most worthy father and mother for a useful place in life. In Mr. and Mrs. John Maurea's lovely cottage, where kindness is the watchword, we met Grandpa Maurer, who has grown old with years of faithful service to those he loved. He interestingly told of his boyhood days.

Our Institute will be in session this week, and it promises to be the best held in Meade county for many years. Haden, Larue, Hart and Meade have organized as a "group" and instead of one instructor we will have six of the best educators in the State: MRS. FANNIE BOARD, Brandenburg, Ky.

A Surprise Dinner.

The home of Mrs. J. P. Tanner, and son, out on the Burlington and Union road, was a scene of much merriment and good cheer Sunday. Her daughter, grandchildren and great grandchildren, and many friends gave a surprise, bringing baskets well filled with all the delicacies of the season. When the noon hour came the table was set beneath the shade trees and all enjoyed the elegant dinner. Those present were Mrs. Stella Underhill and son, Hobert of Covington; Elmer Underhill, wife and children, and Lloyd Underhill, wife and child, of West Covington; Mrs. Lawrence and son, of Covington; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baker, John Aylor, son and daughter, Mrs. Mary Ellen Crigler and Owen Aylor and wife, of Limaburg; Jerry Deibel, wife and daughter, Clint Weaver and wife, Lloyd Weaver, wife and son, Mr. Creole and wife, of Pleasant Valley; Howard Kelly, wife and son, Chas Westbay, Mrs. Kirk Tanner and Miss Mary Furlong, of Burlington. All voted a good time and hope they may have many more just such days.

Of all the boys who have been discharged from the service only ninety have had their discharge papers recorded in the county clerk's office. This is a matter that the boys should give special attention in days to come a discharged soldier's papers may be lost or destroyed and in the event it became necessary to have them supplied much trouble would be saved if the discharge has been put on record in the county clerk's office.

Attorney O. M. Rogers, of Brainerd, was in Burlington, Tuesday. He labored hard with the court trying to convince His Honor that the verdict of the jury in the case of Snow and Burns against Pizg ought to be set aside and the defendant granted a new trial.

The three Burlington trucks are very busy moving livestock and farm produce to market. They make two trips a day and some days Dudley Blythe makes three.

A large number of city campers are having a delightful time on Woolper creek near the home of P. A. Alby. They have been there several days.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Carter and the Petersburg Christian church Sunday school, enjoyed an outing a couple days last week on Woolper creek.

The price of sugar has taken a considerable tumble the past week. It has come down 2 cents a pound at some of the stores.

Mrs. Lottie Davidsville, of San Antonio, Texas, is the guest of her son, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Davidsville.

There are some ideal places to camp on Woolper creek and fishing is good.

S. C. Hicks, of Union, was a business visitor to Burlington last Tuesday.

Another big breaker or two "struck" and work in Burlington for several days.

YOUNG BURGLARS.

15 Year Old Boy in Jail Charged With Burglary—Pal Still At Large.

Leo Goins, alias, Leo Postel 19, and Geo. Dolhoven, 15, who resided with their parents on Robert McGlasson's farm in Hebron neighborhood, entered M. L. Crutcher's store at Hebron, by prizing open a window one night a week or ten days ago, and stole goods, money and thrift stamps to the amount of about $200. Mr. Crutcher kept very quiet about the matter and it was not long until suspicion pointed to the above named boys as the guilty parties. They left the neighborhood, but Dolhoven came back last Tuesday when Mr. Crutcher notified Sheriff Connor, who had been informed of the robbery, and he was soon on hand and in pursuit of the boy whom he found hiding under a bridge on the pike about a mile from Hebron, he having been informed that the Sheriff was after him. When taken back to Hebron Dolhoven confessed to having entered the store with the other boy, who he said was in Cincinnati and had all the lute. Dolhoven is in Burlington jail and a warrant is out for the arrest of Goins or Postel.

Report of Grand Jury.
To Honorable Sidney Gaines, Circuit Judge:
We, the Grand Jury, empaneled on the first day of the August 1919 term of the Circuit Court, beg leave to report:
We have examined all of the public property. The court house we find in fair condition and are informed that several minor repairs will soon be completed. The jail needs pointing and painting inside and outside, especially inside. The county infirmary needs painting on the outside, the basement needs draining, the steps should be repaired and a new covering should be furnished for the eastern. We recommend that all the foregoing repairs should be attended to immediately.
We find that the court house and infirmary are both well kept. Having completed our labors we now ask to be finally discharged. Respectfully submitted,
J. L. JONES, Foreman.

A good man; a good citizen; a good neighbor has gone to his reward. John Smith was born March 27, 1837, departed this life August 13, 1919, aged 82 years, 4 months and 16 days. He was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Goodridge, Feb. 19, 1863. To this union one child was born, Mrs. Eliza Grant. He leaves to mourn his loss one daughter, two grandsons, one son-in-law and two brothers, Lystra, of this place, and William, of Adairton, Ohio, and a host of other relatives and friends. All the friends hands could do was done for him, but his journey on earth was ended and the Lord said, "come." Mr. Smith will not only be missed in the family circle but will be greatly missed in the community in which he lived. He was a good friend and neighbor always ready and willing to help those in need. A good man has gone to his reward.

Abraham Sayre was born July 5, 1835, in Meigs county, Ohio died August 14, 1919; was married to Martha Shambler, Feb. 9th, 1875. To them were born three children, Mrs. Lizzie Means, of Switzerland county, Ind.; Mrs. Rosa Miller and Mrs. Dean Brady, of Boone county, Ky. He united with the Baptist church about twenty-five years ago. He moved to Petersburg about ten years ago. Mr. Sayre was a good, kind hearted man, always ready to do a kind act for his neighbors, and friends, "Daddy Sayre," as most every one called him, was loved by all who knew him and will be greatly missed. He became ill last January and bore his suffering with Christian fortitude. His last words were, "God have mercy on me." He was a kind husband and a loving father. He leaves to mourn his death a loving wife, three daughters, three son-in-laws one brother, one sister-in-law, 11 grandchildren, two step-grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends. The family wishes to thank everyone who was so kind to them.

President an Early Riser.

President Wilson is an early riser these summer days. He must needs be in order to attend to all the business that comes before him, also to secure the hours of daylight recreation. Since recovering from his recent illness he has been devoting considerable time to playing golf, his favorite diversion. The star of the golf links at the Country Club, across the Potomac River in the Virginia hills, is often made before 8 o'clock in the morning, long ahead of the time that many other government officials have had their breakfast. Since his return from France the President's automobile does not attract so much attention when he travels the city streets or country roads. He has dispensed with the secret service men who rode alongside of his car on motorcycles. There were usually four of them, and the noise from their machines annoyed the President, as well as made his car conspicuous from all other cars. His sole protection now are the secret service men who occupy a large touring automobile which follows directly behind the limousine of the President.

Gossip From the Press.

Ostrich feathers at $100 a pound at the second great warehouse sale in a New York apartment to a world mart will not figure largely in the cost of living.—New York World.

If 90 per cent of his ammunition is made in the United States how long could Lenine persist here he is compelled to rely on the other 10 per cent.—Detroit Free Press.

Well, we see the cost of living problems are getting into the courts, and we suppose the perishable foods may as well make up their minds to perish.—Ohio State Journal.

Chas. Kerr returned from Louisville last Sunday evening with a large truck which is one of the three trucks the county has been awarded in the government distribution of army trucks on hand at the close of the war. It is a brand new machine. Paul Foster came in Tuesday from Camp Knox with the second truck received from the government. The third truck will be received later on. They are very substantial machines and are just what the county needs in its road work.

Circuit Court.

The grand jury in session four days and returned eleven indictments.

Commonwealth's Atty. Howe left for home last Thursday at noon after four days strenuous labor which resulted in the gathering in of several fines for the State.

In the suit of Ezra Franks and others against Omer Riggs, Executor of Missouri Walton the jury returned a verdict for $1,500 against the defendant. It seems that the defendant sold to the plaintiffs a tract of land out on the Bellevue and Burlington pike and afterwards sold it to other parties, and the plaintiffs sued to recover the difference between the price which they were to pay and the market value of the land which the jury decided was $1,500.

In the suit of Edward Osborn against Phil Lambert for $10,000 for the defamation of his character the jury found for the defendant Lambert. Osborn and Lambert are both citizens of the town of Florence.

The commissioners who selected the grand and petit jurors for the next term of court were A. M. Yealey, of Bullittsville, and J. L. Kite, of Burlington.

The attendance at court has been confined almost exclusively to litigants, witnesses and jurors.

Judge Gaines being a distant relative of W. H. Rice declined to preside at the trial of the damage suit of Edward Osborn against W. H. Rice in which the plaintiff sued for $10,000 damages for defamation of character, and the cause was continued, and a special judge will be selected for its trial.

Some of the jurors topped tobacco until late at night after getting home from court the afternoon and then got up very early the next morning and continued the work until they had to start back to court.

In the suit of Snow and Burns against Pigg the jury gave the plaintiffs a verdict for $200. It seems that Pigg bought of Snow and Burns a crop of tobacco at 40 cents a pound, and when the tobacco was delivered at the Aurora loose leaf house Pigg claimed it was not in condition and that there were more pounds of tips than they represented to him would be. The tobacco was held several days and sold on a declining market and the jury was to give the plaintiffs, if any thing, the difference between the price the tobacco brought and the market price the day Pigg refused to receive it.

There is hope in Mr. Wilson's message, because he not only recognizes the powers he already possesses but because of his resolve to exercise them both with force and with dispatch. He can and says he will check profiteering. He can and says he will stop hoarding. He can and says he will get the maximum food reserves distributed where they are needed. He can and says he will drive the job.—New York Sun.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days. I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go. I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle. I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. B 78

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Baker of Columbus, Ohio, who have been visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Baker at Sanders, arrived here Friday on a visit to her parents Judge and Mrs. Thos. F. Curley. Mr. Baker has been on the sick list for some time and recently underwent an operation for an internal trouble, and he is still feeling weak.

Chas. L. Griffith returned home Monday night from a visit of several weeks to the Richmond farm near Montgomery, Ala., which is being managed by his son-in-law Oswald Peterson. The farm contains about 800 acres and is owned by Mr. Griffith, Jno. C. Bedinger and R. O. Hughes, and they have been offered about twice as much as they paid for it, as land in that quarter is advancing very rapidly. Mr. Griffith says that it rained thirteen days of the fifteen days he was in Alabama, and the cotton and corn crops have been greatly diminished by the excessive wet weather, though the outcome promises very well.

John Shanahan and children Hugh and Miss Goldie, of Warsaw, were here last week looking over some real estate with a view to purchasing a farm of about 100 acres. They are good people and would be an addition to this community. Miss Shanahan is a teacher in the Warsaw H. S. School and Hugh was recently discharged from the army after months of active service in France where two other sisters served thruout the war as Red Cross nurses.

John B. Reanour won his suit against John B. Wiles in the Grant circuit court last term, and was awarded a judgment for $4,500, connectable at the death of Mr. Wiles. The litigation grew out of an alleged agreement made by Mr. Wiles with Mr. Reanour many years ago in which it is stated that Mr. Wiles agreed that if Mr. Reanour would live with him on a farm he had purchased and would help him pay for it he would give him the farm when Mrs. Wiles died. Mrs. Wiles is dead and Mr. Reanour was not given any farm, hence the suit. The case will be taken to the Court of Appeals.

Jno. C. Bedinger is the attorney for Mr. Reanour and Judge B. F. Menzies presents Mr. Wiles.

BOONE COUNTY CHAPTER

American Red Cross Work in Boone Will Continue—Committees Appointed.

A meeting of the Boone County Chapter of the American Red Cross was held at the Florence Fair Grounds, August 18, 1913. The meeting was called to order at 3 P. M.

The County Secy. having previously resigned it was necessary to fill this vacancy. Mrs. Robt. C. Eastman was elected to act as Secretary for this meeting.

The object of the meeting was to determine what should be done with the funds on hand both with the County Treasurer and the various Treasurers of Chapters throughout the county.

Mr. Thurston, Assistant Manager of the Red Cross at Louisville, was present and spoke at length on the importance of continuing the work of the Red Cross; not as was done previous to the armistice but along the lines of Community Home Service.

Miss Collins spoke on the importance of this branch of work in assisting the soldier to get back into civil life correctly, and aiding the families of soldiers, sailors and marines, where assistance is needed. After this work is completed it is the idea to extend this work to all persons who are in need.

Miss Lida Hafford, Executive Secretary, spoke at length on the work of the Junior Red Cross and the Welfare Nurse. Heretofore the work of the Junior Red Cross has been along the line of production. The present plan is educational. It is necessary for a school to be a member of the Junior Red Cross; 50 per cent of the money so raised goes into the National Children's Fund for relief of children abroad; 40 per cent is to be devoted to children in this county, with the idea in mind to establish between children in this county and abroad relations that will make possible our Red Cross League of Nations. This 40 per cent the children are allowed to spend on relief work at home.

Boys may have a course in First Aid and girls Home Service. When the course is finished a certificate is given to the children.

In connection with the Nursing work it is the idea to organize classes of at least 10 members, throughout the county, and to secure from Red Cross Headquarters a nurse who will give a course of instructions on Home Care of the Sick. This course is to consist of 16 lessons.

Miss Hafford urged the work of making possible this course of instructions on "Home Care of the Sick."

Representatives were present from the following Auxiliaries: Bellevue, Petersburg, Burlington, Bullittsville, Constance, Union, Richmond, Florence, Beaver Lick, South Fork, Hoboken.

The Treasurer reported cash on hand $1,902.08. Reports were heard from the various Auxiliary Treasurers of their funds on hand (appropriate amounts).

Motion carried that the Red Cross, Boone Co. Chapter, continue.

Miss Lillian Bristow, of Union, was nominated for Secretary and was elected by an unanimous vote.

It was decided that the Chairman should appoint a committee of three or five to act as nominating committee; the names to appear in the Recorder issue of August 28th.

It was also decided that the chairman should appoint three children of committees on the three branches of work and give them authority to appoint two other members of committee and chairman should appoint three adult workers in the county.

The following were appointed: Community Home Service—Miss Hughes.

Nursing (Home Care of the Sick)—Mrs. J. H. Dube.

Junior Red Cross—to be filled later.

The question of carrying on the Community Home Service Work was then presented to the Executive Committee. Motion carried to employ a Welfare Nurse. Motion carried to employ a Home Service Secretary. Motion carried to adjourn. MRS. ROBT. C. EASTMAN, Secretary.

Bolshevism Among Farmers.

There is a man in the county by the name of George McKelvie, who is preaching to the farmers the worst kind of Bolshevism. He is causing a great deal of dissatisfaction among farmers who have been living in peace and contentment for many years. Until this man appeared in the county the farmers and business men of Somerset were on the very best of terms. They were joined together in mutual advantage. Now comes this man to our community trying to cause friction among our people. He tells the farmer that he is being robbed. At a recent meeting at Bronston he told the farmers that it was the farmer boy who shouldered the gun and fought in the trenches while the city boy was working in the office. He told them that the County Agent was a hiving of the rich and the big corporations and that before long the rich people of the cities would come along and take part of their farms. No big farmer falsehood was ever told and the good farmers of the county should resent such a claim on their intelligence. The farmers of Pulaski county want to organize, that is their business but they should beware of these traveling agents who come along and take their money for what they get nothing in return. This man gets a per cent of each fee collected. We are told, and for that reason he is using all kinds of methods to induce the farmer to join the union. On the heels of this man there comes another of the same kind who tells the farmer that he is being robbed by the merchants of the city, and that he will sell them their goods at cost. We do not believe the farmers of Pulaski will fall for such a line of talk. They should not. They should be aware of these men who want to give them something for nothing. We are told that just recently one of these men offered to buy certain farmers sugar at cost. They gave him their order, cash in advance, and when the sugar arrived and was delivered it was found that it cost them more than it was selling for in Somerset. Thus they were humbugged again. This is a serious matter. The business people of Somerset should take the matter up at once. It might also be well for the officers of the law to listen to one of these speeches this man McKelvie is making. — Somerset Journal.

A Pocket Argument.

It is plain that one of the factors in the extraordinary war conditions which have survived the actual close of the war are those which are oppressing the people through abnormal prices is the delay in the validation of the Peace Treaty. The President has made this clear in a manner that admits of no dispute. Interesting in this connection is a speech just made by Lord Robert Cecil in the British House of Commons. "The only way to reduce prices," he says, "is to stop the large expenditures for armaments. We have established a League of Nations and we must make it a reality. Otherwise, we had better scrap it altogether. I question whether some officials of the Government have a real desire to make the league a reality. We must make the league a reality to save the country from bankruptcy and ruin. This is a feature of the party to be played by the League of Nations in the reduction of high prices not included by President Wilson in the points which he has brought out in his recent discussion of the subject, but it is one of distinct relevancy and one which, in the course of time, will have a material bearing on prices in our own country. Lord Robert was a little loose in his language when he said that the only way to reduce prices in England is to stop the large expenditures for armaments. This is only one way, though a very important way. Its adoption in Great Britain would go far toward lightening the burden of living expenses. And we are now in a position to have some comprehension of the relief which would result from a similar policy in our own country. We have had a taste of a big army and navy and we are paying excessive taxes in order to foot the bills and must continue to pay them for some time yet. Armaments no longer it would be necessary for us to maintain as a member of the League of Nations would heavily reduce taxes, besides tending to reduce general prices. Of course relief through that means would not be immediate. Perhaps that is why the President has not referred to it in his recent allusions to the benefits which would follow the early ratification of the Peace Treaty. — Courier-Journal.

The President gives expression to his belief that the more extreme leaders of organized labor will presently yield to a sober second thought and see that strikes undertaken at this critical time are certain to make matters worse, not better, for them and for everybody else. He tells is not the whole truth, nothing but the truth, when he says: "The worst thing, the most fatal thing that can be done now is to stop or interrupt production or to interfere with the distribution of goods by the railways and the shipping of the country. We are all involved in the disastrous results of the high cost of living and we must unite, not divide, to correct it." He goes straight to the mark when he adds that threats and undue pressure in the interests of a single class makes settlement impossible. — Kentucky Eagle.

Milk and Butter.

In the United States, the production of milk is more than six billion gallons per year—an average of nearly one gallon per cow a day—and, exclusive of the milk and cream consumed on the farms, our dairy products are worth $200,000,000 a year—enough to build a Panama Canal and pay for the maintenance of our army and navy before the recent war.

Only one-third of all the milk produced in the U. S. is sold from the farms. Much of that which remains is used for domestic purposes there, although a billion pounds of butter is produced on American farms as a by-product. The total production of butter in the U. S. is around 700,000,000 pounds annually ten out of every seventeen lbs. of which is produced on the farm, and the average annual consumption per person in the United States is about 17 pounds.

Milk is used everywhere that man lives and it is secured from many different kinds of animals. Around the Arctic Ocean the Laplander milks his reindeer and freezes the milk into blocks to keep until it is needed; in the desert regions of Asia and Africa the natives drink the milk of camels and donkeys; in western Asia there are wandering tartar tribes who live largely on mare's milk. In many countries the goat is the poor man's cow, while sheep milk is widely used throughout Europe. The amount of butter which in normal times is reported from different countries amounts to 728,000,000 lbs. per annum, which is less than half the butter production of the United States.

More Work for Reformers.

A declaration of war against the tobacco habit has been issued by the W. C. T. U. The fact assures continued employment for numerous zealous guardians of our souls' welfare. But there is additional work cut out for the general professional reformer, and the tenure of the Anti-Saloon League may be extended indefinitely.

If a "jag" is wrong, and it gives offense to the family and neighborhood, it doesn't matter how much it is produced, does it?

We now are informed by respectable scientific authority that certain mental experiences, viz., the "spruce experiences." The learned gentleman responsible for this interesting information says that the victims of these "mental debauches" are affected by the same fundamental factors which underlie certain forms of alcoholism; and, quantity of psychic debauchery the most active among the prohibition propagandists. Wherefore some of our professional moral reformers may find it necessary to assume the defensive against a charge of "unkenned" conduct.

One scientist insists that it makes no difference how a "jag" is acquired; that the same effects result from indulgence in good liquor as are apparent in those who have indulged in the "jag" of And, if he is to be credited, the victim fairly revels in his psychic debauchery. He insists that the militant reformers are continuously "lit up" that many preachers are affected by it, and that a psychic drunkard is quite as unpleasant to associate with as was the old-fashioned John Barleycorn variety. — Enquirer.

Press Comments.

In one of the most clear-headed utterances he has ever made—perhaps the most detailed and abundant speech that ever came from his lips—the President has set forth the causes of the existing high prices and suggested remedies. He makes it apparent that these remedies are not the last word. To him the adoption of the League of Nations and a settlement with Germany are essential to the solidity or security in world markets that must precede a general and permanent lowering of prices. It is a clear and courageous statement of conditions and remedies. It puts the whole subject in logical perspective. And Congress will be wise to take up immediately every proposal. — New York Globe.

The address of President Wilson to the Congress relative to the high cost of living and the proposed relief measures is a sobering statement of facts and a conservative program for amelioration. No touch of demagoguery, no class appeal, no intemperance of expression, no mere diagnosis of disease, but a studied statement of conditions as the Government knows them conditions to exist, and an indication of the line of action to be pursued. — Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.

Americans generally will agree with the President's statement that the corporations engaged in interstate trade in food, clothing and other necessities of life should be compelled to submit to a Federal licensing system. They will agree that Congress should without delay enact the capital issues laws now pending. Every agency of the Federal Government, Congress consenting, stands pledged to defeat profit from the railways and the shipping of living within reach of the average American. The President's ringing challenge will bring cheer to thousands. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bringing Up the Herd—Kindness

In studying and observing dairy herds generally, I find that the greatest number of them are composed, not of pure bred stock, but of good grade stock.

This is a good plan from many points of view, and such herds can be improved quickly by simply following some plan of grading. For grading it is necessary to have a pure-bred sire. This is the main feature, and must not be overlooked, if the herd is to be gradually improved.

All male calves from such a sire are usually sold when large enough for veal, or sometimes they may be kept and fattened as butcher stock. Much depends upon the amount of grain and roughage raised in order to prove which method will prove most satisfactory.

The female calves are retained and take the place of the culls. Cows later on, thereby gradually increasing the quality of the herd. Weak or poor female calves may be disposed of either for veal, or what they will bring on the market. Only the sturdy, promising animals should be kept for herd improvement.

New sires will be needed from time to time in order to grade up the herd, and prevent inbreeding. It is the best policy to cling fast to the breed introduced by the first pure bred sire. Often the mistake is made of changing the breed, and the result will be a herd of unsatisfactory producing qualities. In upgrading a change of breed, the picture of blood has often proved destructive to the herd. For instance, introducing the Holstein into a herd of improved Jerseys, introduced at once qualities that are antagonistic. The same thing happens with other breeds and types of cattle.

It is therefore important for the farmer to realize that he must cling to the breed defined by the first pure bred bull, introducing new sires that are not related to the old, but of the same breed, as they are required from time to time.

One of the most important things to remember in improving the grade of herd is that the animals individually, and as a herd, will respond wonderfully, and do much better, under kind treatment. A little petting and grooming, and a man with a low, pleasing voice, who speaks to the animals gently, and does not yell or strike at them, does as much to build up a fine herd as good food. It cannot be urged too strongly. Cows bring their calves more easily, and there is less danger of accident and fighting in the herd, if they are well treated. Appetizing food, which may be considered one phase of kind treatment, makes the cow eat more, and so develop into a higher type producing animal. — H. W. Swope.

President Wilson's address to the Congress, proposing a solution of the critical questions confronting the nation, sounded the call of the world's unrest in no clear and coherent terms that none who read it thru can fail to understand any phase of it. The only regret the public can possibly have after its perusal is that there were not more "musts" and fewer "may we not." In other words, the conditions would seem to demand something of the Rooseveltian "big stick" and less of the "mighty" in dealing with the cause; something in other words, of Grover Cleveland's "dollar" and "daring" in dealing with questions of vital interest. — Chattanooga Times.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

LOOK OUT!
Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease. Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big ones. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haemol Oil Capsules. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain. This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the Government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haemol Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders. Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL Haemol Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box, and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

MALEKULANS NOT ALL BAD

Pugnacious South Pacific Islanders
Scrupulously Honest, Though
Careless of Human Life.

The sending of a small naval force to Malekula Island, in the New Hebrides, for the protection of planters against the natives brings some incidental information about a peculiar people with the undesirable fame of being the most bellicose inhabitants of any island in the South Pacific. Malekula Island has long been under the joint control of France and England, and at intervals some display of force has been necessary to make the islanders respect the local representatives of a more advanced civilization. Despite their reputation for pugnacity, however, there is much, declares a recent writer, to be said for the Malekulans. For one thing, they are remarkably honest; the traveler who goes among them knows that however he may fare as regards personal safety, he is in no danger whatever of losing his personal property. And if he is careful not to irritate his hosts, he is likely to come away with a pleasant memory of the native village community, its discussions of community affairs in a kind of village forum, its dances, and its children's playground under the banyan tree. He learns also that many of the villages have a social club for men and that the islander, who is also a crack marksman with bow and arrow, takes great satisfaction in belonging to it.

JUST MISSED SEEING FATHER

Little Incident Reported From France Shows That Political Trickery is Not Unknown There.

When it comes to the matter of political trickery, modern nations one and all seem to be pretty well tarred with the same brush. The following incident retold with a flavor of Gallic irony by the Cri de Paris is said to have taken place at Toulouse.

On election day a young man came to a booth to vote.

"Bnt, monsieur," said one of the overseers, "you have already voted."

"I? Alas alone! I am certain that I have not."

A search being made of the records, it is discovered that there has been an error in the recording of the Christian name. It is not Marthe Tartarin that has voted but Gonzague Tartarin.

"Gonzague?" cried the young man; "you are quite sure that he has voted?"

"Yes, indeed! Look, here is the register."

"Ah, how I regret not having been here," said the young man. "I would have embraced him with much pleasure. He is my father."

"Your father?"

"Yes, and I have not seen him since he died, four years ago."—The Living Age.

A "General Settlement."

In the rich spoil that the Hapsburgs accumulated over many centuries, much of which is coming back to the nations that owned it, there is hardly a more interesting item than the coronation robes that Italy now proposes to have returned to Palermo, Sicily. Henry VI, emperor of the Holy Roman empire in the twelfth century, subdued the Sicilies and took back to Germany the gorgeous costume that Saracen artisans had made for Norman kings who had come into control a hundred years earlier. Since then the robes have been worn by Hapsburg monarchs at their coronations, and of late years they have been kept, between these ceremonial occasions, in the imperial treasury in Hofburg, Vienna. The robes include a magnificent mantle, a wonderfully embroidered skirt or long gown of fine linen, and a giraffe of gold scales. As between Austria and Italy, it certainly looks like what Weidman Sprunt would have called a "general settlement."

A Fellow Feeling.

"I saw an ant on the window sill of my room on the seventh floor of the hotel where I stopped in Kansas City," related Gabe Cassell of Grudge, who was just back from a brief stay in the Big Burg. "I looked at him a long time, and says I: 'Little fellow, I don't know how you got here, but you are up in the air above the ground you are used to, but you don't look any more out of place than I feel, with all the cluttered mess and hurry and upsurge going on around me day and night, in a never-ending hoarse roar,' says I."—Kansas City Star.

New Roads in France.

Four great mountain roads are to be rekind and rebuilt in the upper Vosges, leading from France into Alsace.

The Commission des Routes of the district of the Vosges is looking to the near future when tourism will pay that way. Largely the roads existed as strategic military mountain roads, and the present effort is in line with making them available for pleasure automobiles. Taken together they will form a new approachable circuit and entrance into upper Alsace.

Science Can Overcome Locusts.

Fruit trees are always the special objectives of the locusts when they sound the rallying cry, and when thorough preparations are not made against their coming they can leave a trail of ruin in the wake of their flight; but the science of the day is almost everywhere making such havoc and attend its attack as he achieved in the earliest days of his destructive history.

RED CROSS ANNOUNCES ITS ANNUAL CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS AND MEMBERS

TO carry out its war-time obligations in countries overseas and to launch its peace program at home, the American Red Cross will conduct its annual campaign for members and funds between November 3 and November 11, Armistice Day. Fifteen million dollars is the national quota, asked in addition to 1,920 members.

MacKenzie R. Todd has been appointed campaign manager for Ohio,
Indiana and Kentucky, the three states of the Lake Division, by D. C.
Dougherty, acting manager of the Division. Mr. Todd is now in Cleveland working on plans for the drive at the general campaign headquarters.

Mr. Todd has appointed campaign managers for the division—R. F.
Grant, Ohio State Manager; Clarence
Stanley, Indiana State Manager, and John R. Downing, Kentucky State Manager.

EXECUTIVES DETAIL PLANS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE PEACE TIME RED CROSS

ACTING Lake Division Manager D. C. Dougherty calls attention to the fact that Congress recently prolonged the responsibilities of the Red Cross abroad when it authorized the transfer to the Red Cross of such medical and surgical supplies and supplementary and dietary foodstuff now in Europe as are not needed by the army abroad or at home. These the Red Cross is to administer to relieve and supply the pressing needs of the countries involved in the war.

While many Americans may believe that Red Cross foreign obligations are at an end, Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, calls attention to the fact that our Allies suffered far more hardships with war than did we and that we have incurred obligations which honor demands shall be discharged, and, furthermore, the vast territory of the far east, cut off from aid during the war, has looked to America since the cessation of hostil-ties.

The Red Cross is now turning its attention to home needs and has worked out a program covering home service, nursing, preparation for disaster relief, and a Junior Membership.
"Service to Americans" will be a Red Cross slogan henceforth.

HIGHER CIVILIZATION.

No truer nor better can civilization be defined, than in the language of our own Ralph Waldo Emerson, who while having gone to the grave years and years ago, yet lives, says Knoxville Journal and Tribune. He said: "The truest test of civilization is not the census, nor the size of cities, nor the crops, nor, but the kind of men it turns out." We have statesmen, professional men, men in the walks of life who will measure up to a high standard; but will it be said we have many who will thus measure? Judged by that standard, can it be said that ours is a country that may justly lay claim to a high standard of civilization, or to anything like the highest attainable? Pages and chapters, volumes, have been written and read, and studied, telling how to improve the quality of our domestic animals, with a view to the enhancement of their usefulness, to improve their appearance and approach perfection in the qualities upon which their usefulness is based. So it is, we have scientists and some men who are taking an interest in the improvement of physical manhood. It is being claimed that a strong mind can do better work and more of it if encased in a sound, strong body, and to this end some interesting surveys have been and are being made.

A great many statesmen of the central powers are still living in the past. Poor old Czernin, who used to alternate as foreign minister with Burian, keeps on crying to the ghost of defeat, like Macbeth to Banquo's ghost, "Never shake thy yory locks at me." Austria, he says, was always willing that Germany should evacuate all Russian territory occupied by German troops. But Germany proved to be the obdurate party. Yet how about the case of Roumania? Did not Hungary ally herself with her own little imperialist ends in the treaty of Bucharest? Czernin says he resigned in disgust after the signing of this treaty, which may well be, says New York Post. But the dual monarchy, at any rate, no more than Germany, could resist the temptation to loot its neighbors when opportunity offered. Had it not been for Brester-Litovsk and Bucharest there might never have been that terrible armistice of Senlis.

The almost royal honors paid to Edith Cavell at her funeral home in Westminster Abbey typify the tribute paid by the nations to the part which women have taken in the world war—in their work, their aid and their sacrifices. Their work has been one of mercy and ministrations, but in many cases they have done it at the front under fire and at the risk of their lives, certainly of their comfort and health. When the history of the war comes to be written, the unprecedented part taken in it by women will be among its strong redeeming parts.

The Cincinnati Enquirer wants to cross the hen with an oyster because the oyster produces 400,000 eggs annually. We think the oyster might improve the hen, not so much because of the greater egg output, but in the possible silencing of the cackle. But if the hen should cackle for 400,000 eggs annually—well, good-night.

Fifteen millions and a half women will be eligible to vote in the next presidential election. People still oppose the principle of equal suffrage, but they no longer laugh at it. No body with the faintest interest in politics could laugh at any principle which can command that many votes.

We read that Russia will want about $1,000,000,000 worth of goods from the outside world as soon as peace comes. Well, Russia has only to make peace with herself in order to get the things she wants.

SPRAY CONTROLS GRAPE ROT

Vines Should Be Sprayed With Bordeaux Mixture in Spring as Buds Begin to Swell.

(By JOHN H. CARMODY, Kentucky Experiment Station.)
Frequent complaint is reaching the experiment station regarding a disease that is attacking the grapes. Upon investigation - this trouble is usually found to be due to a parasitic fungus known as black rot.

This is by no means a new trouble, as it is very general in all of the sections where the grape is grown. Black rot first shows itself upon the berries and leaves. Usually the berries are most seriously affected and the disease manifests itself upon the latter by small, clear-cut brown spots. These spots gradually enlarge until all of the berries on the stem are affected. It is a noticeable fact that the diseased berries do not shed but continue to cling to the vine long after the grape season is past. It is needless to say that this serves as a means whereby the disease is carried over from one season to another.

Fortunately for the persons interested in grape culture this trouble can be readily kept in control. Where only a few vines are grown the practice of bagging the bunches in order to ward off the spore may be used. The bunches should be covered early in the season after the blooming season is over. The ordinary paper sacks do very well. The principal point to keep in mind is to pin the top of the bag securely so that it will exclude the entrance of the spores. It is also a good plan to clean the vineyard of any old litter, such as leaves and pruned canes, as soon as convenient.

Spraying with bordeaux mixture is perhaps one of the most reliable means of control. Where the trouble is known to exist the vines should be thoroughly sprayed in the spring just as the buds are swelling. This application should be repeated several times during the summer. The number of applications will depend somewhat on the nature of the season. If the season happens to be dry a fewer number of applications will be needed than if the season is warm and moist.

Bordeaux mixture for this purpose may be prepared as follows: Dissolve four pounds of copper sulphate (blue stone) and four pounds of stone lime separately in 25 gallons of water. Then pour the two together into a 50-gallon barrel and stir thoroughly. The best way to dissolve the copper sulphate is to suspend it in a cloth bag in water over night. Care should be taken not to let it come in contact with any metal. Pumps should be brass lined where bordeaux is to be used.

PARTIAL SHADE FOR BERRIES

In Southern Limits of Their Range Currants and Gooseberries Do Better If Shaded.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Currants and gooseberries commonly do better, especially in the southern limits of their range, if grown where there is partial shade. This sometimes can be provided by planting them between fruit trees. Raspberries and blackberries are sometimes planted between trees, but the practice is not advisable unless the soil is naturally moist and fertile.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS

DRAG ROADS AT PROPER TIME

Fully as Important as It Is That Highways Should Be Done Right—Keep Ruts From Forming.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is fully as important that a road be dragged at the right time as it is that the dragging be properly done. Furthermore, the difficulties involved in prescribing definite rules for determining when dragging should be done are equally as great as those already encountered in attempting to define very general statements concerning this feature of the work can properly be made here, and much must be left to the experienced judgment of those who decide when the dragging of any particular road is to be started and when it is to be stopped.

The rule frequently cited that all earth roads should be dragged immediately after every rain, is in many cases entirely impracticable and is also very misleading because of the conditions which it fails to contemplate. It is true that there are many road surfaces composed of earth or earthy material which do not become very muddy under traffic, even during long rainy seasons, and since such surfaces usually tend to harden very rapidly as soon as the weather clears up, it may be desirable to drag roads of this kind immediately after a rain. Such roads, however, would not ordinarily need to be dragged after every rain, because of the strong tendency that they naturally possess of holding their shape.

On the other hand, many varieties of clay and silt tend to become very muddy under only light traffic after very moderate rains, and it is evident that roads constructed of such materials could not always be successfully dragged immediately after a rain. Sometimes, in fact, it may be necessary to wait until several consecutive clear days have elapsed after a long rainy spell before the road is sufficiently dried out to keep ruts from forming almost as rapidly as they can be filled by dragging.

Well-constructed sand-clay topsoil roads should not often become muddy after they are once well compacted. They may become seriously rutted, however, under heavy traffic, during rainy weather, and are almost sure to need dragging several times each year. Such roads should ordinarily be dragged as soon after a rain as practicable as otherwise the surface soon becomes dry and hard, so that it is necessary to do considerably more dragging in order to fill the ruts. Furthermore, the material which the drag moves will not compact readily unless it contains a considerable amount of moisture.

Gravel roads can be effectively maintained with a road drag only when the gravel composing the surface is fine grained and contains a considerable quantity of clay earth. Gravel road surfaces in which this condition prevails not infrequently get badly out of shape during wet weather, and may sometimes require considerably more attention than well-constructed sand-clay topsoil roads. The time for dragging gravel roads is unquestionably while they are wet. In fact, the best time for dragging after the road has become thoroughly soaked and while it is still raining.

In general, it may be said that the best time to drag any type of road is when the material composing the surface contains sufficient moisture to be moved by the drag and is not sufficiently wet for the traffic following the drag to produce mud.

Change in Road Sentiment.

When we consider the fact that such a large proportion of our population are owners of automobiles it is not difficult to understand the change in sentiment in regard to road building that has recently developed.

Big Saving in Hauling.

If our main highways were improved with permanent pavements, it would certainly save 8 or 9 cents per ton mile in hauling the immense interstate commerce that each year originates from agriculture, mine and forest.

SUMMERY SALADS.

There is no dish which "touches the spot" equal to a fresh, crisp, green salad.

String Bean Salad—Take one quart of cooked and chilled string beans, add two tablespoons of chopped onion, one half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and a few dashes of paprika, cover with olive oil using two spoonfuls of oil and one of vinegar and let stand for two hours. Line a bowl with lettuce, put in the beans and pour over the dressing. Serve well chilled.

Tomato Aspic on Shredded Cabbage.—Cook two cupfuls of tomato and one onion for twenty minutes, add one teaspoonful of salt and two of sugar and when well dissolved, strain. Soak four teaspoonfuls of granulated gelatin in one tablespoonful of water and add to the tomato. Pour into small molds or cups and let stand until firm. Serve on finely shredded lettuce with mayonnaise or a boiled dressing.

Botted Dressing.—Take two eggs well beaten, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and two tablespoonfuls of water, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two teaspoonfuls of salt and half a teaspoonful of mustard with a dash of red pepper. Cook over hot water until smooth and thick.

French Dressing.—Put into a bowl, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil (corn oil will do, but lacks the flavor), one tablespoonful of vinegar, one half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of paprika. Beat with an egg beater until thick.

Tomato With Onion and Cucumber Salad.—Cut thick slices of ripe, red tomatoes, or if small, cut in halves. Heap on each slice a mixture of chopped onion and cucumber well seasoned and mixed with French dressing; finish with a spoonful of thick boiled or mayonnaise dressing on top. Three good sized tomatoes will serve nine; the amount of onion and cucumber can be used to suit the taste. Celery may also be added using but a bit of onion for seasoning.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chan. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Thorford's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of our children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the Spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Thorford's Black-Draught has been in use for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result. Thorford's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Thorford's the original and genuine. B 78

WHEN LABOR LEARNS.

It Will Not Rush To Losses In Order To Promote Prosperity.

Since the signing of the armistice Great Britain has been visited by strikes that shook it to its center. In one quarter and another, month after month, unrest and disorder reigned. At Belfast and Glasgow industry was paralyzed. At Liverpool all shipping was tied up. In London local transportation was halted. The metropolitan police were in a state of revolt. Hundreds of thousands of miners in Wales and Yorkshire struck, and mills were forced to shut down for lack of fuel. The triple alliance of transport and railway workers threatened to challenge the Government to a test of strength. No one could force to what extent labor might be driven under the whip of reckless agitators. At last the great threat of terrorism has been passed and the clouds are breaking. After the fearful strain of five years of war and the turmoil of readjustment to peace conditions it is coming to be understood by the British people that they cannot live by agitation and idleness, and that productive work is the only practical solution of their troubles. In months of turbulence no other cure has been discovered, and none ever will be.

In this country we have not yet mastered the lesson of experience of less fortunate nations. Our losses in the war were relatively light. After hostilities ended there was no longer period of general unemployment such as the British Government was obliged to meet by a system of special allowances. But social unrest and labor disturbances have slow ed up all classes of American industry. The whole world is calling for American foodstuffs and American goods.

The first impulse of labor seems to be to gain by a system of means of promoting its prosperity. To cut down production, to lower efficiency, to shorten the hours of work, appears to be the accepted principle on which the high cost of living is to be reduced. Somehow, it is thought, food and clothing will be made cheaper and rents lower by forcing prices higher at the command of wage workers. It cannot be done either here or in Great Britain.

Condition of Tobacco Crop.

Optimistic reports of the condition of the growing tobacco crop of the United States at the beginning of July are not sustained by the official Government report for the month of August. The condition for the entire country dropping from 114.5 percent on July 1 to 75.1 percent on August 1, a decline of 39.4 percent. This is the most adverse showing made by any tobacco crop during the month of July in many years. In Kentucky, the average condition fell from 114 percent to 75 percent; North Carolina, from 115 to 70; South Carolina, from 134 to 74; Virginia from 105 to 75; Tennessee, from 138 to 75; Wisconsin, from 100 to 88 percent.

SOUTH WANTS NEGRO BACK.

But Is Opposed To Northern Blacks and Non-Southern Ideas.

Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The South wants the negro who moved North during the war to "come home," wants them so badly that it is willing to pay their expenses back. The cotton crop is the main reason. High wages in field, farm and mill are held out to those emigrants northward who will return to Dixie. A meeting held at Memphis discussed the situation at length, expressing anxious desire to get in touch with the negroes who have migrated, and promising that every Southern negro in the North would be brought back without expense to him if South ern farmers and planters could only learn where and how to reach him.

A naive qualification crept into the promises. No northern-born negroes are wanted; none but those who have been born and raised in Dixie. Sooner than accept the Northern negro the planters and farmers said they would prefer foreign labor. The idea is obvious. They do not want Northern ideas in the South. But there is not some danger that these obnoxious ideas may be transferred by the contagion of southern negroes who have been North? Perhaps the South has its own thought on this subject, and how to deal with it, but anyway, it wants its former labor back. Whether it will return or not is another question. Unlike the plants when the Northern migration began, adjusting the negro to stick to "dear old Dixie" and the homeland, the Memphis appeal is frankly a demand for a return to the old and least unhygienic.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Auto Turns Over Embankment and Injures Passengers.

William Yates and wife, Mrs. J. B. Berkshire and sister and Mrs. H. E. Fisher, all of Petersburg, were on their way to the fair at Florence about 11 o'clock last Saturday morning, and when rounding a sharp curve in the Petersburg pike on the advance hill at the point where Happy Jack Turner resided for many years, they met another machine in which four men were riding, and to avoid a collision Mr. Yates was forced to drive his machine so close to the bank on his side of the road that it was turned over, first striking a large telephone pole which was supported by a machine, and then lodged bottom upwards against a guy pole. Mrs. Berkshire sustained a fracture of one bone in her right arm between the shoulder and elbow, while Mrs. Fisher's injury was internal, and she being a delicate lady it is feared it may be serious. None of the other occupants of the machine received injuries of a serious nature. The injured women were taken back to W. A. Gaines and Dr. R. W. Dineen, called and administered to their injuries and in a few hours thereafter they were taken back to their homes in Petersburg. The machine which caused the trouble never halted, going on as though nothing had happened, and all efforts to help it off by telephone were fruitless. It is thought by some that the men in the machine were never aware of what had happened. Fortunately two or three other automobiles were not far behind Mr. Fisher's, and were soon upon the scene to render assistance.

Sues for $10,000 Damages.

Joseph Klopp, an infant under 17 years of age, by his next friend, his father, Philip Klopp, has sued Mrs. A. A. Yelton, Burlington, and J. A. Richmond, of Bellevue, for ten thousand dollars damages. The above named doctors were called in to set the limb and to take the young man home. It was the log that rolled over him that caused the injury.

STARTS OPERATIONS

Oil Company Begins Drilling For Oil In Gallatin County.

The Walnut Valley Oil and Gas Co., started drilling operations this week with Blitzer & Lutton, of Covington, having the contract and in charge of the work.

No oil or gas company, regardless of its location, ever started operations with more favorable prospects than this one. The lands it has leased lie in the Drury Chapel section of the county, and is the same field which about fifteen years ago large quantities of gas were struck at several different wells which were shut at the time. For several years after that the gas from one of these wells was piped to the Riley home near Sparta and used for fuel and lights.

Operations at the time the findings of gas were made were abandoned on account of lack of capital and proper organization, and the probability is that Gallatin would be paying oil and gas field today had the properties which were then tested been developed. It is now becoming through the development of the present company there is every prospect.

The company is officered by some of the best and most reliable men in the county, and they have evidenced their faith in the company's prospects by investing heavily in stock of the corporation.—Warsaw Independent.

MUCH OIL FOUND IN INDIA

American Methods Henceforth to Be Used in Developing Fields Expert Says.

The great oil fields of India are to be developed with American machinery and tools, and by American methods, according to George Slater, who is on the way to Burma, where he will have charge of the drilling operations as chief engineer for the Burma Oil Company, says the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

"India has large oil fields, and many of the wells at present are producing," Slater says. "The old methods of drilling are not comparable with American," Mr. Slater said the other day. "We are going to use what is known as the California system of rigging, casing and drilling, and will get most of our materials and machinery from the United States. I have just signed a three-year contract as chief engineer, and after finishing my work there intend to take a trip through Europe."

"The oil fields of India dig for oil which they strike at from 50 to 150 feet, and for centuries past have been able to obtain oil by the old method. Their use. The oil of India has a large paraffin base and will be marketed in England, and also used in the large industrial plants of the Indian empire. There are many large refineries in Burma and the other Indian oil regions, and they will be the principal sources of China's supply of kerosene."

It has been in India before, investigating the oil fields, and in my opinion, it is destined to be one of the great fields of the world, as the oil is there in large quantities and is of an excellent grade, being superior to the California oil and on par with the Texas product."

A World of Woe.

David Williamson, of the Beech Grove neighborhood is thoroughly convinced that this is a world of woe. He says when he was a boy he walked to church Sunday and could hardly keep from being run over by the horseback riders. Finally he got a horse and rode the buggies came and kept him from being run over. He says he has been in the highway to escape injury. To keep in the procession he purchased a buggy as soon as he could and had no more trouble. He says it is when the sound of the alarm behind him and crowding him into the weeds and fence corners along the public roads. He says he can not keep up with the procession in this world and he has no idea how he will make it in the world to come.

24th NORTH KENTUCKY FAIR

Attendance Larger Than Last Year—Horse and Mule Show Small—But Cattle, Sheep, Hogs and Poultry Exhibits Better Than Any Past Fairs.

The attendance the first and second days was not large but was said to be some larger than that of the corresponding days last year.

The fellows who always see the fair a great failure and declares it can last only a year or two longer was on hand in considerable numbers.

It is strange how much pleasure it affords some people to knock home enterprises and the efforts of home people. These same fellows have been predicting failure for the fair for nearly a quarter of a century and it is still doing business at the old stand.

The contest between the several boys pig clubs in the county was sharp. The coming farmers of the county were busy looking after their pigs and viewing others to see what chance they had in the contest. Marvin, son of Clem Kendall, was awarded the prize for the largest pig and his pig to the State Fair at Louisville, where his pig will compete with pigs from all over the State.

Here and there young Kendall's pig will be seen at the State Fair at Louisville, where his pig will compete with pigs from all over the State.

The mule show was not so good as in former years, also there were several good animals exhibited. William Hedges from down on Gunpowder creek was particularly successful with his suckling.

It looked a little like old times to see James A. Riddell exhibiting horses. The people in all parts of the amphitheater were saying, "Why, there is Jimmie Riddell. I thought he had quit showing horses several years ago!" Jim was there with the same old pep.

By many the sheep and hog shows were pronounced the best ever seen at the fair. The farmers of Boone county are giving these classes of stock particular attention and made great improvements in them during recent years. Warren Lassings five hundred dollar premium Hampshire buck stood great and the pen was awarded first premium in its class. Everyone who saw the animal were surprised to see such an excellent animal—in fact they did not think it possible for a meet to reach such perfection. The entire exhibit of sheep was made up of excellent animals and held the large crowd that gathered nearly the entire day. The usual breads were on exhibition, each showing great improvement over shows at past years.

W. B. Arnold, of Bellevue, captured the premium on the rooster at the fair last Thursday afternoon. The animal was driven by Walter Riddell and made a fine show. It showed fine speed and endurance.

The fine baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Griffith, of Beaver Lick, was awarded first premium in the baby show.

The soldier boys who marched in the ring, about sixty of them, were giving a rousing reception. They were addressed by Col. Dube, of Cincinnati, with whom some of them were in the service. The Colonel made a very handsome address which was appreciated by the boys. Right here it is suggested that people ought to learn to take off their hats when a band plays the Star Spangled Banner, which many in the crowd failed to do last Saturday.

Each day's attendance this year was larger than that of the corresponding day last year according to the gate receipts. The gate receipts on Saturday being $450 more than on Friday. On Saturday last year, and Secretary Hubert Conner says the company came out with a very nice balance on the proper side of the ledger.

The crowd was given numerous opportunities to spend money, even the heretofore outlived baby rack made its appearance again and did a rushing business.

Frank Norman was a very successful exhibitor of horses. He made numerous shows and captured a considerable bundle of ribbons.

Milton Goodridge, of Oldham county, and J. L. Clements, and son, Warren, of Rod, were among those from a distance who were looking up their Boone county friends.

The attendance Wednesday and Thursday was small, but the crowds on Friday and Saturday made up largely for the small attendance the first two days to the delight of the directors.

The large poultry exhibit attracted the attention of many people who heretofore took very little interest in it, which shows that the poultry business is on the upswing in Boone county.

H. H. Cleck, Chester Tanner and Robert Youell each donated a Chesterwhite pig which was sold at public auction at the fair on Tuesday afternoon, the sales aggregating $77. This sum, with enough added by the fair association next year to make the amount $150 will be used as premiums to be given on Chesterwhite hogs at the 1920 North Ky. Fair.

The autograph book was a busy set at the fair last week and there were several of them, each having an exhibit.

There were numerous devices on the ground for collecting in the surplus nickels carried by the crowd.

The absence of the merry-go-round robbed the juvenile attendance of much of the pleasures it has anticipated.

One thing can be said of the North Kentucky Fair and that is no other fair association has a nicer grounds.

The cattle show was very large, being confined largely to milk stock, all of which was of the best.

While passing the poultry exhibit at the fair last Friday a representative of the RECORDER was called by James W. Huey, of Union precinct, to look over his pen of Barred Rocks and the birds seemed as near perfection as it is possible to grow them. Mr. Huey has taken great pains in breeding up his poultry, and he has acquired quite a reputation along that line.

That the automobile is fast crowding out the horse drawn vehicle is shown conclusively at all large fairs. These large horse buggies and carriages are becoming scarce at the country fairs.

The dancing pavilion was a new and very popular feature with the young people while the older people in large numbers lingered near and were only sorry they could not take part in the pleasure of tripping the light fantastic. The dancing commenced in the afternoon.

The horse and mule shows were not very good, but the cattle, hog, sheep and poultry shows were very good, showing that these branches of industry are becoming the favorites in this county.

The North Kentucky Fair Association held its annual election at the fair last Saturday and the following were chosen directors: John E. Williams, Hubert Conner, C. F. Blankenbaker, C. W. Myers, R. C. Swetnam, S. C. Hicks, J. S. Dixon, Warren Lassings and C. Southern. Mr. Southern was elected in the place of W. P. Beemon. The directors will meet and elect a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

SEVENTY PERSONS

Attended The Kelly Reunion Held Near Petersburg Last Sunday.

Nearly seventy persons attended the Kelly reunion held at J. A. Kelly's in Petersburg neighborhood last Sunday, all except three or four being relatives. Several of the relatives who reside in Indiana were present and enjoyed the day with their Kentucky relatives. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread from the numerous well filled baskets had been prepared for the occasion, and to say ample justice was done the feast in putting it very mildly. One very enjoyable feature of the meeting was the cutting of the luscious watermelons, a considerable collection of which was on hand. Each person present was busy on making the most enjoyable as possible for all, and no family collection was made.

HEART TO HEART TALK

O. C. Peyton, D. D.

A true pastor is a man of God. He is chosen and called of God to the most important and the most delightful service in all the wide world. His duty and his privilege is to live in the spiritual realm and to seek rich, spiritual treasures for himself that he may, under God, be the channel for giving of spiritual blessings unto others. He studies God's book and earnestly pleads that God may enrich his own soul that he may be able, through the spirit's power, to enrich the souls of his people. The Bible is to the true pastor a mine of spiritual gems to be brought through prayer to the lives of the people to whom he ministers. Such high service is appreciated by a spiritual people only. Only such give to the pastor tender sympathy and loving cooperation. Only yesterday I had a letter from an appreciative, responsive, godly woman, and she wrote words of comfort, cheer and helpfulness. She had found in my preaching and writing much of help and strength. Often have I had such letters from appreciative people. How they do help! I have a special place in my desk for such letters and there are many there.

I've always loved the deep things of our God. I love to read them and preach and write about them. Not always are they appreciated. People have different capacities. Sam Jones said "people come to church with different sized cups. Some bring gill cups, some pints, some quarts, and so on." If you do not appreciate and apply the deep things of God, seek to increase your spiritual capacity. "Open your mouth wide and I will fill it" saith the Lord. God wants to bestow large blessings upon you. You can not take them in if you are spilling your spiritual appetite by feeding on the apples of Sodom on the onions and garlic of Egypt. The grapes of Eschol will not have a good taste if your spiritual appetite is vitiated.

Cultivate a taste for the deepest of the truths of God and as your pastor preaches these you can receive, appreciate, respond to and find joy in the richest, most soul-enriching things of our God.

The Boone Fiscal Court was in session Tuesday with all the members present.

Several delegations were present pressing road action in their respective localities. William W. Grimsley, J. M. Baker and others from Big Bone were before the court advocating the Fish Trap route as the proper route for the proposed Federal Road through this county, but the court could give them no satisfaction as to the route for the road will be finally located.

The citizens of Union, believing that upon Fowler's farm, belonged to the county, have petitioned the court to have the route for the road will be finally located.

A large crowd witnessed both games and excitement ran high, especially in the second game when the local boys threatened to cut down a big lead and win out. Everybody enjoyed the day's sport. The Verona team will go to Petersburg next Saturday to tackle the team of that city and a close game is anticipated.

John Grant Tomlin.

The entire county mourns the death of John Grant Tomlin, of Walton. He was, undoubtedly, the county's most prominent and enterprising citizen for many years past, and took an active part in every forward movement, be it in the interest of his immediate locality, the county or the State. He was broad minded and deplored selfishness in others. To his enterprise and devotion to his town and people does the town of Walton, in the greatest measure, owe its present prosperity, and it was a pleasure to him in his last days to know that the local enterprises to which he had given so liberally of his time and means in their infancy are recognized as among the most substantial institutions in this part of the State. Always true to his country, loyal to his friends, generous to the public and devoted to his family, he was a true man, and the world is the better because of his having lived to it.

J. G. TOMLIN DEAD.

Judge Grant Tomlin who suffered a stroke of paralysis several months ago sustained a second stroke of paralysis Sunday afternoon, lapsing into unconsciousness from which he never recovered and passed away Monday afternoon at about three o'clock. Hope was entertained of his recovery for some time as he showed signs of improvement during the past couple of months and every agency was employed to restore him to health but with out avail. The community has lost one of its best citizens and everybody mourns the loss of a good friend. In every public affair he was a leading spirit and Walton owes much to him and his enterprising efforts, as he was the father of every enterprise of note in the town for the past twenty years. He was kind and charitable to all, and he helped many a poor man to a good position in life, and nothing gave him so much gratification as to see those who were weak and deserving, and he was liberal to a fault. Judge Tomlin was born at Mt. Zion, Grant County, Ky., Dec. 31st, 1861, and was therefore in his 58th year. He began his teaching school, and filled many positions of trust and honor. Choosing the profession of law he followed it with success and marked ability, serving as judge in various trials, the Owen county tax cases being one of the most important. He was respected by all for his candor and strict integrity, and his knowledge of the law made him of great value to his profession. He was first married to Miss Anna Herndon, who bore him a son, and both preceded him to the grave. After some years he was united in marriage to Miss Helen Dickey and she and five children survive him, and treasure his memory as a loving and devoted husband and father. One brother, Dr. Wm. S. Tomlin of Indianapolis, Ind., and one sister Mrs. J. B. Rollins of Nashville, Tenn., also mourn the death of a kind brother. Judge Tomlin was a member of the Baptist church and of the Masonic fraternity and was esteemed by both for his fidelity and usefulness. His place in the community will be difficult to fill and his useful life, kindly spirit and loyalty to every good cause will be missed by all. The funeral took place from his late home Wednesday afternoon, the services being conducted by his pastor Rev. R. L. Shirley of the Baptist church and Rev. S. W. Hill of the Presbyterian church.

J. W. Utz, from over on the Florence pike, was a caller at this office, yesterday, and handed in a new subscriber to the Recorder. Thanks, O'hers may do likewise if they so choose.

Several Burlington parties attended the funeral of J. G. Tomlin, of Walton, yesterday.

Don't fail to attend the Harvest Home. Your friends are expecting to see you there.

Burlington is badly in need of a "Clean up Day." The streets are badly in need of it.

BISMARCK'S FRUITS.

The latest biographer of Bismarck, C. Grant Robertson, calls attention to the way in which the great German chancellor was responsible for his own destruction. It was Bismarck's wish to build not a constitutional government, but an autocracy, says Kansas City Star. In himself he concentrated the whole power of the state. Then came the young William II to the throne, restless and ambitious. The two clashed. Had Bismarck been the parliament-made minister of a constitutional sovereign it would have been William who would have had to give way. For the chancellor had the confidence of the nation. But, as Mr. Robertson says, while a plebeian would have retained him in office, the nation could not save him. He had made that impossible. As a result of his fall Bismarck denounced as "Byzantinism and Caesar worship" this very irresponsible power which it had been his life work to build up. The same ironical fate might be traced in the fall of Napoleon. Bismarck's handwork. The state which he founded on iron and blood came to ruin by attempting to expand his policy.

It is well-known that kings and queens work desperately hard for their salaries. The pursuit of life they have in abundance, but liberty and happiness, requiring much leisure, are not for them. Since the war's end their activities have become furious, and the few monarchs left are earning overtime. The royal engagement pad will not permit a headache to stand in the way of opening a memorial arch. None of the comfortable subterfuges of private life can excuse a queen. A writer in the Kansas City Star describes Queen Mary's crowded day, from the early morning hours until late at night, and it is evident that she must have little use for a chaise longue, while the king, not overburdened with tasks of state, like a president, nevertheless has not a moment to himself. If our own executive were to attempt to combine social labors with the strenuous schedule he is now undertaking, by aid of Admiral Grayson, there would be fears for his endurance.

The work of the Salvation Army with the army was of such magnitude in the way of results that its members came back from the war zone practically without criticism on their organization or methods and with the love, respect and admiration of men of all ranks. They faced all the actual risks of war in the discharge of their duty, and some paid the supreme sacrifice in ministering to the needs of the soldiers. Their appeal now ought to reach to the heart of the country they served so well, and receive substantial appreciation of their work in the war.

What the whole world needs now is the fishing cure. There is no other balm so effective for strained nerves and wearied souls. Fishing is said to encourage falsehood, but we believe that is a slander invented by would-be humorists who never fish except for state jokes. On the contrary, it encourages nearly all the virtues. It is difficult to conceive of a true fisherman who is not a philosopher and a good citizen. Let's halt the world's business and go a-fishing. It is a sure cure for that tired, worried feeling.

Possibly the allies may find that they have unwittingly done Germany a favor by absorbing it from the old and grievous burdens of militarism, while aiming to cripple it. At any rate, heavy armaments in France and England will put them at a disadvantage with German industry to that extent.

It is not surprising that England says claim to a number of the German ships seized by the United States. When everything is settled, it will be found that if England has not come out of the big end of the horn it will not be for lack of effort on her part.

America has spent $300,000,000 in relief work and sent 270,000 tons of food to starving Europe. And it has come out of the war asking no spoils. That is a record to be proud of we are handing down to posterity.

The governor of New York has signed the law repealing the statute which makes attempted suicide a punishable offense. In one state, at least, a man can no longer be jailed for failing to kill himself.

Whisky may not be manufactured in the United States, but the war developed several new and potent kinds of gas that should bring all the old-time sensations.

Dropping Boards Should Be Cleaned Weekly—Isolate Birds With Colds—Keep Away Insects.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Clean the dropping boards at least once a week, and spray the roosts once a month with kerosene or some commercial preparation for killing mites. Have a good supply of sand or dry dirt on hand to use on the dropping boards.

If any of the birds develop colds,

A Clean House Promotes the Health of Poultry.

put as much potassium permanganate as will remain on the surface of a dime into a gallon of water and keep this material in their drinking water for several days, or until the symptoms of the colds have disappeared. Remove any sick birds from the flock as soon as noted and treat them with drops by themselves or kill and bury them if they are not worth treating.

Examine the pullets and hens for lice and dust thoroughly with a good insect powder or apply a mixture of equal parts of vaseline and mercuric blue ointment, applying a piece about the size of a pea one inch below the vent of the bird, rubbing the mixture lightly on the skin. An application of this ointment two or three times a year will keep the fowls free from lice. Where insect powder is used, it should be applied three or four times a year, or oftener if the fowls become infested with lice. Provide a small box in the house, partly filled with dry road dust or fine dirt, in which the hens may dust themselves, thus helping to keep them free from lice.

DOULTRY NOTES

It is an easy matter to overfeed fowls. Bear this in mind unless the fowls are on range.

Hens that are laying are not likely to accumulate fat; it is when they are not laying that they do so.

Give the fowls good dust and plenty of it. This is how they keep themselves free of vermin and well.

Hens of light breeds may be profitably kept for three seasons; those of the heavy breeds for two seasons.

Good layers are bred up and not fed up. All the feeding in the world cannot induce a naturally nonproductive hen to change her nature.

A trap nest is the one accurate way to tell whether you are keeping a paying flock, but the poultryman who keeps it must look after the nest in a proper way.

If you have made a failure of everything else, don't think the chicken business will prove to be a life saver. It requires not only brains, but an overplus of energy.

Chickens never wash, as many other birds do, and cleanse themselves of insects by wallowing in soil. For this reason every poultry house should be provided with a dust box.

Five eggs out of every 100 are spoiled by being fertile. Producing infertile eggs does not require anything but the removal of the rooster from the flock after the need for hatching eggs is past.

Milk is no substitute for meat, for it is not sufficiently concentrated. It is impossible for fowls to drink enough of it to take the place of meat. When fed with animal food, milk performs excellent service.

Infertile eggs are more common among poor layers than good ones. Experiments at the Maine experiment station proved it necessary to remove the rooster from the flock after the need for hatching eggs is past.

Thus mayest not rest in any lovely thing, Thou who wert formed to seek and to aspire; Nor no fulfillment of thy dreams can bring. The answer to thy measureless desire. The beauty of the round green world is not Of the world's essence; far within the sky. The limits which make this bubble bright are wrought; The bubble bursts; the light can never die.

HERE'S A RAISIN.

Until the shortage of sugar, we never realized the healthful appetizing stored in some of our dried fruits, and never considered them in regard to their sugar value.

As raisins are three-fourths sugar, why not take advantage of that when using them in various dishes? The saving of sugar is not so vital now, but we still need to use economy so that foreign nations may have a share. A handful of raisins added to almost any fruit salad adds to its flavor and richness.

For a toothache one of the pleasant remedies is a split raisin, sprinkled with a few grains of cayenne; press the pieces together and place the raisin on the gum nearest the tooth. A hot raisin is said to cure earache.

Apples Stuffed With Raisins.—Wash, core and remove the pulp from a dozen smooth, firm apples. Put through the meat chopper two cupsful of the apple removed, and two cupsful of seeded raisins; add one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Stuff the apples with this mixture and place them in a greased baking pan. Into a sauce pan put a cupful each of water and corn syrup, add a tablespoonful of butter and boil for five minutes. Pour this sauce over the apples and bake until they are tender. Serve either hot or cold.

Raisin Parfaits.—Beat the yolks of three eggs, add two cupsful of milk (sour), two cupsful of melted fat, three cupsful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of soda. Beat well, then add one cupful of seedless raisins and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Cook in a hot griddle and serve with maple syrup or honey.

A few chopped and steamed raisins added to ordinary boiled frosting makes a very good cake filling. Nuts will make a still richer filling, if a few are added, finely chopped.

French Ku-Klux.

Conditions in France have brought into existence unidentified bodies who seem to combine the activities of the vigilantes and the Ku-Klux Klan. At any rate they are venting their conceptions of justice upon the known profane of their communities. This far they have not taken to lynching, but they are very near it.

FISH AND WAYS OF COOKING IT.

Select fish with firm flesh, clear eyes, red gills, scales bright and free from any unpleasant odor. As soon as it is caught or bought it should be scaled, cleaned and well washed. After cleaning place on a large plate in a cool place until it is ready to be cooked.

To boil fish, wipe it carefully, dust well with salt and wrap in a cheese cloth four inches longer than the fish. Place in a kettle of boiling water, add a teaspoonful of salt, a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, a slice of onion and a bit of celery. Cover the kettle and let it just simmer ten minutes to the pound. Lift out carefully and turn the fish upon a folded napkin on a hot platter. Garnish with slices of lemon and sprigs of parsley and serve with a drawn butter sauce.

Planked Whitefish.—One may have a delicious planked fish at home which may be served to perfection, if one has a gas or coal range. Secure a two-inch plank made from hard wood, oak, hickory or maple, a groove running around the plank two inches or less (in from the edge), will hold the juices from flowing over. Have the fish split down the back and place it skin side down on the plank after heating it so hot that the hand cannot be held on instant upon it. Season the fish with salt and pepper, baste with butter and place in a hot oven to bake thirty minutes, basting two or three times. When the fish is done, take it from the oven, garnish with parsley and lemon slices and send to the table on the plank; place on a tray a little larger than the plank. The longer the plank is used the better flavor it gives to the fish. Scrape the plank to remove any charred wood and carefully cover it when not in use, and it will last for years.

If one wishes to roast the fish before an open fire, the ideal way, tack the fish on the board and stand it before the fire.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

There is still a notable deficiency in heavy, desirable draft horses in the U. S. say horsemen of the United States Department of Agriculture. Last year, they say, there was a tremendous decrease in mares bred, but during the spring of 1919 a very large percentage of good mares were bred, which is expected largely to meet the future demand for horses of the better type.

Big Bone baseball team is doing last work this season, and has been very successful. Last Sunday it defeated the Bellevue team 17 to 11, and last Monday it took the scalp of the Ludlow White Sox 12 to 2. The White Sox have the rep. of being about the best amateur team in Northern Kentucky, consequently the Big Bone robbers are feeling proud over the success of their team.

Boone County Hi School opened last Monday with forty pupils enrolled and several more in prospect. Prof. Maywood is well pleased with the outlook for a good attendance at this term. The grades also have a larger number than usual enrolled. The High School is short one teacher and Miss Pauline Kelly will teach until a regular teacher can be secured at which a diligent effort is being made.

The will of Joseph C. Kennedy, for many years a citizen of Verona neighborhood, was admitted to probate in the county court last Monday, and a codicil to the will of the late Fielding Dickey was probated. The original will of Mr. Dickey was probated in 1905, and a few months ago the codicil that was probated last Monday was discovered. At the time the codicil was discovered it was supposed to have been written on the original document but it turned out that it was written on a copy of the original, hence the necessity of the court proceedings of last Monday.

Loyalty is one of the finest virtues. It dignifies any life, any vocation. The soldier who dies at the post; the sailor who goes down with his ship; the physician who risks his life in a plague-stricken community; the switchboard operator who keeps his head and calls others to safety while flames creep nearer; and the reporter who puts his assignment before life itself. The newspapermen of London will erect a monument to one of their number who was fatally injured in a street accident while returning to his office with his story. Death is not his only thought was to get his copy of the day's news. The word of thing is not rare in the newspaper world but its recognition is less usual than it ought to be.—Chicago Post.

Abolish State Primaries.

Political parties, whether they may be deemed good or bad, are the only vehicles through which the people can give collective expression of their political beliefs. Of old this expression has been given in platforms, every plank of which a particular party decreed on a given subject. And these platforms furnished the slogan and battle cry of political parties, thus creating the proper enthusiasm without which no party can win.

The platform is to a political party what a flag is to an army. Parties become listless and filled with discord and invite defeat without a platform, and an army without its colors to rally under.

In an evil hour elements have been at work that have, about sapped away the vitality of Democracy in Kentucky and elsewhere, by reason of the fact of State-wide and district-wide primaries, with no annunciation of party principles.

Abolish such primaries immediately. If you wish Democracy to endure in this or any other State in this Union—Shelby Sentinel.

The Primary Election Law.

It has cost Black and Carroll each from $15,000 to $25,000 to make the race for a nomination for Governor in the primary election last Saturday. It has cost other candidates for Governor even more than this. No man of moderate means can afford to make a race for Governor as long as we have the primary election law.

The primary election law is the rich man's law. The poor man is practically cut out of the running except for a county office. Another drawback to the primary election law is that in a State where the candidates must have a State reputation and be known by the voters generally or he has not much chance of success. A man who is comparatively unknown when he becomes a candidate is badly handicapped in a race with a candidate who is well known.

Every man who has served four years at Frankfort in a State office has a big advantage on account of his acquaintance over a man who has not had such an opportunity. One reason why the Congressmen are all in favor of the primary election is that it gives them a big advantage over any other candidate in the district who would like to go to Congress and as a result of it very few of them have the nerve to oppose a Congressman who wants to be re-elected.

There is another great disadvantage in the primary, which applies to all candidates running for State office. On a ticket when a Governor is to be nominated, and that is, that the people get all the interest in the Governor's race, and one third of them do not vote in the district races and another third of them without any proper consideration as to the qualifications of the candidates do not know how to vote.

Barring those who hold State offices those who run in a primary are doing nothing much more than voting a shot in the dark, and the voters, as a rule are doing the same thing.

There are of course objections to the Convention, but they are of minor importance and entirely to unfairness and these apply as well to the primary as they do to the convention, while the objection to the primary, which we have cited, do not apply to a convention.—Elizabethtown News.

State News.

Cynthiana.—James Lea, a young farmer living on the Geo. Bocher farm near Boyd, cut his throat, and died two or three hours after. He slashed his throat three times with a pocketknife. The young man was 23 years old and returned from military service in March. Since that time he had married a young girl, an orphan reared by Mr. Bocher. The cause of Lea's taking his life is not known.

Winchester.—Local dairymen have issued notice that the price of milk will be 18 cents per quart and 10 cents per pint. They give as the reason for the increase the high cost of labor, feeds and ice.

Richmond.—During a heavy thunderstorm the young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wells, who live in the White Hall locality, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The boy was out in the yard taking clothes off the line when a bolt of lightning struck a tree to which the clothes line was attached.

Frankfort.—White-Norman Kirk, a farmer, was milking a cow the cow struck him in the eye with the point of her horn and tore the eyeball from the socket. The cow turned her head to brush off flies.

"GOD SAVE CHINA FROM FRIENDS"

Senator McCumber Protests in Senate Against Shantung Amendment to Treaty

AGAINST INTEREST OF CHINA

Republican Senators Assert That Opponents of the Peace Treaty in the Senate Are Trying to Kill It

Washington, Aug. 26.—Senator McCumber, for twenty years Republican senator from North Dakota, in a speech in the senate today, charged that the majority of the foreign relations committee is trying to kill the peace treaty and the League of Nations. Senator McCumber spoke after his second breach with the opponents of the treaty on the senate committee on foreign relations. In the present breach Senator McCumber voted alone with the supporters of the treaty and against the majority of the committee which voted to strike out "Japan" and insert "China" in the three sections awarding the Shantung peninsula.

"Why did the majority of this committee pause in the midst of their hearings to make this particular amendment?" asked Senator McCumber. "The purpose is apparent. It is to signify to the country that the senate is hostile to this treaty. It is to put Japan in a position where she can not without an appearance of being coerced do what she has promised to do. It is to create trouble between this country and Japan and thereby send the dagger thrust into the body of this treaty."

"I am satisfied that no greater blow could ever be struck against the real interests of China than by such an amendment. "Is it an act of true friendship toward China or a mere political move to defeat the treaty? If it's sponsors now fail to come forward and openly pledge that if Japan is driven out of this treaty then the United States will proceed single-handed and alone to drive Japan out of China—will renew this world war and send our soldiers into the Orient to fight for her, then by this act they are betraying China with a false kiss."

"If, on the other hand, they declare they will make war to drive Japan out of China, to prevent Japan receiving only the rights which the other great nations of the world have received, then they are proclaiming a policy which they have assailed as being the most wicked part of the League of Nations. A policy of interference with the quarrels of the old world. Worse than that, while they violently condemn a joint agreement between the United States and the world to shield the greater white races from annihilation they would send our sons to death to defend the inferior yellow races whom we claim to be so inferior as to be unfit to associate with us."

"Either we will bring both Japan and China into this league of nations, or we will bring only the provisions which will compel Japan to return to China all the German rights acquired by Japan, not only by conquest but by the solemn agreement made by her with China herself, or you will drive Japan out of this treaty wherein she will not be bound by the obligations which she would assume by joining the league, and where she will be holding the German territory and all the German interests by the right of conquest and with the broken word of China, she will have her way to the very limit of subjugation of all the Chinese territory not now within the sphere of influence of other powers. With this League of Nations China obtains an assurance which is tantamount to a guarantee by all the world that not only will Japan return to China what Germany wrested from her in 1918, but henceforth so long as this league shall last no other nation shall rob China of one inch of her territory or exercise control over her people inconsistent with the claims of complete independence and sovereignty."

Senator McCumber then recited the history of the several treaties under which Japan took over the German rights in Shantung, promising to restore them to China. He then said: "By this amendment you declare that Japan can not be trusted to keep sacred her word. Given not only to China alone but also given to the United States and every other important nation by reiterated declarations. There is but one honorable, upright and proper course to be pursued by all the great nations of the world, including China and Japan. Let China keep her treaty; give compensation to Germany to do what she has pledged her national honor to do; cease this attempt to fuddle this country into war with Japan; defeat this proposed amendment which arrogates to ourselves the right to annul a treaty between China and Japan and sets at naught a treaty made during the stress of battle between our co-belligerents and Japan before we entered into this world league and as sure as the sun shall rise tomorrow Japan will keep her word and China will receive the complete present justice and assured future protection."

"On the other hand force this breach of contract by China; drive Japan out of this league by annulling her honor; relieve her from her treaty by first breaking it yourselves and thereby lashing her in her impotent position of not of conquest and China is doomed. The other European nations cannot help her because they are tied by their own treaties, and you will not let the war in Japan and China after she has broken her treaty."

"If these be friends of China, then God help China from her friends."

GEN. PERISHING

Sails From France—Marshal
Foch Last to Bid Adieu
To American.

Brest, Sept. 1.—General John J. Pershing, commander of the American expeditionary forces, sailed from this port today on the transport, Leviathan, formerly the German Vaterland, for the United States. The steamer left port at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Marshal Ferdinand Foch came aboard the transport shortly before it sailed and bade farewell to the departing American commander.

"In leaving France," said the Marshal, "you leave your dead in our hands. On our soil we will care for them religiously and zealously, as befits witnesses of the powerful aid you brought us. These dead will bring from America many thoughts of remembrance and pious visits, and will bind still more strongly our already close union."

"Recalling with emotion the hours we have lived together—some of them full of anguish, some glorious—I am struck hard in the heart in passing with you the last moments of your stay among us."

"On our arrival, you said: 'Lafayette, we are here!'"

"Allow a French soldier of today to return thanks to you, and in a few words recall the work you have done for the rights and liberty of the world."

Marshal Foch then reviewed the American effort, and said:

"This army, raised in all haste, with still only elementary instruction, organized and commanded by young officers without military tradition, passed rapidly into your hands."

"You have shown yourself in the longest sense to be organizer, soldier, chief and great servant of your country, crowning the glorious efforts and noble spirit of America with victory by your armies."

"If," concluded the Marshal, "the clouds of war again should gather, would not these dead rise from their tombs and make their voices heard once more by the world which already knows that the same cause, the cause of liberty, has united us since the time of Washington and Lafayette."

General Pershing replied by bidding farewell to France, in the person of the Marshal, to her gallant poilu, to her patriotic men and to her noble women.

"You have done me the signal honor," he said, "of paying me a final visit. It is fitting that you should be the last to whom I say farewell because of our intimate service together in the days of anxiety and victory."

"The American Army, in fulfillment of the will of the citizens, came to France because we stood for the same principles of right and because the common ideals of the two countries called for mutual action upon this foundation. Close comradeship and cooperation rapidly molded our aggressive young manhood into an army which, under you, as the allied leader, was to turn the tide of war."

"To have fought beside the glorious army of France, and to have been of your nation during more than two years have given our relations an affectionate touch, and makes parting one of sadness. But in these deep sentiments there is an abiding confidence between our nations which insures to the world our constant friendship and our common purpose in behalf of humanity."

"In leaving with France our dead we are consoled to feel that their graves will be cared for ten that will bind us together still more firmly."

Then the General and Marshal Foch marched arm in arm to the gangplank, exchanging final salutes as the Marshal stepped ashore.

The Tobacco Crop.

Tobacco is growing well and some of the earliest is being housed. The best of the crop is expected to be in later cuttings, but as a rule the tobacco that is housed the earliest cures the best. The crop has been well cultivated and the growth should be rapid with anything like a good season from now till cutting. The average is about an average, but the irregularity of the plants and in many instances a bad stand will cut the crop down some.

The tobacco crop in Fayette county has had all the rain it needs and prospects are excellent for a good crop, providing frosts in September are not experienced. Tobacco has made extremely rapid growth the past two weeks and fields are beginning to present a more even appearance.

It is believed that Fayette and Woodford counties have the best crops of tobacco in the Burley district, because these two counties have been especially blessed with more rain than their neighbors. Cutting tobacco has been done to some extent in this county and will be pushed vigorously during the present week.

Splendid rains visited Bourbon county, last week, and farmers were elated. Tobacco was greatly benefited. The late-set tobacco is growing off rapidly and promises to make a fair yield.

OWEN COUNTY.

Owen County Democrat.
Many of our farmers whose wheat did not turn out well are feeding it to the hogs. The short corn crop makes it necessary for them to do this in order to get their hogs in condition to kill.

Last Thursday the teachers of Owen county organized for the purpose of pushing legislation that will insure better salaries, greater efficiency in the teaching profession and better equipment and better schoolhouses.

William Warley the Louisville negro who was a candidate for representative in one legislative district in that city and who the Republicans of his party did not give him a square deal declares himself for the state Democrat ticket and offers to stump the state against the Republicans.

PENDLETON COUNTY.

Falmouth Outlook.
The Fiscal Court of Pendleton county has voted to audit the books of the county, and the proposition is meeting with favor by a large majority of the taxpayers.

G. W. Steele, of near Concord, sold last week to a Cincinnati commission merchant an 8-weeks-old calf, which weighed 215 lbs. and at 19¢ cents a pound, which brought him $41.75. This is the highest price we have ever heard of for a veal calf.

Virgil Weaver & Son, the largest honey producers in Pendleton county shipped by express the past week 15,400 lbs. of honey to one firm in Ohio. They also sold to a local dealer 6,000 lbs. Their total crop of honey the past season amounted to 25,000 pounds. Weaver & Son have 700 colonies of bees.

C. W. Hart, of this city, is cutting a fine crop of tobacco on the suburban farm of Misses Icie and Mary Coleman. This tobacco was grown with very little rain fall and is curing up fine and with a good color.

NEWS FROM INDIANA.

Lawrenceburg Press.
The Southern Indiana Telephone Company has placed an order for a new submarine cable to go under the Ohio river at Aurora to replace the one taken out by the ice gorge in 1918. The new cable, which is being made at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., will be armored with fourteen steel wires for protection. Manager E. W. Swarthout states that the cable will likely be in service within thirty days.

James Allen Delph, seventy-nine died Thursday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Feeno, on West High Street. Mr. Delph was a fiddler of the old school, and the last one in this locality. Previous to coming to Lawrenceburg he lived at Petersburg. Funeral services were conducted at the Feeno residence Saturday morning by Rev. D. H. Ives, pastor of the Baptist church, and Rev. J. W. J. Collins, pastor of Humaine chapel. The body was taken to Bullsburg cemetery for burial.

Mrs. Everett Clore, of Waterloo, who underwent an operation for appendicitis several days ago is doing nicely.

Addison Robbins, who resides down on Gunpowder creek has rented Mrs. Mary Vaughn's house and lot in Burlington, to which he will move in a few weeks. Mrs. Vaughn and her daughter leave some time next month for Los Angeles, California.

Supt. Gordon has had considerable trouble getting the schools started this fall. He has been working for months to get this county's educational machinery set on a new basis and without a hitch but there were three or four back-fires.

Having found it necessary to discontinue our wagon route in the country we will sell our team of good horses one from 1911 the other eight years old.
